Nixon Summons Chief U.S. Arms Negotiator To Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon, near final agreement with Soviet leaders on a pact to limit strategic arms, joined Premier Alexei N. Kosygin today in signing an agreeement aimed at putting American and Soviet space explorers into orbit together by 1975.

At the same ceremony, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Vladimir Kirillin, chairman of the Soviet committee for science and technology, signed still another accord calling for U.S.-Soviet cooperation in scientific and technological fields.

Under the terms of the strategic arms limitation pact, it was learned, the two countries will join in a treaty limiting deployment of defensive antiballistic missiles and will sign an executive agreement freezing the current number of landbased missile-launching platforms while allowing the Soviets to catch up with an American lead in missile launchers at sea.

Under the SALT pact, it was understood, each country could go ahead with replacement of present-generation offensive missiles as technology permits, but would not be allowed to increase their number.

Ambassador Gerard Smith is coming to Moscow Thursday from Helsinki, Finland, where he has been negotiating with Soviet envoys in the strategic arms limitation talks. The chief Soviet envoy at Helsinki, Vladimir Semenov, also is expected to return here.

As President Nixon met for the fourth time in the Kremlin with Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev, the sources said the negotuators hope to be ready for the signing Friday of a treaty covering the ABM curb and a less formal agreement for the freeze on offensive missiles, both those based on land and those on submarines and surface ships.

The agreement apparently would not bar either country from installing improved missiles at existing launch sites.

It is expected that the agreement will provide for the use of reconnaissance satellites to verify that missile emplacements are not being increased by either country.

Nixon and Brezhnev are expected to hold both morning and afternoon sessions today and then to participate in the signing of an agreement for cooperation in space exploration, the third accord produced during Nixon's visit to the Soviet capital.

There was speculation that one of the goals of the space agreement might be joint orbital trips by U. S. and Soviet astronauts before the 200th birthday celebration of the United States in 1976.

The President emerged briefly from the Kremlin today for the first time since he arrived in Moscow on Monday to place a wreath at the tomb of an unknown soldier killed in the defense of the Soviet capital in 1941. The general public was barred from the area alongside the Kremlin Wall, but about 150 Muscovites watched impassively as Nixon's motorcade made the short trip through closed-off streets.

Mrs. Nixon continued to do the sightseeing for the first family. Her itinerary today included Moscow University, the big GUM department store and a night at the circus.

The summit bore its first modest fruits Tuesday with the signing of two agreements—for American-Soviet cooperation in combating killer diseases and environmental pollution.

Nixon and President Nikolai V. Podgorny signed the pollution accord at a brief ceremony in the Kremlin. Then Secretary of State William P. Rogers and the Soviet health minister, Boris V. Petrovsky, initialed the other.

Man Arrested, Charged In Bank Robbery

MARBLE HILL, Mo. (AP)-Authorities in Bollinger County have filed a first-degree armed robbery charge against a man arrested Tuesday in connection with the $9,000 robbery of a Lutesville bank Monday.

Prosecuting Atty. Kenneth Shrum said the charge was filed against a man identified by the FBI as Robert Chase, about 30. Chase was charged in connection with the armed robbery of the Bollinger County Bank.

Police said they were still searching for the stolen money and a stolen car used in the holdup.

Chase was being held in the Cape Girardeau County Jail at Jackson today, and Shrum said he will be transferred to Marble Hill. He said a bond of $20,000 has been recommended.

Chase was identified through fingerprints, according to Shrum. Police

10th District Uncommitted

Hearnes Scores Victory

MINER — Democrats in he 10th District will send five uncommitted degelates to the national party convention in July at Miami Beach. District Democrats chose their delegates and alternates last night at the Ramada Inn.

An attempt by Rep. Bill Burlison to seize control of the delegation fizzled quickly when only one of his supporters was nominated in delegate voting and two supporters were nominated for alternates. All three lost. This was a victory for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Delegates chosen were S. "Smokey" H. James, 56, Clarkton; Erman Brawley, 58, Ellington; Ken Mehrle, 46, Cape Girardeau, Brunson Hollingsworth, 39, Hillsboro; and James Watson, 39, Barnhart.

Alternates chosen were Bill Stacey, 33, of Cape Girardeau; Harry Peterson, 40, Flta River; and Mrs. Faye Romburg, 59, Farmington.

Stoddard County Delegates C.H. Parsons was nominated as a national delegate and Gene Shane of Butler County and Jim Metzler, a teenager from Perry County, were nominated as alternates. They were described by party regulars as being "Burlison People."

Party irregulars did not fair well in other conventions around the state either. Party leaders were able to keep 44 of the 55 delegate seats in their hands. The 11 seats they lost went for presidential candidate Den. George McGovern of South Dakota.

The state's 73-member delegation will be completed with the naming of 18 at-large delegates at the state convention June 10 in Jefferson City.

Hearns set the pace for the district conventions by taking a non-committed stance after Sen. Edmund Muskie withdrew from the Presidential race.

The governor said most Missouri Democrats know the "National campaign remains uncertain and could undergo many changes before the July 10 convention at Miami Beach."

In some areas, young party members stormed the ward meetings on behalf of McGovern, but found their strength diluted by the time they got to the district conventions.

Burlison failed to swing the Cape Girardeau County delegation over to this side. The Cape Girardeau delegation was crucial for Burlison. Without it he was without leverage in the convention.

Ed Downs, Cape Girardeau attorney and county Democratic chairman, said Burlison failed because party workers resented a government official, even a congressman, meddling in their affairs. It also shows, he said that a group of people can't come in at the last minute and take control of the party.

Burlison was believed planning to throw his support to either Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas or McGovern.

While the irregulars failed in most areas they succeded in capturing the St. Louis 2nd District where they elected six delegates and four alternates. Three more McGovern backers were elected from the 6th District at St. Joseph, where the delegation was split.

Women landed only 16 of the 55 delegates seats making their best showing in Kansas City where five of the six 5th Distirct delegates are women.

Only one woman, Mrs. Romburg, was elected as either a delegate or alternate in the 10th distirct.

Jail Time Credit Denied Slayer

NEW MADRID — Dan W. Gray, serving a 60-year sentence for the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Cletus Phillips in 1960, was denied credit Monday for 441 days he claims he spent in jail before and after his trial and before he was sentenced.

Circuit Judge William H. Billings denied Gray's motion. Gray said he has served 12 years and three months with merit time earned.

If given credit for the 441 days, it would enable him to be eligible for parole when he had credit for serving one third of his term.

The Missouri Supreme Court has upheld Gray's conviction and sentence.

New Madrid Medical Poverty Pocket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three areas in Missouri and one in Kansas are among 122 in the nation designated by the governmnet as medical poverty pockets eligible for low-cost treatment by federal doctors, nurses and dentists.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Tuesday 152 physicians, 20 dentists, 72 nurses and 44 other health professionals will be assigned to the selected areas in 39 states and the District of Columbia in July after further assessment of local needs.

In Missouri the areas are Kansas City, Mountain View and New Madrid, and in Kansas it is Louisburg.

Fees will be charged on the basis of ability to pay. Treatment will be free to many patients. Since the personnel is salaried, any fees will go to the government.

Pointing to low incomes and high crime rates that apparently have caused professional shortages, the federal government says it will provide 122 areas of the country with low-cost medical and dental aid.

Fees will be charged on the basis of ability to pay, and treatment will be free to many poor patients - mostly minority group members.

The entire state of Alaska will receive the low-cost assistance, HEW said.

HEW said the program is funded by approximately $15 million this year under the 1970 Emergency Health Personnel Act and an identical amount requested for fiscal 1973.

Reclaiming Land Part Of Mining Process

By DENISE BLANKENSHIP

BENTON — Land adjacent to Highway 61 four miles south of Benton exposed by stripmining for clay, is being reclaimed.

The mining and reclaiming are by A.P. Green Refractories Co., Oran division. Eddie Hanstein, plant manager, explained the reclaiming process.

"As each new pit is opened up for mining, the overburden (earth) removed is placed in the adjacent pit. It's a process of digging out and refilling."

A problem was created with the first pit-there wasn't any pit to receive the overburden. So it was piled up, creating an unsightly 15-foot mound of raw earth.

What remains of that dirt pile is now a ridge, bulldozed into shape and covered with vegetation. The ridge hides another open pit, partially filled with stagnant water. This pit will be filled as soon as mining starts on an adjacent area.

Another pit exposed by strip mining adjacent to Highway 61 also has been partly reclaimed. The high ridge piled up has been graded back, leaving a sloping hillside. This has been seeded but Hanstein said "if it doesn't rain soon we'll have to reseed."

The past pit also presents a problem because there won't be any overburden left to fill it. Hanstein said the last pit would "probably be allowed to fill with water and then be stocked with fish."

Of the 400 acres available for mining "only a dent has been made so far," Hanstein said. "What happens to this land after we've removed all the clay won't have to be settled in my lifetime."

Besides reclaiming problems the company has until the first part of October to comply with state pollution controls. Citing the problem of uncertainty about what these controls would require, Hanstein doesn't think the plant will meet the deadline.

"The equipment has been ordered but I doubt if it will get here on time," he said. "We are attempting compliance and I think that will be taken into consideration."

Pollution devices include a dust collector which is nearing installation.

A.P. Green produces high refractory and absorbent material.

With central headquarters in Mexico, Mo., the company has a branch called the prospect department. It takes care of obtaining mining permits, points out the best areas to mine, grades the clay mined on quality and sees that proper mining operations are carried out.

The Oran plant mines only three to four months a year. The rest of the time time Hanstein supervises the manufacture of herbicide and pesticide carriers and cat litter.

These products require high grade clay because of its absorbency.

When its mined, layer after layer of earth is stripped away until a vein is exposed. The clay is then stockpiled in mounds and covered until it is needed.

Mining operations will resume in two weeks.

COMMON SENSE
AND DDT

The recent decision ruling that the benefits of DDT far outweigh the risks, and that the government reverse its ban on this valuable pesticide, is a finding to be commended by all of us. After years of strident argument for banning DDT, a governmental inquiry under the direction of Edmund Sweeney for the first time heard all the evidence pro and con. The result, that followed seven months of testimony, clearly shows that DDT is a highly beneficial compound — it has saved more lives than all the wonder drugs combined — and that it presents no threat to man or the environment. The forces noisily arrayed against DDT have had their day in court and lost. As Nobel Prize winner Dr. Norman Borlaug, recently summed it up, "The evidence is all in. The report wrote itself." Now it is up to Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus, who appointed Mr. Sweeney for the task, to confirm the recommendation and reverse the unwarranted ban on DDT.

We happen to be among those who believe that the replacement of J. Edgar Hoover as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will be the most difficult selection made by a President and confirmed by the U. S. Senate.

Despite recent critics of Mr. Hoover and the FBI, this single man moulded the finest law investigation and enforcement organization that hasn't been matched -- yet he kept it from becoming a national police force to be used as a political tool. Also, it was Hoover's plan to assist and to train the local policemen which upgraded law enforcement in every city and state across the nation.

We agree that no public servant is indispensable, but a man of Hoover's caliber doesn't appear on the scene in every generation, unfortunately.

As another editor said: "The chances are that the FBI has already passed its 'Shining Hour'."

A SECOND
REVOLUTION?

At a time of great delicacy for Russian imperial policies, when Leonid Brezhnev has spoken openly and nervously about a secret Sino-American entente, samizdat power has achieved the release of some of its more prominent people.

Intelligence Digest's information from Moscow sources makes it clear that the regime is backing away from the discredited methods of repression, although not of course from its attempt. Its Jewish victims, in particular, hope for little mercy. But samizdat, and the samizdat journal (the so-called Chronicle of Current Events, now being translated and published outside Russia) is now a very live and potent force in Russian political life.

No Soviet leader can go to the conference table, and no KGB prison hospital orderly can torment a university professor, or tie up a drugged boy in wet canvas, without a thought to those all-seeing, all-knowing, all-telling typists in back rooms and attics and basements, and to those shorthand note-takers and couriers who flit from office to prison, to courtroom, to classroom, to hiding place, to hospital, to meeting.

There are too many of them, they are too intelligent, they know too much of the weaknesses of the Soviet bureaucracy (and to some extent staff it) to be caught and muzzled by policemen whose tradition is circumscribed by cellars and guns and manacles.

All this is some achievement, and should be fully recognized.

These reports are titled "Revolt in Russia," and rebel after rebel has been at pains to point out that the movement is non-violent. All the same, Intelligence Digest observes that it is more than just a classic, middle-class movement.

Andrei Amalrik was asked in 1970 if he thought there would be a "second Russian revolution." He replied:

"I don't think there is any such possibility at the moment. But in ten or fifteen years' time, as I have written, such a possibility may emerge and a revolution will take place. But what kind of revolution it will be and whether the regime produced by the revolution will be better than the one we live under now I do not know, of course."

A few weeks later, on May 21, he was arrested.

The "New Left" in the West presents a sorry picture, set beside the heroism of Russia's educated underground. The samizdat movement is outside all their reckoning. Where they are clamant, indeed raucous, the Russian rebels are almost muted in their dedication to sane and reasonable argument. Where the New Left leaders garner all the publicity for themselves that money can reward, the Soviet rebels go to prison, and worse, for their friends.

The Angela Davises face the softest justice in the world, and the Press of many nations fawns upon them. The Soviet dissidents, while their cause is just, and their friends are many, move through a tunnel of darkness without a weapon between them. Theirs is not the brotherhood of Soledad.

For the Old Left, the seedily treacherous, fellow-traveling friends of Stalin's Russia, who once made all the running in every "progressive" department of western life, and whose dead hand is still felt on much of western politics, education, and art, and new Russian rebels have nothing but contempt.

For the rebels, there is no going back. Something very big has started on its way. It is firmly founded on a base of complete political and intellectual honesty. For those who consider that truth has survival power, it is good to know that it has Russian witnesses of obvious courage.

The intellectual protest movement has moved into position against an entire empire and its system. In Russia itself, not a single shot has been fired. But the present success of the revolt can be measured in the back-tracking statements of Soviet officialdom, the release of prisoners, and the current inertia in Russian foreign policy.

The movement's future success could be immeasurable, which may well affect the course of history.

HONORED DEAD
STILL LIVE

Any American serviceman who gives his life at his country's request deserves to be remembered with honor.

Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, which began 104 years ago with the gracious custom of Southern ladies decorating the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers, now honors our dead of all wars.

While the observance has become more of a holiday associated with picnics and outings, rather than a day hallowed by the debt owed to fallen heroes, the real significance should not be forgotten.

Those who are vociferous in condemning their country's involvement in Vietnam should pause on this day to join those who feel otherwise in honoring the brave men who have given their lives.

Memorial Day is a day for respectful recollection, not for shrill attacks on policy.

A NO. 1
INDUSTRY PROBLEM

What's the biggest security problem in industry today? Espionage by competitors? Bomb threats? Riots?

None of these. According to a nationwide survey by the American Society for Personnel Administration in co-operation with the Bureau of National Affairs, the No. 1 headache is still theft — most often theft by employes. Vandalism comes second in frequency, bomb scares are third and drug abuse is fourth.

To get an indication of current polices and practices in industrial security, the two organizations polled a cross-section of companies in a variety of industries. Responses were received from 176 of them — 63 per cent manufacturing, 25 per cent nonmanufacturing and 12 per cent governmental and nonprofit concerns.

Security problems have brought many changes in company policies. The survey found that practices include:

. Lie Detector Tests — 20 per cent of the large companies (more than 1,000 employes) use them.

. Package Checks — 40 per cent of the large companies and 20 per cent of the small companies (fewer than 1,000 employes) have initiated them.

. Identification Badges — 50 per cent of the large companies use them.

. Electronic Surveillance — 30 per cent of the large companies use it in high risk areas. This includes closed-circuit television.

Moral deterioration, less respect for authority and greater instability among today's employes were some of the explanations offered by personnel executives for the increased need for security programs.

On the encouraging side, however, while just under half of the companies said that employe theft was a relatively frequent occurrence, more than half reported it was rarely, if ever, a problem for them.

This year, 1972, may be remembered as the year of consumer revolution.

One advertising executive has said it may represent the beginning of a new era in advertising. "It will separate real advertising from slush."

Every indicator of consumer buying potential shows that the consumer has more disposable income than at anytime in history.

If his buying seems slow in some areas, it is because the consumer is more discriminating than ever. He is buying more from head and less from heat of emotions.

"The consumer has become cynical to appeals to vanity, status, fear, and pseudo - happiness. Now he looks for value," the executive said.

This opinion is confirmed by the increasing profits of great retail stores which depend primarily upon newspaper advertising for sales. Their quarterly financial statements reflect no sign of recession.

Newspaper advertising is a straight appeal to the intellect. When it offers value, the offer is based on complete information from which the newly sophisticated consumer can make a solid decision.

Merchants who recognize this unique quality of local newspaper advertising yet flourish.

SACRED COW

The nationally known economist and columnist for Newsweek magazine, Dr. Milton Friedman, is one of the few individuals that has had the temerity to stick a needle in the balloon of that sacred cow, the U. S. Social Security System. He calls the manner in which the system is presented: "... an egregious example of misleading advertising."

Dr. Friedman takes a widely circulated booklet of the U. S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare and shows how the statements contained therein are grossly deceptive. For isntance, the booklet says, "The basic idea of social security is a simple one: During working years employees, their employers, and self-employed people pay social security contributions which are pooled in special trust funds. When earning stops or are reduced because the worker retires, dies, or becomes disabled, monthly cash benefits are paid to replace part of the earnings the family has lost." As Prof. Friedman points out, labeling payroll taxes as contributions is like saying compulsory means voluntary. And, as for trust funds, they are a joke. Says Prof. Friedman, "The fact is that currently collected taxes are being used to pay current benefits. No trust fund in any meaningful sense is being accumulated." He calls the social security system a one-sided "compact between the generations." He likens the "trust fund" to a "chain letter," that old fad of a number of years ago that paid off for the early starters and left late comers holding the bag.

Concludes Dr. Friedman of social security, "I know of no greater triumph of imagination packaging and Madison Avenue advertising."

ADVERTISING IS ESSENTIAL

The notion that advertising, which helps to promote high-volume, low-cost sales, is a charge against consumers is taken to task by a representative of a typical power company, who explains why his company believes in advertising. He observes: "Advertising helps my company provide one of the highest energy consumption states in the nation the best possible utility service at the lowest possible cost. In order to operate economically, we must build load in off-peak periods of the day and off-peak seasons of the year to fill in the valleys. Otherwise facilities and equipment would be sitting idle much of the time, and the average cost of producing a unit of energy would go up. The result would be lower operating efficiency for us and higher rates for our customers."

It is easy to talk about eliminating a service or a functioning part of production, and distribution -- such as advertising -- without pausing to think of the consequences. The theory that a better life can be achieved by slowing down the mechanism that has given our country a record standard of living is ill-founded and unworkable. It actually poses a threat to long-term environmental goals. Criticism of utility advertising out of concern for the environment is a disservice to future generations.

Again, in the words of the utility representative, "Power generation causes only a very small per cent of air pollution. As new, more efficient plants are built that percentage is dropping... The fact is more energy is needed to undertake the tremendous environmental house-cleaning job that needs to be done. All of these environmental clean-up devices are powered by electricity or natural gas." And advertising is one of the tools that has lifted the art of producing energy to a point where it is the ally, rather than the enemy, of environmentalism.

TACT is a priceless quality in good human relations. Whenever you find anyone who is outstandingly successful and popular, you will find a person who is outstandingly tactful. Tact is merely doing things in the way the other person would like them done, rather than in the way you yourself would do them if you had only yourself to please. Watch your tact -- and watch your influence over others rise.

The greatest forces in the universe are never spectacular. Summer showers are more effective than hurricanes, but they get no publicity. The world would soon die but for the fidelity, loyalty, and consecration of those whose names are unsung. There is, therefore, no life, however humble, but may take its place in the building of a better and more beautiful tomorrow. It is so easy to exaggerate the importance of the important and to underestimate the importance of the unimportant!

Just after Luke was admitted to the hospital, he heard a knock on the door of his room. He called out for whoever it was to come in. A snappy little woman entered and told him that she was his doctor.

"Take your clothes off," Luke asked her if she meant all of them and she told him that is just what she meant.

So he took off all his clothes and she examined him completely from top to bottom. When she got through she announced, "You may get into bed. Do you have any questions?"

"Just one," said Luke. "Why did you bother to knock?"

STEEL INVESTS OVER
$½ BILLION TO STEM
AIR—WATER POLLUTION

Since 1966, domestic steelmakers put more than a half a billion dollars worth of new air and water pollution control equipment into operation. They have budgeted an additional third of a billion dollars for other environmental protection facilities for 1972 or beyond, according to the Iron and Steel Institute.

Firms producing about 98 per cent of the nation's iron and steel started up a record $166,385,000 worth of environmental quality control facilities during 1971, bringing the five year total up to $556,559,000.

All told, the industry has spent more than $1 billion for air and water cleansing facilities in the past 20 years. Steel industry experts estimate that every year it costs 10 per cent of original investment just to maintain and operate these facilities.

U.S. LIVES AT STAKE

The Joint Chiefs of Staff and our most capable military leaders should be given authority to make the tactical decisions in the war operations in South Vietnam and Indochina. The lives and safety of our remaining U.S. troops now trying to withdraw from South Vietnam are at stake.

The communists have had sanctuaries from which to kill U.S. and other non-communist soldiers in various parts of the world ever since the end of World War II. Political decisions have prevented attacks on these sanctuaries at the cost of thousands of anti-communist lives and billions of dollars in resources.

Communist dictators have grown to depend upon U.S. commanders being handcuffed in meeting Red invasions. Like wise, these communist butchers depend upon having the U.S. prevent attacks on communist sanctuaries by other nations, as we protect Red China from attacks from Nationalist Chinese forces and protect North Korea from attacks by South Korea. When the communist dictators are ready, they will invade Nationalist China and South Korea and play Uncle Sam for a sucker again.

Our future policies in Korea, Indochina and the rest of the Orient should be decided by the best military minds in the United States. It is not military men who get us into no-win wars; it is appointees in high positions and short-sighted office holders who disregard the good counsel of generals like MacArthur and those he trained. Our Republic is worth saving and we should organize and joyfully set about doing it. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In the impoverished little land of Paraguay, there is an old saying about dictator Alfredo Stroessner that "never a bird falls without his knowing about it."

This reputed omniscience has kept the burly El Presidente in full control of Paraguay for 18 years while his opponents have died mysteriously or fled into exile.

Thus,the American embassy in Asuncion was astonished when Stroessner, of all people, confessed to our ambassador, Raymond Ylitalo, that he would like more information about the narcotics traffic in Paraguay. Stroessner claimed he wanted to stamp it out.

The efficient Ylitalo forwarded the request to the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency obligingly included it in a detailed, secret summary of drug operations in Paraguay.

The memo declared that Stroessner was up to his jackboots in smuggling, though there was no proof he dealt in drugs. His tight little dictatorship, however, was described as "the Heroin Crossroads of South America," with much of the dope going to the United States.

We published the secret details on April 22. The dictator promptly sent word to us through his ambassador to Washington , Dr. Roque Avila, that he was surprised at the allegations and asked for the names of those behind Paraguay's drug trade.

We have now supplied Avila with the names. The CIA memo, for instance, mentioned a "secret police" official who reportedly was "heavily involved in the (drug) traffic." The CIA didn't name him, but we told Avila the suspect is none other than Stroessner's trusted Chief of Investigative Police, Pastor Coronel.

The CIA also alleged -- again without names — that "two.....important generals" were deep in narcotics.

We identified one as Gen. Andres Rodriguez, the sternly handsome commander of 3,000 American-equipped troops based near Asuncion. His troops stand guard over contraband warehouses, and he controls aircraft for smuggling.

The other is Gen. Patricio Colman, a light infantry commander, whose troops put down an armed liberation movement in 1960, slicing off tongues, ears, heads and other parts of prisoners. Colman thereafter gained a smuggling franchise, considerable wealth and control of cross-country bus lines.

We have also uncovered the identities of other high Paraguayan figures, who are directly controlled by Stroessner, are responsible for the drug trade. These men, whose names we have also given Avila, include:

-- Sabino Augusto Montanaro, gray-haired interior secretary, and his right-hand man, National Police Chief Gen. Francisco Britez. No large-scale dope trade in land-locked Paraguay would be possible without their acquiescence.

-- General Leodegar Cabello,the spiffily uniformed defense minister, who is aware of the narcotics dealings of Generals Rodriguez and Colman and is suspected of sharing their loot.

-- General German Martinez, a pale, garrulous artillery commander who controls contraband in and around Paraguari. With his smuggling proceeds, he has purchased model farms and raises thoroughbred cattle.

-- Vice Admiral Hug o Gonzalez, chief of Paraguay's river gunboat navy, who earned his exalted rank by baby-sitting Stroessner's children. His gunboats protect the dope trade along the Paraguay and Parana rivers separating Paraguay from Brazil and Argentina.

-- Air Force chief Gen. Vicente Quinonez who supervises Asuncion airport and dozens of smaller fields. These are also used for drug transshipments.

-- Raul Sapena Pastor, the secretary of state, who personally approves every official and diplomatic passport. He has granted passports to known smugglers. Even diplomatic pouches are used for smuggled goods.

These are some of the names my associate, Les Whitten, provided Ambassador Avila during an hour-long meeting with him at the modest Paraguayan embassy. The envoy insisted he knew nothing about their alleged dope activities.

Footnote: On March 20, President Nixon called narcotics America's "number one domestic problem." Three days later, the United States gave 12 helicopters to Paraguay. U.S. Military aid to the "Heroin Crossroads of South America" runs around $2 million a year.

CONNALLY'S MISSION

Sources close to Treasury Secretary John Connally say his secret mission after leaving the cabinet will be to rally the Lyndon Johnson wing of the Democratic Party into the Nixon camp in November.

Richrd Nixon and John Connally have developed a close personal bond. Both are backroom operators and political infighters. They practice the same pragmatic politics.

During their political bull sessions, Nixon and Connally foresaw the increasing possibility that George McGovern could win the Democratic presidential nomination.

This would alienate ex-President Lyndon Johnson, volunteered Connally.

But he said JBJ would not break formally with the party that had made him President. Those privy to the Nixon-Connally discussions tell us that Connally has agreed to use his LBJ credentials to recruit disaffected Democratics from the Johnson fold on to the Nixon bandwagon.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a professional football coach gets tired of hearing:

"As players, we think we ought to have two coffeebreaks in each game."

"The trouble with your team, Butch McGurgle, is that you have only two kinds of players—those who have brains but no brawn and those who have brawn but no brains."

"You know, when you boil all your troubles down, you've got only one single basic problem— how to win football games. Doesn't that kind of help simplify your thinking?"

"As players, we think you should give us a written guarantee that no one has to play if he has one or more broken bones."

"I told the quarterback you wanted him but he says he's too busy to talk to you now. He's posing for a cover for TV Guide."

"I think we'll have the team pretty well balanced racially, coach, if you can just scrounge us up a go od Chinese center You know there are 150,000 Chinese living in our metropolitan area."

"You can get a pension in Manhattan for sweeping up garbage for only 20 years. As players, we think we're entitled to one after three years."

"Coach, my editor has thought up a swell idea for a woman's page feature this season. He wants you to get your wife to write a bylined article after each game criticizing the plays you called."

"As players, we think any of the guys who go through an entire game without getting hurt ought to get a $50 bonus. Think of the hospital bills you'd save if everybody was just a little bit more careful."

"Coach, I promised my wife and kids you'd put me in for at least the last quarter of the game this week. You're not going to make a liar out of me, are you?"

"Yeah, I admit you won, Butch, but just winning alone isn't everything. I lost my shirt betting you'd take them by sixpoints and you only nosed them out by two."

"Well, you're the coach, Butch, but as players we think—"

Deadline May Be Met, Ford Hints

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has hinted it could, with help from the Environmental Protection Agency, meet its September deadline for 1973 model cars despite an EPA order that it retest engine emission controls.

The implication that Ford may stay on model-introduction schedule came only a day after board chairman Henry Ford II said the company was "in one hell of a lot of trouble" and raised the possibility of a long shutdown and massive layoffs while the retesting was completed.

The possibility of a solution to the problem also was suggested by an EPA spokesman who said, "Obviously, we do not want to shut down Ford for four months."

Jack Conmy, special assistant to EPA Director William D. Ruckelshaus, said the agency's attorneys are examining the matter and expect to have some suggestions within a few days.

The giant auto maker said late Tuesday that some of its employes apparently withheld information which should have been included in emissions-certification applications to the EPA.

Air Hijacker Shot To Death

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — A group of soldiers slipped through the baggage compartment of a hijacked Ecuadorian airliner Tuesday and machine-gunned the hijacker to death. It was the second time this month air piracy has been thwarted with gunfire.

The hijacker, an Ecuadorian named Lomas, took over the Electra turboprop shortly after it left Quito for Guayaquil.

He forced the plane to return to Quito where he threatened to blow up the aircraft unless he got $40,000 ransom and a parachute. But he let the passengers get off.

Troops surrounded the plane. Nearly six hours later, some of the soldiers entered through the luggage compartment and killed Lomas with a burst of fire from their machine guns. The pilot, Fernando Valdivieso, was reported slightly injured.

The shooting of the Ecuadorian hijacker resembled the ending two weeks ago of the hijacking of a Belgian jetliner by four Arab guerrillas who held 97 persons hostage aboard the plane at Tel Aviv Airport. Israeli paratroopers got into the plane, killed two of the hijackers and wounded a woman guerrilla and two passengers.

Smiling Bremer Pleads Innocent

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)-Arthur H. Bremer pleaded innocent today in U.S. District Court to federal charges in the May 15 shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and three other persons at a political rally.

The 21-year old unemployed busboy appeared relaxed and smiled several times during the 16-minute hearing before Chief Judge Edward S. Northrup.

Bremer replied in a strong voice to Northrup's formal questions concerning his name, age, attorney, education and whether he understood the four charges against him contained in an indictment handed down Tuesday by a federal grand jury.

The defendant, flanked by several security guards, stood before Northrup as his courtappointed attorney, Benjamin Lipsitz of Baltimore entered the innocent plea.

Bremer, who also faces state charges, was accused in the federal indictment of shooting a presidential candidate, assaulting a Secret Service agent assigned to protect Wallace, illegally bringing a .38-caliber revolver from Wisconsin to Maryland and using the weapon to commit a felony.

Northrup granted the defense 30 days to file pretrial motions and said the government would get an additional five days to respond. The judge said he would then hold a prompt hearing on the motions and set a trial date "as expeditiously as possible.i.

The arraignment took place in a heavily guarded courtroom packed with about 90 newsmen and spectators who were required to undergo an electronic search before being admitted. Everyone was required to remain seated while Bremer was led to and from the room by a phalanx of FBI agents and deputy U.S. marshals.

The FBI said early today that it had secretly moved Bremer from the Baltimore County Jail to an undisclosed location to await arraignment.

The 21-year-old Milwaukee man was named Tuesday in indictments returned by a federal grand jury in Baltimore and a state grand jury in Prince Georges County, where the shootings occurred.

He was charged in the federal indictment with shooting a candidate for public office, illegally bringing a .38-caliber revolver from Wisconsin to Maryland, using the weapon to commit a felony and assaulting a federal officer—a Secret Service agent assigned to protect Wallace as he campaigned for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Three of the four federal charges carry maximum sentences of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fines. The fourth—using the weapon in a felony—could bring a sentence of from one to 10 years.

The state indictments accuse Bremer of two common law crimes, attempted murder and assault and battery; two felonies, assault with intent to murder and assault with intent to maim; and two gun law violations.

There was no indication when he would be arraigned on the state charges.

Arthur Marshall, the state's attorney for Prince Georges County, said the common law crimes carry no fixed penalty and could result in a death sentence, but he said capital punishment has never been imposed in a case where a victim survived.

"What we're talking about is a practical maximum sentence of 30 years or so on each of the four indictments," Marshall said.

Wallace Sorry Campaigning Ended

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama talked to reporters today for the first time since he was shot a politicaly rally May 15 and said he was "sorry" it has to end this way."

Apparently he was referring to his active speech-making campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination. He has been quoted previously as saying he intends to take part in the Democratic convention at Miami Beach.

Wallace' s voice was low and husky and sometimes it was a little difficult for him to talk. He smiled frequently during the interview as his wife Cornelia, his two daughters and son looked on.

One reporter told Wallace that he thought the governor looked good. "You think so," said Wallace. "They say I'm doing real good."

He said he was "sorry it has to end this way. There won't be any more speeches for you fellows," he told the newsmen.

"That's all right, George," interjected Cornelia laughingly. "They're all the same anyway. Everybody knows the punch lines."

Wallace said that he feels good and reporters who had been on the campaign trail with him agreed that his facial color looks good but that sometimes his voice was not as strong as normal.

Wallace praised the hospital and the doctors who have taken care of him since the assassination attempt at narby Laurel, Md., and said, "If anything is going to happen to you be sure it is near Holy Cross Hospital."

Asked by a reporter if he wanted to return to Alabama soon, Wallace replied: "You always want to be home but I want to be here the proper length of time."

Wallace was awakened today to be told he finished second in the Oregon presidential primary. "Oh, that's great!" he said.

Doctors at Holy Cross Hospital where Wallace is being treated for gunshot wounds, said at a briefing that over the past 24 hours the governor has shown a "marked improvement" in his over-all general condition.

Sen. George McGovern won Oregon's Democratic presidential primary by capturing half the votes in an 11-man field.

Police Chief Helps Pull Daughter From River

Greenwood was at the scene as a crane lifted the vehicle from the water with his daughter's body inside

The chief didn't know that it was his daughter and his car which were involved until after the vehicle had been lifted from the river.

Two witnesses who were fishing off the bridge said they were nearly hit by Miss Greenwood's car as it crashed through a guard railing.

The witnesses, who weren't identified, told police Miss Greenwood's car and another were both northbound toward Rock Island when they collided on U.S. Highway 67.

The car went out of control and through guard railing on the west side of the bridge, witnesses said. The accident occurred about 8:35 p.m.

McGovern Easy Victor In Rhode Island And Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, an overwhelming victor in the Rhode Island and Oregon Democratic primaries, heads south today to battle Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in California's June 6 showdown.

McGovern takes the momentum he sought, and he says that if he can win California with its 271 delegates, he might be able to wrap up the Democratic presidential nomination before the national convention opens July 10 in Miami Beach, Fla.

The two victories Tuesday gave McGovern 56 more delegates — 22 in Rhode Island, 34 in Oregon — and he added 11 more from Missouri district meetings to swell his first-place total to 502½ of the 1,509 votes needed to capture the nomination.

In Rhode Island, where the South Dakota senator never campaigned but relied on his usual spirited volunteer organization and appearances by his wife Eleanor, he polled 41 per cent of the vote. McGovern's total was more than the combined sum for Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and Hubert H. Humphrey, who finished second and third.

In Oregon, where he was the only major candidate to campaign, McGovern's percentage hovered at about 50 per cent in an 11-candidate field. Gov. George C. Wallace, beneficiary of a substantial media campaign, while still hospitalized after being shot eight days ago, was a surprisingly strong second, with Humphrey third.

President Nixon easily won the Republican primaries in the two states.

"We have lots to celebrate tonight," McGovern told 500 cheering supporters at a downtown Portland hotel, "and two weeks from tonight, I want you to know we are planning a great celebration in the state of California."

Asked if he thought he could go to Miami Beach with the nomination wrapped up, McGovern said that "depends largely on whether we win in California two weeks from tonight." He added: "I expect to win in California after a hard effort."

He planned to fly to Sacramento to start his California drive with a speech to a Press Club luncheon on the problems of Mexican-Americans, the largest minority group in the state.

Like Humphrey, he pledged to appoint a Spanish-speaking American to his Cabinet and said he would fill California's first federal judicial vacancy with a Mexican-American.

Humphrey, already campaigning in California after conceding Oregon in advance to McGovern, congratulated his rival but said "California is a separate arena all to itself."

McGovern decided to contest the Rhode Island primary only after Muskie dropped his active primary campaigning last month. Humphrey made a campaign appearance there last Wednesday, and Muskie dropped in for a speech Friday to demonstrate that he was still a presidential candidate.

The Maine senator did fairly well in Providence, where Mayor Joseph Doorley was a leading supporter, but McGovern scored heavily in suburban towns and cities.

As in Oregon, Wallace used television and radio advertising to register a relatively strong showing in a state where he did poorly as a third- party candidate in the 1968 presidential election.

In Oregon, McGovern had spent four days campaigning during the past week, urging his supporters to give him a big majority that would spur his California drive. In the closing days of the campaign, he said "it would be a wonderful thing" if his Oregon percentage surpassed the 51.3 per cent peak he achieved four weeks ago in Massachusetts.

Incomplete returns indicate he would probably fall a bit short of that.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts — a noncandidate who lost a court fight to have his name removed from the ballot— and Muskie each polled about 3 per cent.

In winning the two Republican primaries, which netted him 8 delegates in Rhode Island and 18 in Oregon, President Nixon easily turned back challenges from Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey Jr. of California, who dropped his antiwar presidential campaign two months ago but remained on the ballots, and Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, a conservative who has been campaigning in California.

In Oregon's Senate races, Republican Sen. Mark O. Hatfield swept to easy renomination for a second term and will face former Sen. Wayne Morse, who won the Democratic nomination over former Rep. Robert Duncan and two other candidates.

In Kentucky, which chose nominees for the seat for retiring GOP Sen. John Sherman Cooper, former Gov. Louie B. Nunn easily won the Republican nomination and Walter "Dee" Huddleston, a close ally of Gov. Wendell Ford, took the Democratic primary.

In Missouri, 55 delegates to the Democratic National convention were picked at congressional district meetings. Besides the 11 for McGovern, 38 uncommitted delegates were chosen in line with the wishes of Gov. Warren Hearnes, an early Muskie backer.

The other six delegates were being chosen from a predominantly black St. Louis district.

Boy Charged In Girl's Death

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police said today they were holding a 15year-old St. Louis boy who has admitted the fatal beating of a teen-age girl.

The body of Lana Eichler, 18, was found in a neighbor's apartment Monday in South St. Louis.

Police said the boy was being held on a charge of violating the juvenile code by murder.

Miss Eichler lived with her father, Edward Eichler, who said he last talked to his daughter Sunday night. He said that when she did not appear Monday, he filed a missing persons report.

Police said Miss Eichler was severely beaten on the head and body with a blunt object.

Mother Has Right To Say No To Motorcycle Ride

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year -old daughter has been dating a 19-year -old boy for the past year. Jim is a fine young man, a good student and a careful driver. Jim announced a few days ago that he has purchased a motorcycle. Our daughter expects to ride with him.

I have good reason to fear motorcycles. A neighbor's daughter was in a motorcycle accident a few months ago and she will never walk or talk again.

I told our daughter we will not allow her to ride on Jim's motorcycle and she is very upset. She assures me that Jim will handle the motorcycle and she with extreme caution. She also says if she is not permitted to ride with him he will drop her.

I don't want to lose a lovely daughter, either on a motorcycle or through lack of communication or understanding, but I know that if I say yes my heart will be in my mouth every minute she is away from home. Do I have the right to say No. ---Lavonia, Mich. Mother

Dear Mother: You do and I hope you will.

The National Safety Council has some blood-chilling statistics on the annual carnage resulting from motorcycle accidents. You have every right to be apprehensive. If Jim dumps your daughter because she had the good sense to respect her parents' wishes, he was no bargain. (P.S. To all you cycle fans who may be angered by my answer, please save your stamps. My stand is irreversible.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell everybody who reads English that when they reach a wrong number THEY are inconveniencing someone -- it's not the other way around. Moreover, they have no right to ask, "Who is this?"

Several months ago I was the victim of a wrong number. When asked, "Who is this," I refused to say. This so angered the questioner that she called four to five times every night for months my husband and I lost a great deal of sleep because of that woman's rudeness.

The proper procedure, when one believes he has reached a wrong number, is to say, "I'm calling the Soandso's residence for Soandso Soandso. Do I have the right number?" This does not require that the party on the other end reveal his identity.

Thank you, Ann, for performing a useful service. -- Hackles Up in Buffalo.

Dear Hack: Most people, when they reach a wrong number, will continue to ask, "Who is this?" I suggest that the person who receives thycall ANSWER the question WITH a question: "Who are you calling?"

Dear Ann Landers: The man I'm going with is 30 years old. His father died when he was 13. His mother won't let him live his own life. The problem is sleeping pills. He eats them like candy. He is in a daze most of the time. His mother's cousin is a druggist and she gets pills for next to nothing -- no prescription. He is also a big beer drinker. I've read in your column that people who take pills should not mix them with liquor because the combination could be deadly. I've clipped those columns and showed them to him. He says beer doesn't count. Is he right? --Belinda

Dear Bel: He's wrong. Beer contains alcohol and if he drinks enough beer he can get just as bombed as if he were drinking gin. Pills and beer can be a lethal combination.

Is pot a drug? Can L.S.D. and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16 cents postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Mrs. Larry Kenneth Richardson

Richardson - Ward

RISCO — Two spiral candlebras flanking an arched brass candlebra with lighted white tapers formed the background for the wedding of Miss Linda Kaye Ward to Larry Kenneth Richardson Saturday at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church.

Two large baskets of white glads, carnations and pompons with five trees of greenery, completed the setting for the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Gene Lancaster, assisted by Rev. Delmar McNeely.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey B. Ward, route three, Portageville, formerly of Risco. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delton L. Richardson of Clarkton.

Miss Martha Fortner, organist, presented pre-nuptial selections, after which the ushers, Lynn Ward and Glenn Ward, of Scott City, cousins of the bride, lit the candles, and laid the bridal carpet.

Miss Sherry Medlin, soloist, accompanied by Miss Phyllis Hon, sang "One Hand, One Heart" prior to the ceremony, and the "Wedding Prayer" following the ceremony as the couple knelt on the brass kneeling bench.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight organza and Chantilly lace. The yoke of the empire bodice was overlaid with lace, and featured a lace mandarin neckline. The Camelot sleeves were capped with lace, with wide lace encircling the full part of the sleeves, and ending with wide lace cuffs. A double row of wide lace also encircled the bottom of the slightly gathered A-line skirt. An organza sash, with a double tailored bow at the center back, emphasized the waistline. A lace motif accented the front sash in the center. The detachable train of organza was edged with matching lace.

Her headpiece was a Camelot cap overlaid with Chantilly lace matching her gown. Crystal teardrops adorned the front along the edge. A three-tiered veil of imported English illusion was attached. She carried a cascade bouquet of off white daisy poms and talisman roses tied with candlelight satin ribbon. Candlelight peau de soie pumps completed the attire.

Mrs. Nancy Sharbutt of Mobile, Alabama, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Janet Woods of St. Louis and Miss Sheila Lancaster of Dexter, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore identical floor length dresses of apricot chiffon over taffeta featuring empire bodice, camelot sleeves and a standup collar. Matching fabric bows formed their headpieces, with illusion attached at the backs. They carried nosegays of orange daisies and glad buds.

Miss Sharon Richardson of Birch Tree, niece of the groom, was flower girl and wore a gown of apricot dotted swiss with matching fabric sash and bow head piece.

Franklin Richardson of Birch Tree, brother of the groom, was best man. Clark Willhite of Holly Grove, Arkansas, and Gary Ward, brother of the bride, were groomsmen.

A reception was held immediately afterwards in the church fellowship hall.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Miss Carole Bone, Miss Cathy Bellingrath and Ron Dobbs, all of Jonesboro, Arkansas, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Seats, Paragould, Ark., Mrs. Mable Mathis, Scott City, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ward, Malden, Mrs. O. E. Rudkin, Gideon, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Ward, DeRhonda and Lisa, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ward and Diane, all of Scott City, Jack Sharbutt, Mobile, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lancaster, Mike and Lisa, Gary Cravens, all of Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Ward, Parma, Mrs. Franklin Richardson and Neil, Birch Tree, and Robert Woods, St. Louis.

The bride is a graduate of Risco high school and is a senior at Arkansas State University, Jonesboro.

The groom is a graduate of Clarkton high school and will graduate in August from Arkansas State University.

He will be a Science instructor at Jonesboro high school this fall.

Scott county residents donated $7,500 during the cancer crusade sponsored by the Business and Professional Womens club. The county was one of seven counties in Missouri to go over its goal.

Mrs. Addie Mae Jones, Scott county crusade chairman, set a goal of $5,000 at the beginning of thedrive.

"This is good news and we are all happy with the generous contributions," Mrs. Jones said. "Congratulations are in order to all the area chairman and a special thanks goes to the hundreds of volunteer workers for their dedicated effort, not only in collecting the funds, but also for helping to educate the public to the fact that we are getting somewhere in the cure of cancer with thousands of lives being saved each year, with early detection and prompt treatment," she added.

THEY LAUGHED WHEN I SAID I COULD LOSE WEIGHT

says Mrs. Ken Schmidt of Norfolk, Neb.

"I was bulging fat. I weighed 205 lbs., ashamed to go swimming or play tennis. Then I heard about X-11 Reducing Plan. When I decided to take off that ugly fat, my friends laughed at me. They said it couldn't be done because they all know how I like to eat."

I LOST 80 LBS.

"Today, my weight is down to 125 pounds. Now even the friends who laughed at me don't recognize me right away. Sometimes they pass me by and then turn around and call me back, I smile, because they just can't believe it's the same old Marge.

NOW YOU, TOO, CAN

EAT WELL ...and lose that fat!

The X-11 Reducing Plan is not a crash or starvation diet. You eat less, but you won't go around hungry. That's because this is a sound method to curb the appetite and still eat 3 satisfying, sensible meals a day — plus snacks. No longer will you be the prisoner of the overeating habit. You eat less — want less. You lose weight ... while you eat well.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that

HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES ...

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores... In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean ... really clean ... refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

No Power Shortage In Region

BLYTHEVILLE – Middle South Utilities System companies anticipate no electric energy shortage in the area served by them, Floyd W. Lewis, president of Middle South Utilities, told stockholders at the 1972 annual meeting today. "Based on our best projections, we fully expect to meet all of the electric energy requirements of our customers and, in addition, to sell sizable blocks of electricity to neighboring utility systems," Lewis stated.

The five operating companies of the Middle South Utilities System — Arkansas-Missouri Power company, Arkansas Power & Light Company, Louisiana Power & Light Company, Mississippi Power & Light Company, New Orleans Public Service, Inc. — provide electric service to 1,222,000 customers in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Southeast Missouri.

In 1971, total electric energy sales by the system were 35 billion kilowatt-hours, Lewis said, and sales are expected to rise to 44 billion kilowatt-hours in 1975.

Lewis reported that growth of customers' requirements for electric service had necessitated large investments in new facilities. "Our construction expenditures for 1972 are estimated at $307 million, and for the next four years, including 1972, we are presently projecting construction expenditures of about $1.3 billion," he stated.

The utility system has nine major generating units slated for operation in the 1973-1980 period with combined capability of 7,925,000 kilowatts, some 70 percent of which will be nuclear-fueled. The system's first nuclear-fueled unit, located near Russellville, Ark., is scheduled for operation the latter part of 1973.

Gerald L. Andrus, chairman of the board of the utility company, told stockholders that for the twelve-month period ended April 30, 1972, compared with the twelve-month period ended April 30, 1971, sales of electric energy to ultimate customers increased 10.9 per cent, electric operating revenues from ultimate customers increased 13.2 per cent, consolidated net income increased 10.4 percent, and earnings per share on average number of shares outstanding increased 6.9 percent.

Heart Attack Early Warning Can Save Time And Lives

CAPE GIRARDEAU — If you experience – and recognize – early warning signs of a heart attack, how long would you hesitate before you seek medical aid?

Seconds; Minutes? An hour? many hours?

Could it be as much as 18 hours?

That's the average delay of decision time, shown by a half-year sampling of 77 heart attack patients at one Missouri hospital.

According to survey figures released by the Missouri Heart Association, you can add an average of 36 minutes to travel the average of 29 miles to reach the hospital.

Frightening significance of the 18- hour average delay is that about a third of heart attack patients do not survive to reach the hospital, according to the Early Warning Signs Physicians' Advisory Committee.

Most of these deaths occur in the first four hours.

Many could have been prevented if victims had reached a hospital, with equipment to control electrically a faulty heart rhythm, medications to correct complications, and personnel trained in a new technique known as external cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

"An 18- hour delay in obtaining help is simply not acceptable," said one physician, "and something must be done about it."

Something was, and is being done about the average 18- hour delay of decision in a rural urban area of Missouri with a population of about a million.

It's a public education program, teaching citizens the early warning signs of heart attack through illustrated newspaper articles, radio and TV spots.

It's a Show-Me product, born in Missouri four years ago, financed by Heart Fund contributions, and given a high priority by the Missouri Heart Association.

Its cost was $16,000 for the first year funding; $5,000 for the second year.

How do you count the cost of a human life saved? You don't, but productivity of someone saved from a fatal or disabling heart attack by the early warning signs project would rather quickly repay society for the modest cost of the program.

The program answers a logical sequel to the opening question in this article:

What ARE the early warning signs of a heart attack?

The Early Warning Signs Physicians' advisory Committee gave these answers

The heart is in the center of the front of the chest.

This is where the warning pain or discomfort of a heart attack most frequently occurs.

Pain may radiate into one both arms, the next most frequently experienced sign.

Pain may extend also to the neck, jaws, upper abdomen, or back.

Pain may occur simultaneously in all these areas, or any one.

There may be a sensation of pressure, fullness, squeezing or aching.

Sweating, shortness of breath, nausea, or vomiting may occur.

Persons experiencing such symptoms are urged to call their physicians. If doctors are not available, they should get to a hospital emergency room by the fastest possible means.

As a reassuring recital of symptoms postscript, one physician cited a common discomfort – often experienced by tense persons – which can be mistaken for a heart attack early warning sign.

He described it as a sharp or jabbing pain and soreness in the area of the left breast, which he said is rarely due to the heart, but still should be investigated by a doctor.

How important are heart attack early warning signs, and being taught to recognize and act on them?

One medical authority is quoted as saying that getting heart patients to the hospital on time will rank in life-saving importance with the spelling out of such heart attack risk factors as smoking, obesity, hypertension, and cholesterol.

COSTLY EDUCATION

HOUSTON (AP) — The Tax Research Association of Houston and Harris County says the cost of educating pupils in public schools in Houston has almost doubled in nine years.

At the present rate of increase, the TRA says, school spending will double in the next five years although enrollment will rise only moderately.

The average cost of educating each pupil in county schools was $666.54 last school year compared to $359.36 in 1961-62, the report said.

Necking Did Not Cause Accident

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Rita was in the middle of a big kiss, sitting on the lap of her boy friend in the back of an automobile when the driver of the vehicle, while making a turn, was suddenly clobbered by another vehicle being operated by Mr. Wimple. Thrown abruptly out of her boy friends lap as the two cars collided, Rita landed in the hospital and sued Mr. Wimple for her injuries.

"I didn't know what happened," she explained to the judge in court. "At first, I thought my boyfriend's kiss had packed one heck of a wallop. Then, I realized we had been smacked by another car."

"A kiss is nothing divided by two," responded Mr. Wimple. And that's exactly what Rita's entitled to collect -- nothing! By sitting on her boy friend's lap and necking with him, she contributed to her own injuries. That bars her recovery."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold that Rita's necking precluded her from collecting for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that since there was no evidence to indicate that Rita had interfered with the operation of the vehicle by necking with her boy friend, there's no basis to find that she contributed to the happening of the accident. Consequently, concluded the judge, she's not barred from collecting for her injuries. (Based upon a 1971 Florida District Court of Appeals Decision)

City Attorney To Leave Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. (AP)—City attorney Howard Wright Jr. announced today he is leaving July 31 to take a similar job in Springfield, Mo.

A search is under way for a replacement.

Bad Luck Hits Calaveras Co. Frog Hop Race

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — After starting out under the threat of bad weather and fear of violence, the 1972 Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee ended in a relaxed atmosphere under sunny skies.

Instead of an expected crowd of 77,000, the three-day event— which doubles as the county fair—drew about 10,000. Officials blamed primarily the bad weather but said publicity about last year's problems with hippies, motorcycle gangs and traffic also played a part in keeping people away.

A frog named Turlylocs leaped 17 feet 11 3/4 inches in three jumps to win the $300 first prize in Sunday's finals, but it was not good enough to top the world record of 19 feet 3 and 1-6 inches set in 1966 by Ripple. A prize of $1,200 awaits the owner whose frog breaks the record.

Soviet Threat Discussed By Winston II

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — The Soviet Union is the mutual enemy of the free Western World and the Peoples Republic of China, Winston Spencer Churchill II, grandson of Sir Winston Churchill, believes.

"At a time when the U.S. is bent on reducing the burden of alliance and protection the Soviet Union shows itself to take them up by establishing colonial-type treaties with Egypt, India and Iraq," he told graduates of Westminster College Sunday.

"This is in marked contrast to the 'stand-on-your-own-feet' doctrine of President Nixon and Chairman Mao Tse-tung and it inevitably presents a grave threat to the independence of the developing nations of the world.

Churchill said the Peoples Republic of China had developed a new attitude toward the U.S. because of the U.S. withdrawal policy in Southeast Asia and because of the buildup of 44 Soviet divisions on its borders.

He drew parallels to the address his grandfather made in Fulton in which he used the term "Iron Curtain.

"Today a quarter of a century after Fulton, we once again stand at a crossroads. For the first time since the early postwar years, a new balance is evolving in the world with the rise of new centers of power in Europe, China and Japan. . . The prospect before us threatens to be 'a struggle for Asia.'"

'Amarillo Slim' World Series Of Poker King

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Thomas Austin "Amarillo Slim" Preston, whose $10,000 gambling stake had dwindled to $1,700, won the "world series of poker" and $60,000 Friday.

Preston, of Amarillo, Tex., was the survivor in a 22-hour contest that started with eight high-stakes poker players.

Preston cleaned out his remaining opponent, Walter Clyde "Pug" Pearson of Nashville, Tenn., with a full house after eight hours of play between them.

Pearson had been playing a tight "grind" game, whittling Preston's pile down with $60 and $1,000 hands.

"I never have nothing in my hand except when there's real money on the table," drawled Amarillo Slim.

During most of the game the black $100 chips moved back and forth across the table in a void of studied silence.

$10,000, began the series with an agreement to play until one player remained with $80,000 and everyone else was broke.

When play broke up for three hours rest early Thursday one of the three remaining players, Adrian "Texas Dolly" Doyle, dropped out, saying he felt dizzy and nauseous.

The other two could have split his $20,000 holdings under the rules but shrugged it off.

"He's a good old boy," said Slim. "I don't take no stake I didn't win."

The game was "Hold-em," variation of seven-card stud. Two cards are dealt face down to each player, five are dealt face-up in the center and the best five-card hand wins.

The figures are from the first report for Missouri which presents detailed statistics on housing for each county.

The report shows that in the county:

The 1970 population was 33,250, with an average of 3.1 persons per housing unit.

There were 10,642 housing units with complete kitchen facilities and 10,276 with complete bathrooms, both for the exclusive use of the households. The number of bedrooms in all housing units ranged from none in 119 units and one in 1,407 units to four or more in 1,055 units.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Chemicals can protect our crops from chemicals, says O. Hale Fletchall, agronomist at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

For many years it has been a goal in weed control research to develop chemicals that would kill weeds without injuring the crops, Fletchall points out. However, his has not always worked. For example, a popular weed control known as EPTC not only controlled weeds in the corn field but killed some of the corn plants, too.

When a protective chemical was added to the seed as a treatment before planting, there was no EPTC damage. A similar result was obtained with grain sorghum.

When EPTC in one field injured 32 percent of the corn plants the final yield was 63 bushels per acre. In a nearby field, a protective chemical known as R-25788 was used with the weed killer. The corn showed no injury and the resulting yield was 88 bushels per acre, Fletchall reports.

Air pollution may interfere with your body's ability to fight off disease and infection, says Dr. Airian Zedarkower of Pennsylvania State University. Normal disease- fighting mechanisms failed to work in mice when Dr. Zedarkower exposed them to typical air pollution.

Here we go again on the diet- causes- cancer battle and this time cholesterol is taking the lumps.

Researchers in half a dozen universities and institutions have pointed accusing fingers at high fat diets. Comparisons have been made with rates of cancer and the diets in Japan, Hawaii, Finland, Ireland, England, and various parts of Africa, Asia, and South America.

According to one now-popular theory, overeating of fat leads to cancer by changing the storage of hormones in fatty tissue. Another theory points to the bacteria in the stomach. In both theories the result is an increase in cancer-causing chemicals in the body.

It almost makes one think that the only way to avoid dying of cancer is to stop eating entirely.

Our Missouri farmers are right up with the farmers across the country when it comes to increasing their output. While other industries are making small gains in what each worker produces, U.S. farmers have been making large gains.

For example, in Missouri between 1965 and 1969, there was only a slight increase in labor used on farms (one percent) while the amount of work accomplished increased by 15 percent. This was revealed in research by Dorwin Williams and Carrol Kirtley, ag economists at the University of Missouri- Columbia. They studied records from a cross-section of larger- than- average Missouri farms.

They found that while the total farm size increased an average of 15 per cent during those four years, the value for an acre increased by an average of 24 percent. It is with production and land value gains like these that the nation's farmers hold food prices down while all but a few other prices are climbing.

Air pollution is becoming worse in ways that can be measured. M. E. Miller of the National Weather Service and some of his colleagues have compared the visibility reported at airports near Akron, O., Lexington, Ky., and Memphis, Tenn. The reports cover the period from 1962 to 1969.

He said that at all three locations the number of occasions on which visibility was less than 6 miles was much greater in 1969 than in 1962. Haziness around the cities was shown to have increased abruptly in 1966. It has continued to increase through 1970, Miller reports.

After attempting to evaluate all possible natural causes for the increased haziness, the conclusion that Miller came to is that the changes are a result of manmade pollution.

"Sure you can quote me. Just don't use my name or anything I said."

? Consumer's Question Box ? By Margaret Dana

Q. Awhile back I bought a pair of blue suede shoes. When I got them I wrote my boy friend's name on them in ink. Last week we broke up and I want to get his name of them. I could not think of anything that would take it off without harming the color. Any suggestions?

A. You are probably right -- anything that removes the ink would probably remove tthe color from the leather. But it depends partly on the kind of ink you used. Some types of ball- point pen ink can be removed by soap and water, used cautiously. But you might try turning the present writing into a decorative scroll -- use pen and ink to draw a little flower and vine in and out of the name so it can no longer be read. And then, before you do it again for some other boy friend, remember that ink lasts longer than some friendships.

Q. Please use this in the Consumer's Question- Box because so many of us want to know the answer. We keep our catsup in the cupboard even when it's been opened. All of our bottles get a darkish tinge on top after awhile. I just shake it and use it. Is this harmful? How long should we keep a catsup bottle, opened, in the cupboard?

A. The acid in the tomato used in such products as catsup tends to preserve the food even when it has been opened and air has gotten inside. The air darkens the surfaces but does not cause spoilage unless left so long that mold develops. Refrigeration is not necessary, but if you plan to keep a bottle of catsup several months refrigeration might be advisable for best storage.

Q. The other day I bought a three- piece suite of furniture from our leading department store. There was no label on it. The clerk said the upholstery was polyester. I asked if I could wash it and she said, "Oh, I'd have it dry- cleaned." Is there any way I can find out what fibers the material is made of so I can tell what to do with it?

A. Most good furniture makers these days supply complete information tags with upholstered furniture with suggestions for methods of care. But knowing the fibers used in the upholstery will not assure you of the best method, since that depends on the finishes given the fabric.

If the dye was meant to withstand water shampoo you're safe in cleaning it with suds. Otherwise have it professionally drycleaned in your home with a solvent. Water must be used cautiously least the fabric shrink. Remember that even though your cushions may have zippers, the manufacturer does not intend you to remove the covers to launder them. The zipper is a method of fitting the upholstery, not intended as an opening.

Q. We are having work done on our house and need a loan for $1,600. We were told to take a Pass Book loan on our own money instead of a personal or home improvement loan. Will we really save by taking a Pass Book loan?

A. According to the savings and loan associations, it is generally cheaper to get a Pass Book loan for an amount up to around $1,600 than to get a second mortgage, personal, or home- improvement loan. The usual custom is to charge interest on such a loan of one per cent above the interest paid the depositor on his savings. This means your loan only really costs about 6 per cent, substantially under most interest rates. But make a note that your savings account will be tied up during the life of the Pass Book loan.

Q. I am quite confused by your answer a few weeks ago saying darker meat comes from older beef. I have been instructed, and my own experience confirms, that one should select darker meat because it is better aged, and has hung longer. but you say where the meat is exposed to air it turns bright red. Will you explain please?

A. The question and answer to which you refer was concerned with ground beef, not large cuts. But it is true that beef from older beef steers is darker than from young animals. Note how much lighter in color veal is compared to regular beef. In ground meat the outside layer is in contact with oxygen which acts on the myoglobin to turn it a brighter red. This is probably because so much of the inner structure is exposed when ground. My answer said only that one should not judge that the darker inner meat of a batch of ground beef is stale, since its color only means it has not been touched by oxygen.

Q. I have a magazine subscription problem and believe at one time you gave the address of a place we could write to ask help in getting magazine subscription problems straightened out. Could you repeat this address for us?

A. If after writing to the magazine publisher, giving complete details of the complaint you have, you receive no satisfaction, I suggest you write to: Mr. Robert Goshorn, Central Registry, Magazine Center, 575 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10022. Reputable magazines work with Central Registry to try to correct subscriber problems.

Bombing Case To Circuit

KENNETT — Jimmy Davis, a Malden Vietnam war veteran accused of attempted arson in connection with a bombing incident at a tavern earlier this month, waived his right to a preliminary hearing and was bound over to circuit court to stand trial. Magistrate Judge Leon McAnally presided in Friday's court session.

Prosecuting Attorney Charels H. Baker charged Davis with attempted arson after he was chased down and arrested and charged with throwing a bomb into Bob's Tavern in Malden, loaded with .410 shotgun shells. He is being held in custody on a $1,000 bond.

Tom Bennett

Realtors Services Extended

The complexities of modern day living have increased the need for the Realtor whose services and expertise have expanded beyond those associated with home buying and selling.

Realtor Tom Bennett, president of the Sikeston Board of Realtors, made this comment today in discussing areas of real estate specialization to plan, appraise, manage, lease, and sell property which affects all Americans.

Realtors -- members of the Sikeston Board of Realtors, the Mo. Association of Realtors, and the National Association of Real Estate Boards -- upgrade their service to the public in these fields through participation in educational courses and seminars.

These affiliates provide for many Realtors the framework of specialization under which they work, Bennett added. Most provide professional designations, through which the public can identify the leaders in the fields.

The largest affiliate of NAREB is the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers which offers, through its two divisions, education in the latest techniques of marketing properties and serving the public. For those involved in the commercial phase of real estate, NIREB's Commercial and Investment Division provides guidelines to successful operation. The Residential Division gives guidance to those in the largest single specialization in real estate -- homemarketing.

Electrical Shock Fatal To Man

CARUTHERSVILLE — Michael Wayne McCaig, rural Caruthersville, was electrocuted Sunday while working on a television set.

The Pemiscot County Sheriff's Department was notified by the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital that McCaig was dead on arrival at the hospital at 6:30 p.m.

said the man stopped at a farmhouse near the community of Crump Tuesday, asking for water and directions to the nearest store. The people at the house directed him to a store and called police. The community is near Lutesville.

Chase was arrested at the store by a state patrolman. Police said Chase produced an identification card for a man in Chester, Pa. The card contained a fingerprint, which the FBI said did not match Chase's print.

FBI agents said Chase was recently released from a prison in Wisconsin after serving part of a 10-year sentence for armed robbery.

Cape Girardeau County Sheriff Ivan McLain said the man arrived in Cape Girardeau Monday morning on a bus from St. Louis. He was described as a stranger in the area who could give no reason for being in this part of the country.

McLain said the man refused to give his name when he was taken into custody.

The car reported to have been used in the robbery was stolen from Barbara Lilliher of Chaffee, a student at Southeast Missouri College in Cape Girardeau.

The bank was robbed at 2:10 p.m. Monday by a man matching the arrested man's description.

The robber walked into the bank waving a cocked pistol over his head.

Bank officials said the man was wearing woman's hose over his head and a brimmed hat.

After getting the money from the cash drawers, the robber lowered the hammer on the revolver, tucked it away in his clothing and took off his mask and hat as he left.

The robber entered the stolen car and drove off. He was last seen rounding rounding a curve on highway 51 south of Lutesville.

Bank Of Sikeston, IBEW Winners In Junior Babe Ruth Play

Bank of Sikeston's 12-hit barrage in the first game of Junior Babe Ruth baseball play last night led the way for the bankers' 11-1 win over Hart's.

In the nightcap, a late Eagle rally fell short as the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers picked up its first victory of the season, 8-7.

A combination of hitting and pitching paved the way in the opening contest for Bank of Sikeston's sweep into the winners' lane. Bank pitcher, Taylor, checked Harts with only two hits. His teammates responded with the 12-hit, 11-run offense.

Hurley fanned eight batters in the contest, walked six, and gave up the lone run in the opening inning. Harts, Shaner reached first on one of the team's two hits and scored on an error and a stolen base.

Bank of Sikeston jumped into an early 2-1 lead in the first frame. The third, fourth, and fifth innings saw three bank runs come across the plate in each frame.

Banks, Crites, Self, Bohannon, and Bridger paced the winner's hitting attack with two safeties apiece. Crites scored four runs for the winners, as teammates Taylor and Self crossed home twice.

Wissman opened on the mound for IBEW, worked four innings before giving way to Cook, who worked the final frame. Wissman was tagged with the loss.

Shaner and White collected Harts' two hits.

Frantic late inning scoring for both IBEW and Eagles highlighted play in the second game. Both teams waited until the final two innings of play before sending runs across the plate.

IBEW opened the scoring with eight runs in the fourth. The IBEW lineup knocked five hits in the frame and received four walks in the inning. Shaffar collected two hits in the inning and teammate Shain scored two runs before the IBEW squads were retired.

The Eagles rebounded with a four-run attack of their own in the inning. Four hits, two hits, and three errors sent four Eagle runners home to cut the IBEW lead to four runs.

In the last inning, the Eagles sent home three runs to cut the lead to 8-7. With the tying run on second base with only one out, Tompkins retired the side to give the IBEW the one-run victory.

No games are scheduled tonight in the Junior Babe Ruth division.

Duo Vaults Record Height

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Bob Seagren woke up Tuesday with no idea he would become a coworld record holder in a few hours.

After he and Sweden's Kjell Isaksson each set a new world pole vault record of 18 feet, 4 1/4 inches here, Seagren said his mother had read him a newspaper article about the special pole vault meet sponsored by the Border AAU organization.

The article quoted University of Texas-El Paso coach Wayne Vandenberg as saying the competition was organized Sunday.

"I didn't really believe it, but I had to check to make sure," Seagren said.

He called Vandenberg to ask if he could enter, and then caught a plane from Santa Monica, Calif., to El Paso when Vandenberg gave an okay.

Eight other vaulters also entered the meet, but all eight had been eliminated after Seagren and Isaksson cleared the first height they attempted—174.

Seagren made the first significant breakthrough, setting a new American record of 18-1/2. That was his first time above 18 feet after a previous best of 17-9. Isaksson is the only other man to clear the height.

When Isaksson also cleared the 18-1/2 barrier, the two set their sights on Isaksson's world's best of 18-2 set last month.

Both missed their first try at 5.59 meters, 18-4 1/4, but both cleared the height the second time around for a double world record.

The bar was then set at 186 1/4, from a scaffold rather than the usual ladder, and both missed all three times.

After the meet, Seagren returned to his home in Monterrey Park, Calif.

Isaksson, who won the meet because of fewer misses at lower heights, said he will return to Sweden this weekend and will compete every week until the Summer Olympics in Munich, Germany.

Cubs Snap Mets 12-Game Streak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It's a loss—but not the end of the world," Tug McGraw of the New York Mets shrugged. "The law of averages didn't get me. They got me."

They were the Chicago Cubs and they got McGraw for a run in the eighth inning. That snapped a tie, giving the Cubs a 2-1 victory, and snapped the Mets back to reality.

It was their first loss in a dozen games, their second in the last 16 and only the ninth in the 33 games they've played this season.

In other National League action Tuesday, Pittsburgh blitzed St. Louis 6-2, Montreal flipped Philadelphia 6-2, Atlanta edged Cincinnati 2-1, Los Angeles topped San Francisco 8-5, and in a twi-night doubleheader, Houston swept San Diego 7-0 and 2-1.

The Cubs nicked New York starter Gary Gentry for a run in the fourth inning on a walk and singles by Paul Popovich and Ken Rudolph but the Mets, unable to handle Ferguson Jenkins' pitching for six innings, finally tied it in the seventh on a walk and singles by Tommie Agee and Rusty Staub.

Then came the eighth. Carmen Fanzone started the winning rally with a one-out single. And when Popovich slammed a McGraw offering to right center field, Fanzone was off and running.

Club Owners Threaten NBA-ABA All-Stars

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Most National Basketball Association teams have warned their players not to play in the scheduled NBA-ABA all star game under threat of suspension or fines, NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy said late Tuesday night.

The all star game, featuring the best of the NBA and American Basketball Association players, is scheduled Thursday night in Uniondale, N.Y.

Kennedy said most of the NBA club owners had informed him of their promised action to keep the players from participating in the contest, which was played for the first time last year. The commissioner said players were informed by registered mail.

Parts of the registered letter, said Kennedy, said, "Section 17 of your contract with us (the NBA club) denied you the right to participate in any exhibition game of basketball without written consent.

"Such consent has not and will not be granted for your participation in the so-called All-Star basketball game on May 25."

The letter further stated that application "will be made to the commissioner of the NBA that you be fined or suspended pursuant to Section 17" if a player went ahead to play in the game.

The NBA commissioner declined to disclose the number of club owners who threatened such action, saying only that most were involved.

The post-season clash between the ri val leagues i being presented by the players associations of both leagues, and the respective teams were chosen by the votes of players in both the NBA and ABA.

Cardinal Mistakes Keep Pirate String Alive

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals shut down the middle of the Pittsburgh Pirate batting order but forgot about defense in a 6-2 loss Tuesday night.

Booting two double play ground balls, the Cards made it easy for the defending world champions to win No. 8 in a row and their 11th in 13 games.

Pittsburgh, gaining ground on National League East leader New York capitalized on the first Cards miscue for a threerun burst in the second inning.

Two frames later, after the Cards had pulled to 3-2, another gift enabled the Bucs to score their other three runs and breeze behind struggling righthander Steve Blass (5-1).

"It's a joy pitching for this ball club," said Blass, who surrendered 11 hits, including Luis Melendez' second home run, but had an effective slow curve.

"You've got to have one pitch that's really working for you," added the 30-year-old Blass, winner of two World Series games last fall.

"I had real good control of the curve, but I'm not completely happy with the way I'm throwing the ball. I want to be able to throw a smooth fast ball and I'm not doing it."

Blass yielded hits in every inning except two and worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth before leaving in favor of Ramon Hernandez, who worked the ninth.

Meanwhile Pittsburgh had inflicted its damage against Cards starter Reggie Cleveland (3-3), whose downfall started with a single by Richie Hebner leading off the second.

Manny Sanguillen followed with a made-to-order double play grounder that shortstop Ed Crosby juggled and finally let trickle away. Gene Alley followed with a run-scoring single.

Blass' sacrifice was followed by run-scoring hits off the bats of Dave Cash and three more runs poured across in the fourth after second baseman Ted Sizemore booted Vic Davalillo's double play grounder.

The oddity of the Cards defense was that sluggers Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell and Al Oliver were held to a combined 2-for-13 in the middle of the batting order.

Clemente had the two hits, both singles, but was induced to ground into double plays on three other occasions.

Blass, in elaborating on his satisfaction with his role, said of the Pirates, "You know they're going to score and they make the plays behind you. You can't ask for more than that.

"You just want the manager to give you the ball as often as possible. It's that easy," he said.

Skins' Allen Fined $5,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Naughty George Allen, who got caught with his draft choices down, has been subjected to what may have been the most embarassing verbal reprimand in Pete Rozelle's 13-year reign as commissioner of the National Football League.

Rozelle revealed Tuesday night that Allen had been called on the carpet and his Washington Redskins had been slapped with a maximum $5,000 fine in two cases involving players acquired with draft choices the Redskins actually did not have.

It was the first time Rozelle ever had subjected a coach to a verbal reprimand before the NFL's executive committee— one executive from each of the league's 26 teams—and left Allen curt when he was asked to comment on the case.

"It's all over," said the Redskins' general manager and head coach. "It's history. That's all I have to say."

Rozelle apparently laid far more words on Allen when he appeared before the executive committee. Rozelle said he stressed "the importance of adhering to league rules and policies.

"While the problem could have been unintentional in nature, such practices are cause for deep concern," Rozelle explained. "We wanted him to know that we can't have violations on rules that could affect the competitive aspect of the game."

In making that statement, Rozelle sidestepped the issue— whether hanky-panky was involved in the transactions in question—but the implication of the heavy fine and severe reprimand seemed to indicate that was at the heart of the issue.

The two cases involved Allen's acquisition of defensive back Rich Petitbon from Los Angeles and Speedy Duncan from San Diego after taking over the Redskins last year and beginning a series of 19 trades in which he acquired veterans for draft choices.

Allen used draft choices he already had traded to the New York Jets and Buffalo Bills for defensive ends Verlon Biggs and Ron McDole, respectively, in acquiring Duncan and Petitbon. Rozelle said full restitution of the draft choices had been made to the Chargers and Rams by the Redskins.

Andrew Jackson was only 13 years old when he fought in the Revolutionary War.

Brewers, Indians Win A.L. Shutouts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Lonborg has a past, a present and ... a future.

The past: "I was really getting that old feeling", the Milwaukee right-hander said after blanking the Detroit Tigers 3-0 on four singles Tuesday night.

The present: "I'm not back to 1967; I'm back to 1972 because what happened in the past doesn't matter."

The future: "Can he pitch tomorrow?" asked manager Dave Bristol.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland's Gaylord Perry tamed the New York Yankees on four singles by an identical 3-0 score, the Chicago White Sox edged Texas 2-1, Boston nipped Baltimore 6-5 in 10 innings and Oakland shaded Califrnia 3-2. Minnesota and Kansas City were rained out.

It's been a long road back for Lonborg, who pitched the Red Sox to the pennant in 1967 with a 22-9 record and then won two more games in the World Series, including a one-hitter. The following winter, he wrecked a knee in a much-publicized skiing accident and then came an aggravating series of arm problems.

Over the next four seasons, which included two trips to the minors, his record with Boston was 27-28 and he was traded to the Brewers in a 10-player swap last winter. His first 1972 triumph came last week—over the Red Sox—and he now has a 2-1 record and sizzling 1.31 earned run average.

Lonborg was locked in a scoreless struggle with Detroit's Joe Coleman until the seventh, when George Scott singled and Johnny Briggs homered. Billy Conigliaro doubled and Ellie Rodriguez singled for the final run in the eighth.

The loss dropped the secondplace Tigers 2 1/2 games behind the surprising Indians in the AL East as Perry, 8-2 shut out the Yankees and joined Detroit's Mickey Lolich as league's only eight-game winners. It was his sixth straight.

The tall right-hander also led off the eighth inning with a double off Mel Stottlemyre, igniting a three-run uprising that snapped a scoreless tie.

The White Sox maintained their half-game lead over Oakland in the AL West, scoring two runs in the first inning on Pat Kelly's bunt single, Carlos May's double and Bill Melton's single to nip Texas. Don Mincher homered for the Rangers' run in the last of the first.

Stan Bahnsen, 6-4, went 7 2-3 innings for Chicago before giving way to Terry Forster and then Steve Kealey. The Rangers had the potential tying run cut down at the plate to end the game when Lenny Randle tried to score from second on Larry Biittner's infield hit behind the second base bag. Mike Andrews' throw to Ed Herrmann rubbed out Randle.

"We've won a lot of games on our speed and hustle," philosophized manager Ted Williams, "and we're going to lose a few like that."

The Orioles overcame a 4-0 deficit against the Red So before blowing a 5-4 lead of their own in the ninth inning. Home runs by Tommy Harper and Reggie Smith helped the Red Sox to their lead and the Orioles caught up on homers by pinch hitter Don Baylor and Terry Crowley.

Baltimore forged in front in the eighth but Ben Oglivie's pinch single tied the score for the Red Sox in the ninth and they won out in the 10th on a walk, sacrifice and Rico Petrocelli's single to break a fivegame losing streak.

Reggie Jackson hit his seventh home run of the season on the first pitch from reliever Eddie Fisher in the ninth inning to propel the A's past the Angels. California scored the tying run in the top of the ninth on Ken McMullen's single and Leroy Stanton's double.

Indy 500 Saturday

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Drivers who will start Saturday's $1 million Indianapolis 500-mile race got their final chance to map battle plans today during a three-hour session of "carburetion" runs.

The 2.5 mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where more than 250,000 will gather for the 56th running of the richest motoring event in the world, opened at 10 a.m. for the first time since time trials ended Sunday.

The carburetion tests have been traditional at Indianapolis for years, but at least one car owner calls them "antiquated."

"We haven't used carburetors on these cars in years," said Lindsey Hopkins, a wealthy Coca-Cola bottler from Atlanta and a veteran of many years at Indy.

"It seems we could come up with a more imaginative term for what we do in this final day of practice."

What the drivers actually do is practice, the same as they have done all month. For their final day on the oval, however, they use their race day chassis setup, the new engines they have installed or reworked, and, incidentally, they check fuel consumption and tire wear.

Thus, it would be unlikely that pole-sitter Bobby Unser would run his Olsonite Eagle at anything like top speed and certainly not at the 195.940 miles per hour he put together for four laps 10 days ago to win the No. 1 starting position.

A broken engine or a wrecked car this late in the game would be disaster.

Hopkins, meanwhile, lost one of his regular drivers when Wally Dallenbach was selected Tuesday to drive Andy Granatelli's STP-Lola. Along with Mel Kenyon and Roger McCluskey, Dallenbach had formed the Indy team that Hopkins co-sponsors with Gilmore Broadcasting Co.

But of Hopkins' three pilots, Dallenbach found himself first on the bump list during the final flurry of qualifying, and actually was ousted from the lineup by ex-stock car driver Cale Yarborough.

Granatelli's Lola had been qualified in the middle of the fourth row by 45-year-old Art Pollard during the first round. He wrecked it two days later, however, and wound up in the hospital with a broken leg.

The car was repaired but was relegated to 33rd position when Pollard couldn't drive it. Dallenbach, who would have moved up from his first alternate status to fill the 33rd spot, had the Lola not shown, thus will make his sixth Indy start anyway.

Dallenbach probably will be the busiest driver at the Speedway today. Race officials directed that the Lola must run at least 100 miles before it is certified for competition.

Senior League Opens Tonight

Two games are on tap tonight in the opening contest of the 1972 Senior Babe Ruth league.

League commissioner Gerald "Bowie" Howard will be on hand to open this year's baseball season at V.F.W. Stadium.

Leible Implement and Hart's Standard square off in the opening battle, scheduled for 6:30. The Optimist Club will face Elks in the 8 nightcap.

Bob Blankenship, Ron Greenlee, Jim Saulters, and Arnold Stewart will manage the teams that hold athletes between 16-19.

Impeachment is the only means of removing a federal judge from office.

Qualifying Rounds Continue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Too bad the Danny ThomasMemphis Golf Classic ended Sunday ... Doug Sanders was just beginning to get the hang of the new Colonial Country Club course.

Sanders, the flamboyant golfer whose trademarks are colorful outfits and a compact swing, fired a course-record 66 Monday morning, then came back with a steady 71 in the afternoon for a 137 total to pace local qualifiers at Memphis for the U.S. Open.

Memphis was one of 58 sites where local qualifying is being held Monday and today. Survivors will advance to sectional qualifying rounds at 13 locations June 5-6. In all, 4,252 golfers submitted entries for the U.S. Open, to be played June 15-18 at Pebble Beach, Calif. All but 36 will have to go through some sort of qualifying round to earn a spot in the field of 150 starters.

Sanders, who called his course record "kind of a stroll in the park," finished fifth in the Memphis tourney. That event was won by Lee Trevino, who set the previous course record with a final-round 67 Sunday.

Elsewhere, quarterback John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers shot an even par 72 to share the lead in the first round of local qualifying at San Francisco. The second round will be played today.

Tied with Brodie are three pros, Dale Coodell, Mike DeLozier and tour regular Jim Wiechers.

McDonnell-Douglas Produces Last DC8

LONG BEACH, Calif (AP) For the DC8 jetliner, No. 556 was the end of the line.

The 556th DC8 jet, built at the McDonnell-Douglas plant here, has been sold to Scandinavian Airlines Systems. It is the last DC8 to be built.

Since the first DC8 was built nearly 15 years ago, sales of the aircraft have totaled more than $4.2 billion. There are now 48 DC8 users—airlines, charter companies and private companies—in 28 countries.

The four-engine DC8 introduced jet travel on a major scale. Previous aircraft were the DC6 and DC7, the last of the major piston-propeller airliners built.

Replacing the DC8 are the wide-bodied jets—the McDonnell-Douglas DC10, the Boeing 747 and the Lockheed L1011.

The DC8 has been a moneymaker for the airlines and will continue to be used widely both in the United States and abroad. Manufacture of spare parts for the planes will continue for years.

But the DC8, although financially successful for the airlines, was a sometime bumpy ride for its manufacturer, the Douglas Aircraft Co, Inc., of Santa Monica.

In the early 1960s, Douglas had huge losses because of cost overruns on development of the aircraft.

It may also have contributed, along with the twin-jet DC9, to a cash crisis for Douglas which resulted in its merger with McDonnell Co. of St. Louis.

The company won't say whether the overall DC8 program was profitable.

In the past year, one DC8 a month has come off the Long Beach assembly line, first started in February 1957. However, the end of the line will not mean economic hardship for the 26,000 workers at the plant, company officials said. Most have been phased into production of the DC10 and the DC9.

Senators Invited To Read White House Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration spokesman says the White House is inviting all senators to drop by and read what their constituents have been telling President Nixon about Vietnam.

More often than not, the White House keeps silent about incoming letters and telegrams concerning current issues. But it seems eager to crow a bit about public reaction to Nixon's May 8 speech in which he announced the mining of North Vietnamese ports.

Kenneth W. Clawson, the administration's deputy director of communications, volunteered that Nixon's chief lobbyist, Clark MacGregor, began writing all senators Thursday to offer a pro-con breakdown of the response the White House has received from their constituents.

The first 20 senators to whom MacGregor sent letters included the two widely regarded as principal contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination: George McGovern of South Dakota and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Clawson said a White House mail-room count showed a 1,200-to-250 breakdown in support of Nixon from Minnesota and a 115-to-6 count from South Dakota.

Both McGovern and Humphrey have been critical of Nixon's latest moves.

Clawson said MacGregor invited the senators to inspect the letters and telegrams Nixon has received from voters in their states. MacGregor's letter to the senators, as quoted by Clawson in response to an inquiry, included no such invitation.

Asked about this, Clawson replied, "If they ask to inspect it (the mail), they will be permitted to."

Clawson said MacGregor wrote the senators:

"There has been much interest in the response of the American people to the President's May 8 statement announcing the steps he is taking to bring hostilities to an end in Vietnam. Knowing your own constituent mail has been very heavy on this subject, I thought you would be interested as well in correspondence to the President from people of your state."

Court Rules Noncapital Convictions Do Not Have To Be Unanimous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defendants on trial in state courts for noncapital crimes may be convicted by a less-than-unanimous jury, the Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 Monday.

The decision, in cases from Louisiana and Oregon, said the centuries-old practice of unanimous jury verdicts is not required by the U.S. Constitution. Even a 9 to 3 verdict is permissible, said Justice Byron R. White for the court.

Only four states, Oklahoma and Montana in addition to Louisiana and Oregon, apparently now have laws approving conviction by a less than unanimous vote. The court's ruling could spur others to follow the example.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, a dissenter, said the ruling "cuts the heart out," of an important safeguard of the Bill of Rights.

Protests were entered also by Justices William Douglas, William J. Brennan and Potter Stewart.

The Oregon law approved today allows 9 to 3 convictions.

School Program To Aid Handicapped

CHARLESTON — The Charleston R-1 School District has received written approval on a 1972-73 program for themselves or to others because of "seriously emotionally disturbed" children. This program will be funded by the state through Public Law 91-230, by federal funds.

The program is available for students enrolled in St. Henry School. The director of the program will be Terry Rowe.

Eligibility of students participating in this or any other program is dependent solely on their particular handicap. The program is made available to all students regardless of their religious background, economic background, intellectual level or any other requirement that hinders many students from participating in many other Federal programs.

According to Rowe, a survey was made early this school year to determine approximately how many students in the Charleston R-1 School District were considered "seriously emotionally disturbed." The results of the survey were that approximately 150 students, or 5½ percent of the total school population are considered "seriously emotionally disturbed" according to the following definition:

Seriously Emotionally Disturbed children exhibit one or more of the following characteristics over a long period of time and to a marked degree:

1. An inability to learn that cannot be explained by intellectual, sensory, or other health factors.

2. An inability to build or maintain satisfactory interpersonal relationships with peers and teachers.

3. Inappropriate types of behavior or feelings under normal circumstances.

4. A general pervasive mood of unhappiness or depression.

5. A tendency to develop physical symptoms, pains or fears associated with personal or school problems.

First priority next year will be given to those students (grades K-12) who are considered a danger to themselves or to others because of their specific emotional problems. Second priority will be given to the early identification and diagnosis of students with serious emotional problems at the elementary level. Those students who need individual instruction and guidance will be placed in a class for the "seriously emotionally disturbed."

The objectives of the program will be to:

* Provide evaluation and diagnosis by a competent Clinical Psychologist of students in grades K-12 who are considered Seriously Emotionally Disturbed.

* Provide a class for the Seriously Emotionally disturbed at the elementary level (grades 1-5).

* Provide counseling, therapy, and or medication to the students who are diagnosed as seriously emotionally disturbed.

* Provide educational guidance and counseling to the parents of the seriously emotionally disturbed through both group and individual sessions.

Provide educational guidance and direction to the teachers in the Charleston R-1 School District through teacher workshops in the area of the seriously emotionally disturbed.

* Reduce or eliminate undesirable behavior or feelings of those students diagnosed as being seriously emotionally disturbed.

Included in the staff next year will be a clinical psychologist who will be employed on a part- time basis to help establish the program. Also included will be a certified teacher of the seriously emotionally disturbed, and a social worker.

The program is set up to start at the beginning of the 1972-73 school year and run through to May 25, 1973.

No Effective Gun Controls In U.S.

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Gov. George C. Wallace is the 10th man seeking or holding the office of President to be an assassin's target, and the fifth to survive the attack. In nine of the 10 cases, including that of Wallace, the weapon used was a handgun. Thus, the assault on the Alabama governor may well give fresh impetus to attempts to strengthen existing gun- control laws.

It won't be easy. The assassinations of Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy in 1968 led to passage of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act and the Gun Control Act, which prohibited the mail- order or other interstate purchase of firearms and ammunition to persons who did not live in the dealer's state. But intensive lobbying by the National Rifle Association caused deletion of a provision requiring national registration of every firearm and licensing of every gun owner.

Experience has shown that the 1968 legislation is easily circumvented. For example, the importation of the cheap scub- nosed pistols and revolvers known as "Saturday night specials" is prohibited. But the law failed to prohibit the importation of their parts. As a result, Carl Bakal noted in Saturday Review, "Enterprising former importers have been assembling Saturday night specials here using parts from abroad and cheap local labor ... working in makeshift factories such as converted garages and even a church."

The ban against interstate mail- order sale of firearms has been sidestepped by the shipping of guns between licensed dealers in different states. A person need only place an order locally and wait for the weapon to arrive at the dealer for pickup. It is estimated that eight out of 10 handguns in such cities as Boston and New York came from other areas.

Inadequate gun controls have made the United States a nation under arms. There were an estimated 24 million handguns in private hands in 1965, according to a report prepared by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence. An additional 2.5 million are being manufactured domestically or imported every year. One new handgun is sold in the United States every 13 seconds, and used handguns are being traded at the rate of two a minute.

The National Rifle Association nevertheless feels that existing gun- control legislation is unduly restrictive. An editorial in the April issue of the NRA magazine, The American Rifleman, proclaimed that "this is the year" to replace the Gun Control Act of 1968 with a law "aimed at controlling criminals rather than harassing gun owners." It termed the law a "legal failure and a social irdecency."

Maryland, the state where Gov. Wallace was gunned down, recently enacted a firearms control law despite the bitter opposition of the gun clubs. The measure restricts the wearing or transporting of handguns but does not require registration of rifles and handguns kept in the home or place of business. Wallace's alleged assailant bought his .38 caliber revolver in Milwaukee.

It took courage for Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel to propose gun control legislation. Former Sen. Joseph D. Tydings (D Md.) was defeated for re- election in 1970, in part because he was one of the leaders of the fight for federal controls two years earlier. But now the gun control forces may gain some new recruits. Wallace supporters generally oppose any restriction on the right to bear arms. The attack on the governor may cause some of them to have second thoughts.

Court Upholds Immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a 5-2 vote, the Supreme Court today upheld the limited immunity the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970 gives witnesses who are compelled to testify before grand juries.

The ruling, delivered by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., found broader immunity is not required by the Fifth Amendment. Justices William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall dissented.

Prosecutors had been waiting more than two years for the court to settle the constitutional controversy. The federal law has been copied by several states.

Complete immunity from prosecution has been granted to many witnesses over the years to prevent them from invoking the Fifth Amendment and refusing to testify on the grounds of possible self-incrimination. Witnesses who refused to testify under immunity could be jailed for contempt of court.

The 1970 law provides a more limited kind of immunity. A witness can be forced to testify with the protection only that what he says will not be used against him in a future prosecution.

Powell said complete immunity would give the witness considerably broader protection than the Fifth Amendment privilege.

Men's Long Hair Safety Hazard

CHICAGO – One out of every eight companies participating in a National Safety Council survey reported one or more accidents involving long hair on men.

The Safety Council recently sent out questionaires seeking "hard data" on corporate attitudes and policies concerning long hair and beards. The survey results reflect the practices and experiences of 174 responding establishments. Most of the respondents reported for large establishments – 70 percent reported more than 1,000 employes.

Although not a completely representative sample of all industries in the United States, the survey revealed some interesting information.

More than half the reporting establishments, for example, said they have regulations covering the wearing of long hair by men, and a slightly smaller number had similar regulations for women. But in both cases, more than half the regulations cover only certain jobs and departments.

In addition to one in eight companies reporting one or more long hair accidents, only one in 14 reported long hair accidents involving women. Three percent reported accidents involving beards.

The Safety Council survey, which is discussed in the May issue of the Council's National Safety News, revealed that six percent of the reporting companies had long hair beards, probably a great deal of accident will greatly reduce the accidents even though the possibility, not only of ar protection was used.

Seven-Day Struggle Preceded Airing Of Port Mining Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — It began with presidential adviser Henry Kissinger jetting through the night sky to a secret rendezvous in Paris.

It ended a week later with a solemn President telling the nation he had decided to confront communist superpowers by mining North Vietnamese harbors.

During those seven days in May, Richard Nixon struggled with the most momentous decision of his presidency–a decision that posed the greatest potential for a world power showdown since the Cuban missile crisis a decade ago and threatened for a while to wreck his Moscow summit.

Nixon's seven days in May carried none of the sinister plotting of Fletcher Knebel's presidential novel with that title, but a series of interviews with White House aides and administration officials since his May 8 ann uncement discloses the high drama of presidential decision-making.

Although presidential spokesmen insist a final decision was not made until a few hours before the May 8 television address, the interviews indicated Nixon had settled on his specific course of action as much as six days earlier.

There also are indications that the mining of North Vietnam's harbors had been elevated to a top spot on the list of active options several weeks before the announcement, and that contingency preparations were made by the military in April.

But the interviews disclosed that it was during those seven days from May 2 to May 8 that the agony of decision-making squarely faced the President.

From official and unofficial sources, this reconstruction can be made:

During the early morning hours of Tuesday, May 2, foreign-policy adviser Kissinger and a few members of his National Security Council staff flew secretly to Paris where Kissinger met in private that day with North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho.

Nixon and Kissinger had high hopes for the secret session with Tho. It had been arranged at the urging of Soviet leaders with whom Kissinger had conferred at length during four days of secret talks in Moscow–an indication to them that fruitful negotiations might be in the offing.

But Kissinger soon found that no progress would be made. As he recounted later: "We were confronted by the reading to us of the published Communist statement. It had taken in six months to set up the meeting and innumerable exchanges, and when we got there, what we heard could have been clipped from a newspaper and sent to us in the mail."

Nixon, by several accounts, was furious. As Kissinger flew home from Paris Tuesday afternoon, Nixon retired to his hideaway suite in the Executive Office Building across the street from the White House, where he began pondering what to do.

By dinnertime, Kissinger was back Nixon, Kissinger and Kissinger's No. 2 man, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., drove to the Washington Navy Yard where they boarded the squat, 105-foot presidential yacht, the U.S.S. Sequoia.

At dusk they cruised the Potomac River below Washington, with Kissinger delivering a full report on the latest Paris frustrations. The talk turned to options, with Kissinger—in his usual fashion—outlining the pros and cons of various possible steps.

It was at this point, according to most indications, that the President made his tentative decision to mine the harbors through which most Soviet supplies flowed.

But he ordered Kissinger's National Security Council staff to prepared detailed studies on alternatives—and on the impact each choice would have on U.S.-Soviet relations and the scheduled Moscow summit.

Then, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 3-5, Nixon huddled repeatedly in his Executive Office Building suite with his closest advisers—Kissinger and Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally.

While Kissinger and his staff traced the probable diplomatic and military repercussions, the tall Texan assayed for Nixon the likely domestic reaction. Connally, who has since disclosed his resignation from the Cabinet, firmly advocated strong steps such as mining.

Nixon began to work on the words he would use to tell the American people of his decision. And, after another round of meetings with his family, Nixon flew back to Connally and Kissinger on the White House Sunday night Friday, the President boarded a and proceeded Monday to the helicopter for the 20-minute 9 a.m. meeting of his National flight to Camp David.

On Friday night and Saturday morning, Nixon retired to nearby Birch Cabin where, sitting in a high-backed, blue easy chair and with his feet propped on an ottoman, he dictated a draft of his speech from notes scrawled on yellow legal pads.

To his exasperation, he learned on Saturday that, because of a dictating machine that got out of synch, one-third of the three tapes he consumed was mostly blank. With appropriate comments about the machine, he dictated that portion of the draft again from his notes.

At this time, only five or six persons in government knew of the President's plan. The first Moscow an indication to them that fruitful negotiations might be in the offing.

But Kissinger soon found that no progress would be made. As he recounted later: "We were confronted by the reading to us of the published Communist statement. It had taken in six months to set up the meeting and innumerable exchanges, and when we got there, what we heard could have been clipped from a newspaper and sent to us in the mail."

Early Sunday, Nixon telephoned Secretary of State William P. Rogers and told him to cut short his series of talks with European leaders and return to Washington for a National Security Council meeting on Monday.

Kissinger and Nixon went over the draft again, with Kissinger providing some technical details on international law which were woven into paragraphs describing the mining and the promised interdiction of supplies.

Zip Coded Mail Not Necessarily Faster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adding that five-digit zip code to first-class or airmail letters doesn't guarantee earlier delivery, a new nationwide test of mail service discloses.

The mailing of nearly 800 test letters by six Associated Press bureaus in as many cities nationwide showed that eight times out of 10 letters without zip codes reached their destinations as fast or faster than zipcoded letters mailed at the same time and place.

A similar survey conducted 15 months earlier produced about the same conclusions.

Officials of the U.S. Postal Service say that zip codes primarily were introduced to aid in processing mail, make possible the hiring of less skilled persons without having to train them intensively and allow a shift to optical sorting machines.

"Not a great many are in oper ation now, but we ar adding them as rapidly as they can be produced and installed," said Joseph F. Jones, director of the Postal Service's Office of Logistics. "The zip code will play an increasingly important role, and allow us to employ more persons with less skills."

The AP survey also indicated:

—Spending the extra three cents for an airmail stamp doesn't necessarily guarantee quicker delivery. In the case of 45 per cent of the letters in the survey, the airmail letters were delivered at the same time as first-class ones.

—Considerable variations exist in delivery time, often not related to distances involved. For example, letters mailed from Los Angeles to Washington reached the capital faster than those mailed from Washington or New York to Los Angeles.

—In three of the test cities, St. Louis, Los Angeles and Houston, the Postal Service handled local letters in an average of one day. The average time in St. Louis was 20 1/2 hours, compared to 33 in Washington.

—Since the Postal Service does not generally operate on Saturday afternoon and Sunday, Friday is the poorest day to mail letters. In most cases they are not delivered until Monday morning; i n a least a dozen cases delivery was delayed until Tuesday.

"We are trying to improve the weekend problem which has been acute," Jones said.

The AP survey was designed to test long-distance as weli as local service, involving Chicago in addition to the cities already named. Here's how it was conducted:

At 10 a.m. on Monday, each of the six bureaus mailed a total of 22 letters, two to itself and four to each of the other five bureaus. Both letters addressed to the bureau of origin bore first-class postage; one carried the zip code and the other didn't.

Of the letters sent to the other bureaus, one first-class letter had a zip code, one firstclass was without the zip, one airmail letter had a zip code and one airmail letter was without it.

A like assortment of 22 letters was mailed by each bureau again at 5 p.m. Monday, then at the same two times on Wednesday and Friday—yielding a 72-letter test of local service and a 720-letter test of longdistance service.

Receiving bureaus logged the hour and day each letter arrived. Like most businesses in urban areas, the bureaus get their mail two or more times a day.

Jones agreed that problem areas exist, and said the service has just initiated a program to analyze them one by one and correct the deficiencies.

The AP survey indicated that local service has been speeded up within the past 15 months. The survey in early 1971 produced only one city, Houston, which handled local letters in an average of one day. This year Houston, Los Angeles and St. Louis matched or surpassed that.

But there were lapses: one letter in Houston and one in Washington took 63 hours to deliver, and one in Los Angeles 67 hours—more than 2 1/2 days in each case.

In the survey, half the letters had zip codes and half didn't. A comparison of arrival times of each pair of letters showed:

—19 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived first.

—64 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived at the same time as those without zip codes.

—17 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived later than letters without zip codes.

These percentages varied only slightly from those produced in the survey 15 months earlier.

The survey also compared arrival times of pairs of airmail and first-class letters mailed at the same time. It found:

—46 per cent of the airmail letters got to their destinations ahead of the companion firstclass letters.

Missouri Expands In Industry

JEFFERSON CITY — Considerable industrial activity took place in Missouri during 1971 even though the nation as a whole was undergoing an economic slump, according to Missouri's New and Expanding Industries Report, 1971.

The report, prepared by the Research Section of the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, shows that, during 1971, more than 300 firms announced plans to build new plants or expand existing facilities. These industries will provide 10,207 new jobs for Missourians and represent a capital expenditure of over $110 million.

New industries comprised almost 57 percent of the total announced, over 61 percent of the new jobs and 47 percent of the capital invested.

Covered in the report are manufacturing, warehousing, mining, and research and development facilities of private companies. Of these, manufacturing industries took the greatest share. In fact, more new manufacturing plants were announced in 1971 than any other year since 1953, the first year that kind of information was recorded. Of all the new manufacturing plants announced, 51 percent occurred in rural areas and nearly 65 percent of all manufacturing expansions for the year took place in rural Missouri.

A copy of the report may be obtained by writing: Mr. Earl Cannon, Director of Research, Missouri Divison of commerce and Industrial Development, P. O. Box 118, Jefferson City, Missouri 65101.

Violence In The Media

By HELEN B. SHAFFER
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Once more millions of Americans have witnessed on home television the gunning down of a celebrated public figure. The attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace flooded the viewer's mind with other tragic events of the recent past. There was Jack Ruby's shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, President Kennedy's assassin, "live" from the Dallas police station. There was the scene of bedlam in a Los Angeles hotel ballroom when bullets felled Robert F. Kennedy, and there was the on- camera rioting after the murder of Martin Luther King.

To a public inured to violence in the popular media of entertainment, the shock of these televised events is that they are not "crime shows." They are for real. Even the scenes from a distant war flashed on the home screen do not carry the impact of the bloody interruptions of the pursuit of politics on home grounds.

What then is the effect of reporting such events in this day of advanced communications systems that bring the sight and sound of violent reality into the consciousness of every American? And to what extent is the response to real violence affected by the constant diet of fictional violence purveyed in the media of entertainment -- especially in films and on television?

These questions have been taken up by many social-science researchers and several government- sponsored study groups in recent years. The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, appointed by President Johnson after the 1968 assassinations of King and Robert F. Kennedy, said in its report: "Though an assassin is mentally deranged, the violent rhetoric of our politics and our constant flirtation with actual violence may be factors that bring him at least half- way to his distorted perception of what actions are right and legitimate." Part of that "constant flirtation with acutal violence" is reflected in the frequency of violent episodes in the most favored television shows and in recent movies, as well as in the news media.

The commission was persuaded by the evidence of social studies that the violence seen on television has a harmful effect, particularly on young watchers. TV- viewing begins early, typically at age two or three. There is at least one television set in 96 per cent of all American homes and 99 per cent of the homes with children or adolescents. the set is turned on an average of six hours and 18 minutes a day and children watch the tube at least two hours a day.

The media- violence question was taken up again by the Surgeon General's Scientific Committee on Television and Social Behavior, which reported its findings last January. The Committee took a less positive stand than the Violence Commission, but agreed that certain vulnerable children could be influenced toward aggressive behavior by what they watched on television.

Although television network officials have promised to reduce the violence content of children's programs in the fall, there is little likelihood of an overall reduction of violence in the media as a whole. Real- life violence, especially when it touches prominent persons, is bound to get the most extensive news coverage possible. As for entertainment, popular taste seems to demand a high level of action. The tolerance level of moviegoers for blood and brutality appears to be rising.

The harsh content of some current movies suggests that the first generation reared on daily doses of violence on television may neeed a bit more gore and brutality to react to the meaning of violence. The vividness of the film medium gives it a much higher per- dosage impact. A number of film critics have complained at what strikes them as celebrations of violence in such highly successful movies as Straw Dogs and A Clockwork Orange.

Nevertheless, A Clockwork Orange won the New York Film Critics award for the best picture of 1971 and was nominated for the Oscar, the annual best- picture award of the Motion Picture Academy of America. As it turned out, that prize was won by The French Connection, a somewhat more conventional crime- and- cops show, but bloody and brutal enough to meet the newly risen norm.

Historians point out that popular arts and literature have always been violent. Some social scientists say the key factor to be changed is the uses to which violence is put in modern comedy and drama. The Surgeon General's Committee suggested that by creating sympathy for the victims of society's violence, the media could move people to be "more human."

Before You Buy

by Margaret Dana

Whenever you buy something -- whether a new dishwasher or a pair of shoes, or any other product -- you literally make a CHOICE between competing products. You may not see all the different types at the store where you shop, but advertising tells you about other brands, friends report their experiences with their brands and consumer reporters acquaint you with all the various "qualities" available. So you really do choose when you buy.

But much of the rising discontent consumers feel today comes, I think, from the fact that they do not feel sure they can make a really good and informed choice when they do choose. After all, that is what "free choice" is -- informed.

Unless we as a country are to go back to ancient baronial days and let a "superior person" tell us what to buy, we shall have to develop the means of making free choice both possible and easy.

We need to establish nationally a good mechanism for getting those necessary facts across to consumer buyers without increasing our tax burden or faising prices significantly.

There are many debates these days as to the best way to find out what kinds of facts consumers want and need, how best to develop those facts and how to get them to consumers. Nearly everyone agrees that the best "bridge of communication" is the use of nationally accepted standards to express accurately and scientifically the different products. You wouldn't demand, for example, the same level of durability in a wedding dress to be worn once, and a party dress you hope to wear a dozen times. You wouldn't ask for the same level of color-fastness for a blue denim work shirt and a fancy printed sport shirt.

This is perhaps the first basic fact on which we should build our bridge of communication. Recognize that in today's complex products, uses, purposes and prices dictate the levels of performance the manufacturer will include. To get a maximum level in one thing he may have to cut down to lower levels, some other ingredients. This is O.K. -- IF the consumer buyer knows it BEFORE she or he buys.

Secondly, can we set up ways to find out what products will do and put that information on a label at the point of sale? And do consumers want some kind of assurance those promises of the label will be kept? What we are talking about is the much-discussed plan for "certification."

You have seen "seals of certification" on products often. Some are of the highest integrity. Some aren't worth much more than noble words. But if we are to use national standards and test methods as our machinery for getting facts, it is probable that some form of certification should tell you "WHO says so?"

This is where the Federal Trade Commission gets into the act. Seeing these trends developing rapidly across the country, and indeed the world, the FTC has started a study of standards -- voluntary and compulsory; the integrity of text methods -- again voluntary or compulsory; and the question of certification as a benefit to consumers.

Consumers should have a voice in deciding these important questions And the FTC invites consumers to express their opinions on thi whole problem, in writing, to the Commission.

Address your letter to: Mr John R. Ferguson, Chairman, Task Force on Industry Self-Regulation, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C. 20580.

These are the questions you are invited to answer: Would it help your buying significantly to know the levels of performance you are choosing? What kinds of facts would you like to have on labels of different products? If we use standards as "measuring-sticks" to get the facts from producers to consumers, shall those standards be set by government and be compulsory, or be set by a joint organization of consumers, producers, retailers and government experts -- and be volunatay?

Finally, do you like the idea of certification of these "promises" of performance? Do you consider that self-certification or government certification of "third-party" certification, again in the form of a joint organization of consumers, producers, retailers and government experts, should provide this assurance? Take time to think about these points and write a letter.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal answers are impossible due to large volume of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana Research Center, R. R. 1, Chalfont, Pa. 18914)

Reasons Why Missourians Will Not Sign Petitions To Raise Road Funds

1. Signing for the proposed constitutional amendment would be "signing away" our highway improvement program.

2. $224 million of road taxes would be diverted to big city rapid transit, airports and urban bus transit lines if enough voters sign the initiative petitions, and later, support the amendment, if it should get on the ballot.

3. It is unfair to tax one mode of transportation (highways) for the benefit of competing modes.

4. It would be like taxing restaurants to subsidize cafeterias, or taxing motels to keep hotels in business.

5. It is unfair to tax only one element of the population (highway users) for general purpose facilities (air terminals and transit lines).

6. Where mass transit and airports are needed in the larger cities they are usually financed from general taxes. Also, there are new Federal-aid funds for both mass transit and aviation.

7. It is unfair to tax rural and small-town Missourians to assist St. Louis and Kansas City, Agriculture, the resort and tourist business and all the county seat towns will receive little benefit.

8. City transit should be financed by its beneficiaries, like highways are financed by the users, or by general revenues from the metropolitan areas.

9. This proposition is based on an unfair principle of taxation. The number of miles a man must drive, or the assessed valuation of his car, should not be measures of his responsibility for urban rapid transit or airports.

10. The proposed road fund raid amendment contains several other issues which should be dealt with separately. The proposed $730 million transportation bond issue will not be needed for highways because the Legislature recently passed a 2 cents per gallon gasoline tax increase. Interest and debt service on the bonds will total $1,204,500,000 through the year 2007 -- more than the original issue.

11. The State Department of Transportation proposed in the referendum proposition is now obsolete, as the Legislature has enacted a governmental reorganization, including a D. O.T.

12. Motor fuel taxes and motor vehicle fees are special use taxes imposed for the sole purpose of providing funds for building and administering highways. They are "tolls" for the use of the highways. Their use for transit and airports would be a violation of their basic purpose.

13. Deficiencies in the Missouri highway and street program exist in virtually every area in the State. Any diversion of road taxes for non-highway purposes, such as transit and airports, will seriously endanger present and future highway improvement plans..

14. Missourians have voted four times for constitutional protection of highway funds -- in 1928, 1945, 1962, and 1970. Road funds are safeguarded from diversion in 28 states.

15. Motor vehicle owners are now very heavily taxed. They provide the entire cost of the State highway and freeway systems without subsidy. Also they pay the total cost of the Missouri Highway Patrol, the Motor Vehicle and Driver License Divisions, and substantial allocations to several other state government departments. There is no ethical reason why they should now be asked to support additional, local, non-highway functions.

Home Owner Should Take Care In Buying

KANSAS CITY — This month's column should only be read by people who do not have a great deal of money to lose. If by chance you are among this large class of people read on.

Spring is now with us and home owners' thoughts turn to such things as painting the family abode. Spring also brings out the home improvement salesman. Somewhere near you, on this very day, a consumer is being given the "model home" pitch.

Basically, this involves a home owner being told that a new product is being introduced into the area and his home is in a good location to display the new product. The consumer is further told that he will receive a big discount off the regular price if the company can put on the siding, awnings, etc., in order that others might see it.

The home owner is told that because this is part of an advertising campaign, the company will put the product on at cost if the company can put a sign in the yard stating the name of the company installing the product. Any attempt by the home owner to delay the decision is met with an answer something like this: "We can only come to this town one time, and if you do not want this fabulous deal, we have five or six other prospects who want to deal right now." All too often this results in the customer signing a contract with an unknown company without checking the company's reputation.

Remember, in most cases, after the contract is signed, it is too late to check a company's reputation with Better Business Bureaus and other institutions. Also, it is too late to compare the price quoted with quotes by reliable local contractors. Many times, instead of getting a real discount on home improvements, a home owner pays twice as much as he would have been charged by a local contractor.

Some basic rules to remember:

1. Never sign a contract with an unknown home improvement company without checking the company's reputation first.

2. Never sign a contract with an out-of-town or unknown company without getting quotes from local known contractors, to compare,

3. Under the Truth in Lending law, you are entitled to a three-day period in which the contract can be rescinded by you. If the sale is on credit, the company must give you a preprinted form with which you can cancel the contract.

4. Be dubious of savings claims and statements that your home will be used as a "model home."

Remember the great majority of American businessmen are hard working and honest, but don't you be the one to be victimized by the 1% or so which are unscrupulous.

Prepared as a public service by the Kansas City Regional Office of the Federal Trade Commission, 2806 Federal Building, 911 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Missouri 64106. Next month: Common Deceptions Used by Vocational and Trade Schools.

The American Indian population of the United States increased more than 50 per cent since 1960, according to the preliminary count for the 1970 Census. The 1970 Census count of American Indians reached 791,839, The World Almanac notes, with 53 per cent of this number living in five states.

Book Review

FACT AND FANCY
by Isaac Asimov
208 pp.)

FACT AND FANCY is Isaac Asimov's speculative work extending pure scientific facts to their logical, but hypothetical conclusions. For example, something must exist beyond the planets, but what? Possibly just a lot of ice! Gravity is all around us, even on the distant planets, but can you ever escape it? No. Never!

These are many other carefully reasoned suppositions offer a treasury of startling ideas that are very much within the realm of scientific possibilities. They could very well all be true, but so far unproven. Dr. Asimov explains how he arrives at his ideas in an easily understandable manner accompanied by many illustrations.

Isaac Asimov is undoubtedly America's foremost writer of science for the layman. His science fiction titles (among them THE FOUNDATION TRIOLOGY published by Avon) have established him as an important writer of the intriguing marriage between science and imagination, between FACT AND FANCY.

"There is no doubt that it is a most fascinating piece of writing, due in large part to the tremendous enthusiasm Asimov obviously has for the subject." -- Library Journal

KREY

VEAL AND HAM TREATS:

Top thin slices of serving-size veal cutlet with slices of KREY Gourmet Ham. Dip in a mixture of Parmesan cheese and bread crumbs. Then in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs and cheese again. Then saute in butter about 10-minutes at low heat on each side. Serve with tomato sauce. (KREY Gourmet Ham makes any recipe you use superior because of its superior slow smoking.)

KREY

DEVILED HAM NOODLES:

Cook and drain 8 ounce package of noodles, then stir in ½ pound chopped KREY Gourmet Ham and about 2 cups Cream Sauce. Place in casserole, top with 6 halves of deviled eggs, and heat in 350° oven before serving. (Long slow smoking lets robust flavor seep into the very center of every tender KREY Gourmet Ham.)

KREY

HONEY-ORANGE HAM:

Spread 1 inch thick slice of KREY Gourmet Ham with honey. Sprinkle with grated orange rind. Moisten brown sugar with orange juice and spread over all. Broil 5 to 6 minutes. Take out of broiler, spread other side in the same way, and broil again for 5 to 6 minutes. Garnish with sections of orange. (KREY Gourmet Hams are smoked longer and they're all solid meat.)

KREY

GOURMET BACON NESTS:

Line cups of muffin tin with strips of lean KREY Gourmet Bacon and heat in 400° oven until bacon is well done but not crisp. Add one egg to each muffin cup and bake until set. Be careful not to let the yolk get hard. Empty each nest on crisp toast and top with barbecue sauce.

KREY

HAM POCKETS INDIA:

Roll out 10 refrigerated biscuits to ⅛ inch and top each with 1 tablespoon of the following mixture: 1 cup ground KREY Gourmet Ham, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire, 3 table-

Hayti Council Talks Waste System

HAYTI — Power failure cut short the meeting of the Hayti city council Monday night where discussion of a solid waste system for Pemiscot County was the main order of business.

jay Waggoner, sanitation engineer of the Bootheel Regional Planning commission, Malden, presented to the council the proposed Pemiscot county Solid Waste Management System as prepared by the Bootheel Commission. Waggoner had previously presented this plan to the Caruthersville and Steele city officials.

The purpose of the system, Waggoner explained, is to provide an economical, efficient, and flexible solid waste management system for the county which would provide for solid waste disposal facilities for the entire county and would provide for solid waste collection where it is financially possible.

He told the council that the method to achieve the system would be that revenues from participating cities and the county would be turned over to the authority in accordance with contractural agreements. The authority would have the option of providing the service or contracting with individuals to provide the service.

The total initial cost will be the cost of equipment for residential and commercial - institutional collection and the proposed site improvements. This amount is $171,000.

Waggoner said the Farmers Home Administration would loan that entire amount to Hayti as well as Steele and the county. He noted, however, that the authority will have to secure $41,000 in the form of a loan for Caruthersville's share because since that city's population is over 5,000, the administration cannot make a loan for this purpose.

Revenues would be broken down to a charge of $2 per household per month in Hayti as well as Steele and Caruthersville. Revenue bonds would finance the system and major decisions would be made by the board of directors composed of the presiding judge of Pemiscot County, and the mayors of Hayti, Caruthersville, and Steele.

In other business:

The council voted unanimously to approve the Bank of Hayti and the Missouri Delta Bank as the official city depositories.

Considerable discussion was held on the record keeping of the city cemeteries and it was noted that past records were poorly kept, particularly concerning sales of lots and burials. City Clerk E. H. Webb was instructed to check into the matter.

Frankly Speaking
by Thomas Eagleton

Once again a man seeking the Presidency of the United States has been struck down by violence. Once again a shocked and saddened nation asks itself how such a thing could happen.

This time, thank God, the gunman was not totally successful. As of this writing the doctors say that Governor George Wallace will live. Whether or not he will remain partly paralyzed is not yet known, but his mind is sound, and that is the most important thing.

Apparently the shooting was, once again, the irrational act of a disturbed man who acted alone. I am not a believer in the conspiratorial view of life, but in a way a conspiracy in such a case almost would be more comforting. Men conspire because of specific circumstances not likely to be repeated exactly ever again. Conspiracies are possible to detect and stop.

But there is no defense against a determined fanatic willing to sacrifice himself. There is no way to predict when such behavior might occur in this nation of more than 200 million persons. All we know is that it has happened with terrifying frequency in the last few years.

A Sick Society?

Are we, as some commentators inevitably decide after each political tragedy, a sick society?

Emphatically no. One or a few madmen cannot be taken to mean the whole society is sick. We are a little lost, perhaps. We are certainly divided. Most of us feel some alienation, some feeling of being cut off or of being used.

Perhaps our voices, as we argue out our differences, have become too strident. Perhaps our tolerance for the other person's point of view has lessened. Unquestionably we are tending too much to release our frustrations through the easy road of violence, fed by huge daily doses of make-believe violence in our entertainment media.

But we are not a sick society, nor are we close to being one. The best proof is our resiliency to pick ourselves up and continue forward each time mindless violence is committed against a political leader.

We Are All Demeaned

We are, however, each of us, demeaned by the assault on Governor Wallace, as we were by the assaults on Dr. Martin Luther King and on John and Robert Kennedy. They were not only senseless, brutal assaults on human beings. In a larger sense they also were assaults on the Democratic process in America, and we all share the wounds.

America is governed by ballots, not bullets. Maybe we all need to moderate our views somewhat, and certainly we could find more moderate ways to express them. But America is a free society, based on the free exchange of ideas and the free expression of views, and always will be. No matter what happens America will never accept the whims of a deranged gunman.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

What an experience!! We've just returned home from a four day trip to Lake of the Ozarks, where we attended a press meeting held at Tan-Tar-A, and we took four children with us (one to brighten and enliven each day). Really, we had a wonderful time, but what a riot. My two fellas, a friend of theirs, my niece and her parents drove (packed like sardines), in one car to meet Charles (the rat fink, he had a whole car to himself), who was already there and waiting for us. Having gone those curvy roads before with my crew, I greeted brother-in-law loaded down with sacks, kleenex, wet rags and Dramamine and he about died at all that mess in his clean car, but I insisted and away we went. Ha, my three traveled beautifully, but his poor wee one ended up in dire need of all my medical needs, in fact, the only thing my fellas did was consume fourteen dollars worth of junk which I had also brought along to snack on in the cabin, and then they did do a little dentist work on the friend. Brete pulled his tooth and became very excited upon examining that object because the nerves (that's what they called them), appeared to be green and they assured me this was very unusual, however, this turned out to only be a piece of pistachio nut lodged in the dislodged tooth so peace fell once again and only the sound of munching filled the air. We finally arrived, went first off to the grocery store for more goodies - where else - and from then on the time consisted of late horror movies, early (very early, Lee & I watched the sun rise our first morning out), fishing jaunts, swimming, pin ball and pool shooting, bowling, and I guess I should have put eating in between each of those activities. Little boys are born empty and brother, they stay that way!!

I wish to make an apology to Mrs. Deema Atteberry for not having given credit to her for her delicious cranberry salad in my cookbook. I thought this was one my mother had worked out but she says no - that that recipe belongs to Deema and another has never been made to equal its goodness, so my apologies and remember send in your coupon —

He also questioned whether the commission had information on how many tax-free dollars Southwestern Bell was receiving because of depreciation. Fine said that hearings in Iowa for Northwestern Bell indicated the figure increased $4 million in one year.

Fine asked the commission to determine "what will create a healthy competitive market and what will dampen all hopes of competition existing against the Bell monopoly."

Panel Okays Anti-Hijack Device Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concerned about the airplane hijacking problem, the House Appropriations Committee has approved funds to buy 800 more magnetometers to screen passengers and baggage.

The magnetometers are highly sensitive to metal such as guns or bombs.

In a $2.9-billion appropriation bill sent to the House for consideration later this week, the committee added $2 million to purchase 800 of the devices to supplement 350 already in use. The Federal Aviation Administration will give or loan them to airlines.

The FAA funds were included in a bill financing the Department of Transportation for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Phone Rate Hike Called Monopolistic

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)—An officer of a St. Louis area electronics firm said Monday that the proposed $63.5 million annual rate increase by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. could destroy competition in telephone equipment in the St. Louis area.

"We are convinced that Bell's rates and proposed tariff changes are not only to destroy competition but are excessive to the public," said Stan Fine, vice president of Tech Electronics, Inc., in testimony prepared for a hearing before the Missouri Public Service Commission.

The commission opened two days of hearings in Clayton today on the proposed rate increase. It completed two weeks of testimony in Jefferson City last week.

Fine said in his prepared statement that he felt the commission had not fully explored the competitive effect of Bell's request.

COOKING-UP

Today brings fulfillment of a request for the Freezer Strawberry Jam recipe printed last year and another request for ideas on cold soups.

Oddly enough the soup rules were easily found, but the recipe for barely-cooked strawberry preserves has eluded me for several weeks.

While on the subject of cold soups, I must pass on a humerous thought. Headlining a recent article on the "lo-cal" benefits of many cold soups were the words "Having Bikini Woes?" I'm inclined to answer that kind of question in a near out-loud manner ... "as a matter of fact, I am ... and all of the cold soups in the world can't cure it!" At any rate, have included a rule for a Spanish summer soup made chunky instead of traditionally smooth -- Gazpacho. It really amounts to a liquid salad, but whatever the texture, it is good served ICY cold and with a couple of rye crackers.

The other cold soups are rich and yummy and should not be confused with the above attempt at slimming down. The fruit versions can be used almost any time, as can the tomato rule, which was, incidentally, a favorite dish of the Kennedy's during their years in the White House. Serve it as a preview to your outdoor feast over the coming Memorial Day.

Happy Holiday ...

FREEZER STRAWBERRY JAM

1 -3/4 cups ripe strawberries (about 1 quart)
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
4 cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 bottle liquid fruit pectin (6 oz. size)

Mix pureed strawberries, grated rind and sugar in bowl. Mix lemon juice and liquid pectin; stir into strawberry mixture. Continue to stir for 3 minutes. (There will still be some undissolved sugar crystals). Spoon or ladle into jars or freezer containers. Cover with tight lids and let stand at room temperature until set, as long as 24 hours. Store in freezer. The jam will keep in the refrigerator for 3 weeks.

Makes about 5 medium jars.

ICED TOMATO SOUP

6 large ripe tomatoes, coarsely chopped
1 onion, chopped
¼ cup water
½ tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
2 T. tomato paste
2 T. flour
2 chicken bouillon cubes, dissolved in 2 cups boiling water
1 cup heavy cream

Combine tomatoes, onion, water, salt and pepper in a saucepan. Cook over moderate heat five minutes. Combine tomato paste with flour and add to tomatoes with bouillon. Simmer gently three minutes. Rub mixture through a fine sieve. Chill several hours. Before serving, add cream. Season to taste with more salt, if necessary. Garnish each serving with a thin tomato slice if desired.

SOUR CREAM STRAWBERRY SOUP

In a large saucepan combine 3 cups sliced strawberries with 1 cup sugar and ½ cup water. Bring mixture to boil and simmer it for 5 minutes. Stir in 2 tsp. arrowroot mixed with a little water and 1 cup each red wine and orange juice. Slowly bring the mixture to boil and cook it, stirring constantly, until it is slightly thickened. Let it cool. Pour into blender, cover container and blend at high speed 'til pureed. Gradually stir in 1½ cups sour cream. Chill soup and garnish with sliced strawberries.

STRAWBERRY SOUP

Combine 2 cups strawberries, 1 cup water and ½ cup sugar in blender container. Puree'. Stir in thoroughly 1 cup white wine, 1-2 T. lemon juice, and 1 tsp. grated lemon peel. Chill soup and garnish with sliced strawberries.

Coats Are Last Word In Fashion

NEW YORK (AP) — Big sleeves, big coats, big shoes — some fall fashions have ballooned in size.

"I concentrated on big sleeves," said designer Issey Miyake, following his fall show for Paris Collections Monday.

His clothes are a great blend of familiar and strange looks. He showed big-sleeved lamb wool jackets—very short—over thigh-high wrapped platform boots and pants in an unusual cotton, woven to look quilted.

"It took me a year to develop the fabric," said Miyake, who used it for reversible jackets, in bright blocks of color, as well as peddle pushers and even shorts.

His sleeves got even bigger and rounder for evening—in snow and rain print blouses and pants.

Miyake likes man-made suede combinations, sometimes in monotones, ending in peculiar shoes and boots which he designs. They are large platform styles, some with turned up toes and ankle lacings.

The thick soles are made of cork so they're very light, says Miyake. However, it's not easy to develop an undulating walk in them. A clip-clop step is more like it.

His midi pants showed off the shoes to their best or worst advantage—depending on how you feel about them. And you're bound to feel strongly one way or the other. Actually, they grow on you.

For his generous, blousy evening dresses, he used a mathematical print, designed by Makiko Minakawa—instead of the popular plaids.

"Everyone was going checked and stripes. Pop prints were finished. What could we do?" said Miyake, who previously worked for Givenchy in Paris, then Geoffrey Beene in New York, and finally went to Tokyo to do his own designs in 1970.

The collection is priced $40 for blouses, up to $300.

Designer Scott Barrie has his own version of the larger, easier coat.

He does an extended shoulder. It looks like the coat is too big for the model, but it holds the attention because you keep trying to figure out what is going on. It's very casual-looking.

Scott keeps the loose look with his short dolman sleeved sweaters, and dresses with tucked shoulders and flaring skirts.

His version of the short evening dress defies that stiffed look. He does dresses with tiers of pleated chiffon which show more leg than the mini ever did.

His clothes are priced up to $250.

Tykes' Trip Togs That Can Take It

NEW YORK — (NEA) — When you take the kids on a vacation, their clothes get as much of a workout as the youngsters do. They must be chosen with an eye to comfort for the children and easy-care for mom. And they should be wrinkle-resistant for travel, too.

Anyone who has ever toted suitcases on and off airplanes or in and out of car trunks knows, too, that packability in minimal space can't be overlooked in choosing vacation clothes.

For putting the ideal vacation wardrobe to the test, where could be more ideal than Walt Disney World at Orlando, Fla.?

A fast ride on the ultra-modern Monorail will get you to the Magic Kingdom in no time. They can greet Mickey Mouse wearing an A-B-C jumper set in a crisp blend of polyester and cotton, and then walk into the past as they enter the magical Cinderella Castle.

Ride the Riverboat in rugged jeans and sweatshirt tops of Acrilan acrylic emblazoned with an emblem. Then they can paddle their own canoe on the glistening rivers of America or climb way up into The Swiss Family Robinson Island Tree House.

Stretch terry cloth in a blend of Acrilan, nylon and cotton is a cool, comfortable, giveable fabric for such strenuous activity.

World War II Novel

THE GRAND DEFIANCE. By Bernard Frizell. Morrow. $6.95.

Escape and pursuit are the tension-building elements of this novel, which is based on an actual occurrence.

The time is June, 1940, and the German war machine has overrun France. The most skilful military strategist in France, Gen. Alain deForge, has been captured. He is sent to a fortress atop a mountain peak in East Germany, where according to his rank he is a privileged prisoner.

But there seems no hope of escape, and even if the general were to get out of the fortress along a slender underground network, clear across the breadth of Germany.

Gen. deForge is one of those indomitable, charismatic characters who never give up.

Nixon Summons Chief U.S. Arms Negotiator To Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon, near final agreement with Soviet leaders on a pact to limit strategic arms, joined Premier Alexei N. Kosygin today in signing an agreement aimed at putting American and Soviet space explorers into orbit together by 1975.

At the same ceremony, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Vladimir Kirillin, chairman of the Soviet committee for science and technology, signed still another accord calling for U.S.-Soviet cooperation in scientific and technological fields.

Under the terms of the strategic arms limitation pact, it was learned, the two countries will join in a treaty limiting deployment of defensive antiballistic missiles and will sign an executive agreement freezing the current number of landbased missile-launching platforms while allowing the Soviets to catch up with an American lead in missile launchers at sea.

Under the SALT pact, it was understood, each country could go ahead with replacement of present-generation offensive missiles as technology permits, but would not be allowed to increase their number.

Ambassador Gerard Smith is coming to Moscow Thursday from Helsinki, Finland, where he has been negotiating with Soviet envoys in the strategic arms limitation talks. The chief Soviet envoy at Helsinki, Vladimir Semenov, also is expected to return here.

As President Nixon met for the fourth time in the Kremlin with Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev, the sources said the negotuators hope to be ready for the signing Friday of a treaty covering the ABM curb and a less formal agreement for the freeze on offensive missiles, both those based on land and those on submarines and surface ships.

The agreement apparently would not bar either country from installing improved missiles at existing launch sites.

It is expected that the agreement will provide for the use of reconnaissance satellites to verify that missile emplacements are not being increased by either country.

Nixon and Brezhnev are expected to hold both morning and afternoon sessions today and then to participate in the signing of an agreement for cooperation in space exploration, the third accord produced during Nixon's visit to the Soviet capital.

There was speculation that one of the goals of the space agreement might be joint orbital trips by U. S. and Soviet astronauts before the 200th birthday celebration of the United States in 1976.

The President emerged briefly from the Kremlin today for the first time since he arrived in Moscow on Monday to place a wreath at the tomb of an unknown soldier killed in the defense of the Soviet capital in 1941. The general public was barred from the area alongside the Kremlin Wall, but about 150 Muscovites watched impassively as Nixon's motorcade made the short trip through closed-off streets.

Mrs. Nixon continued to do the sightseeing for the first family. Her itinerary today included Moscow University, the big GUM department store and a night at the circus.

The summit bore its first modest fruits Tuesday with the signing of two agreements—for American-Soviet cooperation in combating killer diseases and environmental pollution.

Nixon and President Nikolai V. Podgorny signed the pollution accord at a brief ceremony in the Kremlin. Then Secretary of State William P. Rogers and the Soviet health minister, Boris V. Petrovsky, initialed the other.

Man Arrested, Charged In Bank Robbery

MARBLE HILL, Mo. (AP)-Authorities in Bollinger County have filed a first-degree armed robbery charge against a man arrested Tuesday in connection with the $9,000 robbery of a Lutesville bank Monday.

Prosecuting Atty. Kenneth Shrum said the charge was filed against a man identified by the FBI as Robert Chase, about 30. Chase was charged in connection with the armed robbery of the Bollinger County Bank.

Police said they were still searching for the stolen money and a stolen car used in the holdup.

Chase was being held in the Cape Girardeau County Jail at Jackson today, and Shrum said he will be transferred to Marble Hill. He said a bond of $20,000 has been recommended.

Chase was identified through fingerprints, according to Shrum. Police

Jail Time Credit Denied Slayer

NEW MADRID — Dan W. Gray, serving a 60-year sentence for the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Cletus Phillips in 1960, was denied credit Monday for 441 days he claims he spent in jail before and after his trial and before he was sentenced.

Circuit Judge William H. Billings denied Gray's motion. Gray said he has served 12 years and three months with merit time earned.

If given credit for the 441 days, it would enable him to be eligible for parole when he had credit for serving one third of his term.

The Missouri Supreme Court has upheld Gray's conviction and sentence.

New Madrid Medical Poverty Pocket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three areas in Missouri and one in Kansas are among 122 in the nation designated by the governmnet as medical poverty pockets eligible for low-cost treatment by federal doctors, nurses and dentists.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Tuesday 152 physicians, 20 dentists, 72 nurses and 44 other health professionals will be assigned to the selected areas in 39 states and the District of Columbia in July after further assessment of local needs.

In Missouri the areas are Kansas City, Mountain View and New Madrid, and in Kansas it is Louisburg.

Fees will be charged on the basis of ability to pay. Treatment will be free to many patients. Since the personnel is salaried, any fees will go to the government.

Pointing to low incomes and high crime rates that apparently have caused professional shortages, the federal government says it will provide 122 areas of the country with low-cost medical and dental aid.

Fees will be charged on the basis of ability to pay, and treatment will be free to many poor patients - mostly minority group members.

The entire state of Alaska will receive the low-cost assistance, HEW said.

HEW said the program is funded by approximately $15 million this year under the 1970 Emergency Health Personnel Act and an identical amount requested for fiscal 1973.

Grant For Oran Park Approved

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Department of Housing and Urban Development today announced approval of a $12,868 open space grant to Oran for development of park space.

The grant will be used for new basketball courts, playground equipment and to provide sewer and water service to the park.

The grant was announced by U. S. Senators Thomas Eagleton and Stuart Symington, and Rep. Bill Burlison.

10th District Uncommitted

Hearnes Scores Victory

MINER — Democrats in he 10th District will send five uncommitted degelates to the national party convention in July at Miami Beach. District Democrats chose their delegates and alternates last night at the Ramada Inn.

An attempt by Rep. Bill Burlison to seize control of the delegation fizzled quickly when only one of his supporters was nominated in delegate voting and two supporters were nominated for alternates. All three lost. This was a victory for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Delegates chosen were S. "Smokey" H. James, 56, Clarkton; Erman Brawley, 58, Ellington; Ken Mehrle, 46, Cape Girardeau, Brunson Hollingsworth, 39, Hillsboro; and James Watson, 39, Barnhart.

Alternates chosen were Bill Stacey, 33, of Cape Girardeau; Harry Peterson, 40, Flta River; and Mrs. Faye Romburg, 59, Farmington.

Stoddard County Delegates C.H. Parsons was nominated as a national delegate and Gene Shane of Butler County and Jim Metzler, a teenager from Perry County, were nominated as alternates. They were described by party regulars as being "Burlison People."

Party irregulars did not fair well in other conventions around the state either. Party leaders were able to keep 44 of the 55 delegate seats in their hands. The 11 seats they lost went for presidential candidate Den. George McGovern of South Dakota.

The state's 73-member delegation will be completed with the naming of 18 at-large delegates at the state convention June 10 in Jefferson City.

Hearns set the pace for the district conventions by taking a non-committed stance after Sen. Edmund Muskie withdrew from the Presidential race.

The governor said most Missouri Democrats know the "National campaign remains uncertain and could undergo many changes before the July 10 convention at Miami Beach."

In some areas, young party members stormed the ward meetings on behalf of McGovern, but found their strength diluted by the time they got to the district conventions.

Burlison failed to swing the Cape Girardeau County delegation over to this side. The Cape Girardeau delegation was crucial for Burlison. Without it he was without leverage in the convention.

Ed Downs, Cape Girardeau attorney and county Democratic chairman, said Burlison failed because party workers resented a government official, even a congressman, meddling in their affairs. It also shows, he said that a group of people can't come in at the last minute and take control of the party.

Burlison was believed planning to throw his support to either Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas or McGovern.

While the irregulars failed in most areas they succeded in capturing the St. Louis 2nd District where they elected six delegates and four alternates. Three more McGovern backers were elected from the 6th District at St. Joseph, where the delegation was split.

Women landed only 16 of the 55 delegates seats making their best showing in Kansas City where five of the six 5th Distirct delegates are women.

Only one woman, Mrs. Romburg, was elected as either a delegate or alternate in the 10th distirct.

Reclaiming Land Part Of Mining Process

By DENISE BLANKENSHIP

BENTON — Land adjacent to Highway 61 four miles south of Benton exposed by stripmining for clay, is being reclaimed.

The mining and reclaiming are by A.P. Green Refractories Co., Oran division. Eddie Hanstein, plant manager, explained the reclaiming process.

"As each new pit is opened up for mining, the overburden (earth) removed is placed in the adjacent pit. It's a process of digging out and refilling."

A problem was created with the first pit-there wasn't any pit to receive the overburden. So it was piled up, creating an unsightly 15-foot mound of raw earth.

What remains of that dirt pile is now a ridge, bulldozed into shape and covered with vegetation. The ridge hides another open pit, partially filled with stagnant water. This pit will be filled as soon as mining starts on an adjacent area.

Another pit exposed by strip mining adjacent to Highway 61 also has been partly reclaimed. The high ridge piled up has been graded back, leaving a sloping hillside. This has been seeded but Hanstein said "if it doesn't rain soon we'll have to reseed."

The past pit also presents a problem because there won't be any overburden left to fill it. Hanstein said the last pit would "probably be allowed to fill with water and then be stocked with fish."

Of the 400 acres available for mining "only a dent has been made so far," Hanstein said. "What happens to this land after we've removed all the clay won't have to be settled in my lifetime."

Besides reclaiming problems the company has until the first part of October to comply with state pollution controls. Citing the problem of uncertainty about what these controls would require, Hanstein doesn't think the plant will meet the deadline.

"The equipment has been ordered but I doubt if it will get here on time," he said. "We are attempting compliance and I think that will be taken into consideration."

Pollution devices include a dust collector which is nearing installation.

A.P. Green produces high refractory and absorbent material.

With central headquarters in Mexico, Mo., the company has a branch called the prospect department. It takes care of obtaining mining permits, points out the best areas to mine, grades the clay mined on quality and sees that proper mining operations are carried out.

The Oran plant mines only three to four months a year. The rest of the time time Hanstein supervises the manufacture of herbicide and pesticide carriers and cat litter.

These products require high grade clay because of its absorbency.

When its mined, layer after layer of earth is stripped away until a vein is exposed. The clay is then stockpiled in mounds and covered until it is needed.

Mining operations will resume in two weeks.

COMMON SENSE
AND DDT

The recent decision ruling that the benefits of DDT far outweigh the risks, and that the government reverse its ban on this valuable pesticide, is a finding to be commended by all of us. After years of strident argument for banning DDT, a governmental inquiry under the direction of Edmund Sweeney for the first time heard all the evidence pro and con. The result, that followed seven months of testimony, clearly shows that DDT is a highly beneficial compound — it has saved more lives than all the wonder drugs combined — and that it presents no threat to man or the environment. The forces noisily arrayed against DDT have had their day in court and lost. As Nobel Prize winner Dr. Norman Borlaug, recently summed it up, "The evidence is all in. The report wrote itself." Now it is up to Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus, who appointed Mr. Sweeney for the task, to confirm the recommendation and reverse the unwarranted ban on DDT.

We happen to be among those who believe that the replacement of J. Edgar Hoover as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will be the most difficult selection made by a President and confirmed by the U. S. Senate.

Despite recent critics of Mr. Hoover and the FBI, this single man moulded the finest law investigation and enforcement organization that hasn't been matched -- yet he kept it from becoming a national police force to be used as a political tool. Also, it was Hoover's plan to assist and to train the local policemen which upgraded law enforcement in every city and state across the nation.

We agree that no public servant is indispensable, but a man of Hoover's caliber doesn't appear on the scene in every generation, unfortunately.

As another editor said: "The chances are that the FBI has already passed its 'Shining Hour'."

A SECOND
REVOLUTION?

At a time of great delicacy for Russian imperial policies, when Leonid Brezhnev has spoken openly and nervously about a secret Sino-American entente, samizdat power has achieved the release of some of its more prominent people.

Intelligence Digest's information from Moscow sources makes it clear that the regime is backing away from the discredited methods of repression, although not of course from its attempt. Its Jewish victims, in particular, hope for little mercy. But samizdat, and the samizdat journal (the so-called Chronicle of Current Events, now being translated and published outside Russia) is now a very live and potent force in Russian political life.

No Soviet leader can go to the conference table, and no KGB prison hospital orderly can torment a university professor, or tie up a drugged boy in wet canvas, without a thought to those all-seeing, all-knowing, all-telling typists in back rooms and attics and basements, and to those shorthand note-takers and couriers who flit from office to prison, to courtroom, to classroom, to hiding place, to hospital, to meeting.

There are too many of them, they are too intelligent, they know too much of the weaknesses of the Soviet bureaucracy (and to some extent staff it) to be caught and muzzled by policemen whose tradition is circumscribed by cellars and guns and manacles.

All this is some achievement, and should be fully recognized.

These reports are titled "Revolt in Russia," and rebel after rebel has been at pains to point out that the movement is non-violent. All the same, Intelligence Digest observes that it is more than just a classic, middle-class movement.

Andrei Amalrik was asked in 1970 if he thought there would be a "second Russian revolution." He replied:

"I don't think there is any such possibility at the moment. But in ten or fifteen years' time, as I have written, such a possibility may emerge and a revolution will take place. But what kind of revolution it will be and whether the regime produced by the revolution will be better than the one we live under now I do not know, of course."

A few weeks later, on May 21, he was arrested.

The "New Left" in the West presents a sorry picture, set beside the heroism of Russia's educated underground. The samizdat movement is outside all their reckoning. Where they are clamant, indeed raucous, the Russian rebels are almost muted in their dedication to sane and reasonable argument. Where the New Left leaders garner all the publicity for themselves that money can reward, the Soviet rebels go to prison, and worse, for their friends.

The Angela Davises face the softest justice in the world, and the Press of many nations fawns upon them. The Soviet dissidents, while their cause is just, and their friends are many, move through a tunnel of darkness without a weapon between them. Theirs is not the brotherhood of Soledad.

For the Old Left, the seedily treacherous, fellow-traveling friends of Stalin's Russia, who once made all the running in every "progressive" department of western life, and whose dead hand is still felt on much of western politics, education, and art, and new Russian rebels have nothing but contempt.

For the rebels, there is no going back. Something very big has started on its way. It is firmly founded on a base of complete political and intellectual honesty. For those who consider that truth has survival power, it is good to know that it has Russian witnesses of obvious courage.

The intellectual protest movement has moved into position against an entire empire and its system. In Russia itself, not a single shot has been fired. But the present success of the revolt can be measured in the back-tracking statements of Soviet officialdom, the release of prisoners, and the current inertia in Russian foreign policy.

The movement's future success could be immeasurable, which may well affect the course of history.

HONORED DEAD
STILL LIVE

Any American serviceman who gives his life at his country's request deserves to be remembered with honor.

Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, which began 104 years ago with the gracious custom of Southern ladies decorating the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers, now honors our dead of all wars.

While the observance has become more of a holiday associated with picnics and outings, rather than a day hallowed by the debt owed to fallen heroes, the real significance should not be forgotten.

Those who are vociferous in condemning their country's involvement in Vietnam should pause on this day to join those who feel otherwise in honoring the brave men who have given their lives.

Memorial Day is a day for respectful recollection, not for shrill attacks on policy.

A NO. 1
INDUSTRY PROBLEM

What's the biggest security problem in industry today? Espionage by competitors? Bomb threats? Riots?

None of these. According to a nationwide survey by the American Society for Personnel Administration in co-operation with the Bureau of National Affairs, the No. 1 headache is still theft — most often theft by employes. Vandalism comes second in frequency, bomb scares are third and drug abuse is fourth.

To get an indication of current polices and practices in industrial security, the two organizations polled a cross-section of companies in a variety of industries. Responses were received from 176 of them — 63 per cent manufacturing, 25 per cent nonmanufacturing and 12 per cent governmental and nonprofit concerns.

Security problems have brought many changes in company policies. The survey found that practices include:

. Lie Detector Tests — 20 per cent of the large companies (more than 1,000 employes) use them.

. Package Checks — 40 per cent of the large companies and 20 per cent of the small companies (fewer than 1,000 employes) have initiated them.

. Identification Badges — 50 per cent of the large companies use them.

. Electronic Surveillance — 30 per cent of the large companies use it in high risk areas. This includes closed-circuit television.

Moral deterioration, less respect for authority and greater instability among today's employes were some of the explanations offered by personnel executives for the increased need for security programs.

On the encouraging side, however, while just under half of the companies said that employe theft was a relatively frequent occurrence, more than half reported it was rarely, if ever, a problem for them.

This year, 1972, may be remembered as the year of consumer revolution.

One advertising executive has said it may represent the beginning of a new era in advertising. "It will separate real advertising from slush."

Every indicator of consumer buying potential shows that the consumer has more disposable income than at anytime in history.

If his buying seems slow in some areas, it is because the consumer is more discriminating than ever. He is buying more from head and less from heat of emotions.

"The consumer has become cynical to appeals to vanity, status, fear, and pseudo - happiness. Now he looks for value," the executive said.

This opinion is confirmed by the increasing profits of great retail stores which depend primarily upon newspaper advertising for sales. Their quarterly financial statements reflect no sign of recession.

Newspaper advertising is a straight appeal to the intellect. When it offers value, the offer is based on complete information from which the newly sophisticated consumer can make a solid decision.

Merchants who recognize this unique quality of local newspaper advertising yet flourish.

The nationally known economist and columnist for Newsweek magazine, Dr. Milton Friedman, is one of the few individuals that has had the temerity to stick a needle in the balloon of that sacred cow, the U. S. Social Security System. He calls the manner in which the system is presented: "... an egregious example of misleading advertising."

Dr. Friedman takes a widely circulated booklet of the U. S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare and shows how the statements contained therein are grossly deceptive. For isntance, the booklet says, "The basic idea of social security is a simple one: During working years employees, their employers, and self-employed people pay social security contributions which are pooled in special trust funds. When earning stops or are reduced because the worker retires, dies, or becomes disabled, monthly cash benefits are paid to replace part of the earnings the family has lost." As Prof. Friedman points out, labeling payroll taxes as contributions is like saying compulsory means voluntary. And, as for trust funds, they are a joke. Says Prof. Friedman, "The fact is that currently collected taxes are being used to pay current benefits. No trust fund in any meaningful sense is being accumulated." He calls the social security system a one-sided "compact between the generations." He likens the "trust fund" to a "chain letter," that old fad of a number of years ago that paid off for the early starters and left late comers holding the bag.

Concludes Dr. Friedman of social security, "I know of no greater triumph of imagination packaging and Madison Avenue advertising."

ADVERTISING IS

The notion that advertising, which helps to promote high-volume, low-cost sales, is a charge against consumers is taken to task by a representative of a typical power company, who explains why his company believes in advertising. He observes: "Advertising helps my company provide one of the highest energy consumption states in the nation the best possible utility service at the lowest possible cost. In order to operate economically, we must build load in off-peak periods of the day and off-peak seasons of the year to fill in the valleys. Otherwise facilities and equipment would be sitting idle much of the time, and the average cost of producing a unit of energy would go up. The result would be lower operating efficiency for us and higher rates for our customers."

It is easy to talk about eliminating a service or a functioning part of production, and distribution -- such as advertising -- without pausing to think of the consequences. The theory that a better life can be achieved by slowing down the mechanism that has given our country a record standard of living is ill-founded and unworkable. It actually poses a threat to long-term environmental goals. Criticism of utility advertising out of concern for the environment is a disservice to future generations.

Again, in the words of the utility representative, "Power generation causes only a very small per cent of air pollution. As new, more efficient plants are built that percentage is dropping... The fact is more energy is needed to undertake the tremendous environmental house-cleaning job that needs to be done. All of these environmental clean-up devices are powered by electricity or natural gas." And advertising is one of the tools that has lifted the art of producing energy to a point where it is the ally, rather than the enemy, of environmentalism.

STEEL INVESTS OVER
AIR—WATER POLLUTION

Since 1966, domestic steelmakers put more than a half a billion dollars worth of new air and water poliution control equipment into operation. They have budgeted an additional third of a billion dollars for other environmental protection facilities for 1972 or beyond, according to the Iron and Steel Institute.

Firms producing about 98 per cent of the nation's iron and steel started up a record $166,385,000 worth of environmental quality control facilities during 1971, bringing the five year total up to $556,559,000.

All told, the industry has spent more than $1 billion for air and water cleansing facilities in the past 20 years. Steel industry experts estimate that every year it costs 10 per cent of original investment just to maintain and operate these facilities.

U.S. LIVES AT STAKE

The Joint Chiefs of Staff and our most capable military leaders should be given authority to make the tactical decisions in the war operations in South Vietnam and Indochina. The lives and safety of our remaining U.S. troops now trying to withdraw from South Vietnam are at stake.

The communists have had sanctuaries from which to kill U.S. and other non-communist soldiers in various parts of the world ever since the end of World War II. Political decisions have prevented attacks on these sanctuaries at the cost of thousands of anti-communist lives and billions of dollars in resources.

Communist dictators have grown to depend upon U.S. commanders being handcuffed in meeting Red invasions. Like wise, these communist butchers depend upon having the U.S. prevent attacks on communist sanctuaries by other nations, as we protect Red China from attacks from Nationalist Chinese forces and protect North Korea from attacks by South Korea. When the communist dictators are ready, they will invade Nationalist China and South Korea and play Uncle Sam for a sucker again.

Our future policies in Korea, Indochina and the rest of the Orient should be decided by the best military minds in the United States. It is not military men who get us into no-win wars; it is appointees in high positions and short-sighted office holders who disregard the good counsel of generals like MacArthur and those he trained. Our Republic is worth saving and we should organize and joyfully set about doing it.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In the impoverished little land of Paraguay, there is an old saying about dictator Alfredo Stroessner that "never a bird falls without his knowing about it."

This reputed omniscience has kept the burly El Presidente in full control of Paraguay for 18 years while his opponents have died mysteriously or fled into exile.

Thus,the American embassy in Asuncion was astonished when Stroessner, of all people, confessed to our ambassador, Raymond Ylitalo, that he would like more information about the narcotics traffic in Paraguay. Stroessner claimed he wanted to stamp it out.

The efficient Ylitalo forwarded the request to the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency obligingly included it in a detailed, secret summary of drug operations in Paraguay.

The memo declared that Stroessner was up to his jackboots in smuggling, though there was no proof he dealt in drugs. His tight little dictatorship, however, was described as "the Heroin Crossroads of South America," with much of the dope going to the United States.

We published the secret details on April 22. The dictator promptly sent word to us through his ambassador to Washington , Dr. Roque Avila, that he was surprised at the allegations and asked for the names of those behind Paraguay's drug trade.

We have now supplied Avila with the names. The CIA memo, for instance, mentioned a "secret police" official who reportedly was "heavily involved in the (drug) traffic." The CIA didn't name him, but we told Avila the suspect is none other than Stroessner's trusted Chief of Investigative Police, Pastor Coronel.

The CIA also alleged -- again without names -- that "two.....important generals" were deep in narcotics.

We identified one as Gen. Andres Rodriguez, the sternly handsome commander of 3,000 American-equipped troops based near Asuncion. His troops stand guard over contraband warehouses, and he controls aircraft for smuggling.

The other is Gen. Patricio Colman, a light infantry commander, whose troops put down an armed liberation movement in 1960, slicing off tongues, ears, heads and other parts of prisoners. Colman thereafter gained a smuggling franchise, considerable wealth and control of cross-country bus lines.

We have also uncovered the identities of other high Paraguayan figures, who are directly controlled by Stroessner, are responsible for the drug trade. These men, whose names we have also given Avila, include:

-- Sabino Augusto Montanaro, gray-haired interior secretary, and his right-hand man, National Police Chief Gen. Francisco Britez. No large-scale dope trade in land-locked Paraguay would be possible without their acquiescence.

-- General Leodegar Cabello,the spiffily uniformed defense minister, who is aware of the narcotics dealings of Generals Rodriguez and Colman and is suspected of sharing their loot.

-- General German Martinez, a pale, garrulous artillery commander who controls contraband in and around Paraguari. With his smuggling proceeds, he has purchased model farms and raises thoroughbred cattle.

-- Vice Admiral Hug o Gonzalez, chief of Paraguay's river gunboat navy, who earned his exalted rank by baby-sitting Stroessner's children. His gunboats protect the dope trade along the Paraguay and Parana rivers separating Paraguay from Brazil and Argentina.

-- Air Force chief Gen.Vicente Quinonez who supervises Asuncion airport and dozens of smaller fields. These are also used for drug transshipments.

-- Raul Sapena Pastor, the secretary of state, who personally approves every official and diplomatic passport. He has granted passports to known smugglers. Even diplomatic pouches are used for smuggled goods.

These are some of the names my associate, Les Whitten, provided Ambassador Avila during an hour-long meeting with him at the modest Paraguayan embassy. The envoy insisted he knew nothing about their alleged dope activities.

Footnote: On March 20, President Nixon called narcotics America's "number one domestic problem." Three days later, the United States gave 12 helicopters to Paraguay. U.S. Military aid to the "Heroin Crossroads of South America" runs around $2 million a year.

CONNALLY'S MISSION

Sources close to Treasury Secretary John Connally say his secret mission after leaving the cabinet will be to rally the Lyndon Johnson wing of the Democratic Party into the Nixon camp in November.

Richrd Nixon and John Connally have developed a close personal bond. Both are backroom operators and political infighters. They practice the same pragmatic politics.

During their political bull sessions, Nixon and Connally foresaw the increasing possibility that George McGovern could win the Democratic presidential nomination.

This would alienate ex-President Lyndon Johnson volunteered Connally.

But he said JBJ would not break formally with the party that had made him President Those privy to the Nixon-Connally discussions tel us that Connally has agreed to use his LBJ credentials to recruit disaffected Democratic from the Johnson fold on to the Nixon bandwagon.

Deadline May Be Met, Ford Hints

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has hinted it could, with help from the Environmental Protection Agency, meet its September deadline for 1973 model cars despite an EPA order that it retest engine emission controls.

The implication that Ford may stay on model-introduction schedule came only a day after board chairman Henry Ford II said the company was "in one hell of a lot of trouble" and raised the possibility of a long shutdown and massive layoffs while the retesting was completed.

The possibility of a solution to the problem also was suggested by an EPA spokesman who said, "Obviously, we do not want to shut down Ford for four months."

Jack Conmy, special assistant to EPA Director William D. Ruckelshaus, said the agency's attorneys are examining the matter and expect to have some suggestions within a few days.

The giant auto maker said late Tuesday that some of its employes apparently withheld information which should have been included in emissions-certification applications to the EPA.

Air Hijacker Shot To Death

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — A group of soldiers slipped through the baggage compartment of a hijacked Ecuadorian airliner Tuesday and machine-gunned the hijacker to death. It was the second time this month air piracy has been thwarted with gunfire.

The hijacker, an Ecuadorian named Lomas, took over the Electra turboprop shortly after it left Quito for Guayaquil.

He forced the plane to return to Quito where he threatened to blow up the aircraft unless he got $40,000 ransom and a parachute. But he let the passengers get off.

Troops surrounded the plane. Nearly six hours later, some of the soldiers entered through the luggage compartment and killed Lomas with a burst of fire from their machine guns. The pilot, Fernando Valdivieso, was reported slightly injured.

The shooting of the Ecuadorian hijacker resembled the ending two weeks ago of the hijacking of a Belgian jetliner by four Arab guerrillas who held 97 persons hostage aboard the plane at Tel Aviv Airport. Israeli paratroopers got into the plane, killed two of the hijackers and wounded a woman guerrilla and two passengers.

Smiling Bremer Pleads Innocent

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)-Arthur H. Bremer pleaded innocent today in U.S. District Court to federal charges in the May 15 shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and three other persons at a political rally.

The 21-year old unemployed busboy appeared relaxed and smiled several times during the 16-minute hearing before Chief Judge Edward S. Northrup.

Bremer replied in a strong voice to Northrup's formal questions concerning his name, age, attorney, education and whether he understood the four charges against him contained in an indictment handed down Tuesday by a federal grand jury.

The defendant, flanked by several security guards, stood before Northrup as his courtappointed attorney, Benjamin Lipsitz of Baltimore entered the innocent plea.

Bremer, who also faces state charges, was accused in the federal indictment of shooting a presidential candidate, assaulting a Secret Service agent assigned to protect Wallace, illegally bringing a .38-caliber revolver from Wisconsin to Maryland and using the weapon to commit a felony.

Northrup granted the defense 30 days to file pretrial motions and said the government would get an additional five days to respond. The judge said he would then hold a prompt hearing on the motions and set a trial date "as expeditiously as possible.i.

The arraignment took place in a heavily guarded courtroom packed with about 90 newsmen and spectators who were required to undergo an electronic search before being admitted. Everyone was required to remain seated while Bremer was led to and from the room by a phalanx of FBI agents and deputy U.S. marshals.

The FBI said early today that it had secretly moved Bremer from the Baltimore County Jail to an undisclosed location to await arraignment.

The 21-year-old Milwaukee man was named Tuesday in indictments returned by a federal grand jury in Baltimore and a state grand jury in Prince Georges County, where the shootings occurred.

He was charged in the federal indictment with shooting a candidate for public office, illegally bringing a .38-caliber revolver from Wisconsin to Maryland, using the weapon to commit a felony and assaulting a federal officer—a Secret Service agent assigned to protect Wallace as he campaigned for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Three of the four federal charges carry maximum sentences of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fines. The fourth—using the weapon in a felony—could bring a sentence of from one to 10 years.

The state indictments accuse Bremer of two common law crimes, attempted murder and assault and battery; two felonies, assault with intent to murder and assault with intent to maim; and two gun law violations.

There was no indication when he would be arraigned on the state charges.

Arthur Marshall, the state's attorney for Prince Georges County, said the common law crimes carry no fixed penalty and could result in a death sentence, but he said capital punishment has never been imposed in a case where a victim survived.

"What we're talking about is a practical maximum sentence of 30 years or so on each of the four indictments," Marshall said.

Wallace Sorry Campaigning Ended

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama talked to reporters today for the first time since he was shot a politicaly rally May 15 and said he was "sorry" it has to end this way."

Apparently he was referring to his active speech-making campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination. He has been quoted previously as saying he intends to take part in the Democratic convention at Miami Beach.

Wallace' s voice was low and husky and sometimes it was a little difficult for him to talk. He smiled frequently during the interview as his wife Cornelia, his two daughters and son looked on.

One reporter told Wallace that he thought the governor looked good. "You think so," said Wallace. "They say I'm doing real good."

He said he was "sorry it has to end this way. There won't be any more speeches for you fellows," he told the newsmen.

"That's all right, George," interjected Cornelia laughingly. "They're all the same anyway. Everybody knows the punch lines."

Wallace said that he feels good and reporters who had been on the campaign trail with him agreed that his facial color looks good but that sometimes his voice was not as strong as normal.

Wallace praised the hospital and the doctors who have taken care of him since the assassination attempt at narby Laurel, Md., and said, "If anything is going to happen to you be sure it is near Holy Cross Hospital."

Asked by a reporter if he wanted to return to Alabama soon, Wallace replied: "You always want to be home but I want to be here the proper length of time."

Wallace was awakened today to be told he finished second in the Oregon presidential primary. "Oh, that's great!" he said.

Doctors at Holy Cross Hospital where Wallace is being treated for gunshot wounds, said at a briefing that over the past 24 hours the governor has shown a "marked improvement" in his over-all general condition.

Sen. George McGovern won Oregon's Democratic presidential primary by capturing half the votes in an 11-man field.

Police Chief Helps Pull Daughter From River

Greenwood was at the scene as a crane lifted the vehicle from the water with his daughter's body inside

The chief didn't know that it was his daughter and his car which were involved until after the vehicle had been lifted from the river.

Two witnesses who were fishing off the bridge said they were nearly hit by Miss Greenwood's car as it crashed through a guard railing.

The witnesses, who weren't identified, told police Miss Greenwood's car and another were both northbound toward Rock Island when they collided on U.S. Highway 67.

The car went out of control and through guard railing on the west side of the bridge, witnesses said. The accident occurred about 8:35 p.m.

McGovern Easy Victor In Rhode Island And Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, an overwhelming victor in the Rhode Island and Oregon Democratic primaries, heads south today to battle Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in California's June 6 showdown.

McGovern takes the momentum he sought, and he says that if he can win California with its 271 delegates, he might be able to wrap up the Democratic presidential nomination before the national convention opens July 10 in Miami Beach, Fla.

The two victories Tuesday gave McGovern 56 more delegates — 22 in Rhode Island, 34 in Oregon — and he added 11 more from Missouri district meetings to swell his first-place total to 502½ of the 1,509 votes needed to capture the nomination.

In Rhode Island, where the South Dakota senator never campaigned but relied on his usual spirited volunteer organization and appearances by his wife Eleanor, he polled 41 per cent of the vote. McGovern's total was more than the combined sum for Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and Hubert H. Humphrey, who finished second and third.

In Oregon, where he was the only major candidate to campaign, McGovern's percentage hovered at about 50 per cent in an 11-candidate field. Gov. George C. Wallace, beneficiary of a substantial media campaign, while still hospitalized after being shot eight days ago, was a surprisingly strong second, with Humphrey third.

President Nixon easily won the Republican primaries in the two states.

"We have lots to celebrate tonight," McGovern told 500 cheering supporters at a downtown Portland hotel, "and two weeks from tonight, I want you to know we are planning a great celebration in the state of California."

Asked if he thought he could go to Miami Beach with the nomination wrapped up, McGovern said that "depends largely on whether we win in California two weeks from tonight." He added: "I expect to win in California after a hard effort."

He planned to fly to Sacramento to start his California drive with a speech to a Press Club luncheon on the problems of Mexican-Americans, the largest minority group in the state.

Like Humphrey, he pledged to appoint a Spanish-speaking American to his Cabinet and said he would fill California's first federal judicial vacancy with a Mexican-American.

Humphrey, already campaigning in California after conceding Oregon in advance to McGovern, congratulated his rival but said "California is a separate arena all to itself."

McGovern decided to contest the Rhode Island primary only after Muskie dropped his active primary campaigning last month. Humphrey made a campaign appearance there last Wednesday, and Muskie dropped in for a speech Friday to demonstrate that he was still a presidential candidate.

The Maine senator did fairly well in Providence, where Mayor Joseph Doorley was a leading supporter, but McGovern scored heavily in suburban towns and cities.

As in Oregon, Wallace used television and radio advertising to register a relatively strong showing in a state where he did poorly as a third- party candidate in the 1968 presidential election.

In Oregon, McGovern had spent four days campaigning during the past week, urging his supporters to give him a big majority that would spur his California drive. In the closing days of the campaign, he said "it would be a wonderful thing" if his Oregon percentage surpassed the 51.3 per cent peak he achieved four weeks ago in Massachusetts.

Incomplete returns indicate he would probably fall a bit short of that.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts — a noncandidate who lost a court fight to have his name removed from the ballot— and Muskie each polled about 3 per cent.

In winning the two Republican primaries, which netted him 8 delegates in Rhode Island and 18 in Oregon, President Nixon easily turned back challenges from Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey Jr. of California, who dropped his antiwar presidential campaign two months ago but remained on the ballots, and Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, a conservative who has been campaigning in California.

In Oregon's Senate races, Republican Sen. Mark O. Hatfield swept to easy renomination for a second term and will face former Sen. Wayne Morse, who won the Democratic nomination over former Rep. Robert Duncan and two other candidates.

In Kentucky, which chose nominees for the seat for retiring GOP Sen. John Sherman Cooper, former Gov. Louie B. Nunn easily won the Republican nomination and Walter "Dee" Huddleston, a close ally of Gov. Wendell Ford, took the Democratic primary.

In Missouri, 55 delegates to the Democratic National convention were picked at congressional district meetings. Besides the 11 for McGovern, 38 uncommitted delegates were chosen in line with the wishes of Gov. Warren Hearnes, an early Muskie backer.

The other six delegates were being chosen from a predominantly black St. Louis district.

Boy Charged In Girl's Death

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police said today they were holding a 15year-old St. Louis boy who has admitted the fatal beating of a teen-age girl.

The body of Lana Eichler, 18, was found in a neighbor's apartment Monday in South St. Louis.

Police said the boy was being held on a charge of violating the juvenile code by murder.

Miss Eichler lived with her father, Edward Eichler, who said he last talked to his daughter Sunday night. He said that when she did not appear Monday, he filed a missing persons report.

Police said Miss Eichler was severely beaten on the head and body with a blunt object.

Ann Landers

Mother Has Right To Say No To Motorcycle Ride

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year -old daughter has been dating a 19-year -old boy for the past year. Jim is a fine young man, a good student and a careful driver. Jim announced a few days ago that he has purchased a motorcycle. Our daughter expects to ride with him.

I have good reason to fear motorcycles. A neighbor's daughter was in a motorcycle accident a few months ago and she will never walk or talk again.

I told our daughter we will not allow her to ride on Jim's motorcycle and she is very upset. She assures me that Jim will handle the motorcycle and she with extreme caution. She also says if she is not permitted to ride with him he will drop her.

I don't want to lose a lovely daughter, either on a motorcycle or through lack of communication or understanding, but I know that if I say yes my heart will be in my mouth every minute she is away from home. Do I have the right to say No. ----Lavonia, Mich. Mother

Dear Mother: You do and I hope you will.

The National Safety Council has some blood-chilling statistics on the annual carnage resulting from motorcycle accidents. You have every right to be apprehensive. If Jim dumps your daughter because she had the good sense to respect her parents' wishes, he was no bargain. (P.S. To all you cycle fans who may be angered by my answer, please save your stamps. My stand is irreversible.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell everybody who reads English that when they reach a wrong number THEY are inconveniencing someone -- it's not the other way around. Moreover, they have no right to ask, "Who is this?"

Several months ago I was the victim of a wrong number. When asked, "Who is this," I refused to say. This so angered the questioner that she called four to five times every night for months my husband and I lost a great deal of sleep because of that woman's rudeness.

The proper procedure, when one believes he has reached a wrong number, is to say, "I'm calling the Soandso's residence for Soandso Soandso. Do I have the right number?" This does not require that the party on the other end reveal his identity.

Thank you, Ann, for performing a useful service. -- Hackles Up in Buffalo.

Dear Hack: Most people, when they reach a wrong number, will continue to ask, "Who is this?" I suggest that the person who receives thycall ANSWER the question WITH a question: "Who are you calling?"

Dear Ann Landers: The man I'm going with is 30 years old. His father died when he was 13. His mother won't let him live his own life. The problem is sleeping pills. He eats them like candy. He is in a daze most of the time. His mother's cousin is a druggist and she gets pills for next to nothing -- no prescription. He is also a big beer drinker. I've read in your column that people who take pills should not mix them with liquor because the combination could be deadly. I've clipped those columns and showed them to him. He says beer doesn't count. Is he right? --Belinda

Dear Bel: He's wrong. Beer contains alcohol and if he drinks enough beer he can get just as bombed as if he were drinking gin. Pills and beer can be a lethal combination.

Is pot a drug? Can L.S.D. and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16 cents postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Mrs. Larry Kenneth Richardson

Richardson - Ward

RISCO — Two spiral candlebras flanking an arched brass candlebra with lighted white tapers formed the background for the wedding of Miss Linda Kaye Ward to Larry Kenneth Richardson Saturday at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church.

Two large baskets of white glads, carnations and pompons with five trees of greenery, completed the setting for the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Gene Lancaster, assisted by Rev. Delmar McNeely.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey B. Ward, route three, Portageville, formerly of Risco. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delton L. Richardson of Clarkton.

Miss Martha Fortner, organist, presented pre-nuptial selections, after which the ushers, Lynn Ward and Glenn Ward, of Scott City, cousins of the bride, lit the candles, and laid the bridal carpet.

Miss Sherry Medlin, soloist, accompanied by Miss Phyllis Hon, sang "One Hand, One Heart" prior to the ceremony, and the "Wedding Prayer" following the ceremony as the couple knelt on the brass kneeling bench.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight organza and Chantilly lace. The yoke of the empire bodice was overlaid with lace, and featured a lace mandarin neckline. The Camelot sleeves were capped with lace, with wide lace encircling the full part of the sleeves, and ending with wide lace cuffs. A double row of wide lace also encircled the bottom of the slightly gathered A-line skirt. An organza sash, with a double tailored bow at the center back, emphasized the waistline. A lace motif accented the front sash in the center. The detachable train of organza was edged with matching lace.

Her headpiece was a Camelot cap overlaid with Chantilly lace matching her gown. Crystal teardrops adorned the front along the edge. A three-tiered veil of imported English illusion was attached. She carried a cascade bouquet of off white daisy poms and talisman roses tied with candlelight satin ribbon. Candlelight peau de soie pumps completed the attire.

Mrs. Nancy Sharbutt of Mobile, Alabama, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Janet Woods of St. Louis and Miss Sheila Lancaster of Dexter, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore identical floor length dresses of apricot chiffon over taffeta featuring empire bodice, camelot sleeves and a standup collar. Matching fabric bows formed their headpieces, with illusion attached at the backs. They carried nosegays of orange daisies and glad buds.

Miss Sharon Richardson of Birch Tree, niece of the groom, was flower girl and wore a gown of apricot dotted swiss with matching fabric sash and bow head piece.

Franklin Richardson of Birch Tree, brother of the groom, was best man. Clark Willhite of Holly Grove, Arkansas, and Gary Ward, brother of the bride, were groomsmen.

A reception was held immediately afterwards in the church fellowship hall.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Miss Carole Bone, Miss Cathy Bellingrath and Ron Dobbs, all of Jonesboro, Arkansas, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Seats, Paragould, Ark., Mrs. Mable Mathis, Scott City, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ward, Malden, Mrs. O. E. Rudkin, Gideon, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Ward, DeRhonda and Lisa, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ward and Diane, all of Scott City, Jack Sharbutt, Mobile, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lancaster, Mike and Lisa, Gary Cravens, all of Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Ward, Parma, Mrs. Franklin Richardson and Neil, Birch Tree, and Robert Woods, St. Louis.

The bride is a graduate of Risco high school and is a senior at Arkansas State University, Jonesboro.

The groom is a graduate of Clarkton high school and will graduate in August from Arkansas State University.

He will be a Science instructor at Jonesboro high school this fall.

HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

No Power Shortage In Region

BLYTHEVILLE – Middle South Utilities System companies anticipate no electric energy shortage in the area served by them, Floyd W. Lewis, president of Middle South Utilities, told stockholders at the 1972 annual meeting today. "Based on our best projections, we fully expect to meet all of the electric energy requirements of our customers and, in addition, to sell sizable blocks of electricity to neighboring utility systems," Lewis stated.

The five operating companies of the Middle South Utilities System — Arkansas-Missouri Power company, Arkansas Power & Light Company, Louisiana Power & Light Company, Mississippi Power & Light Company, New Orleans Public Service, Inc. — provide electric service to 1,222,000 customers in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Southeast Missouri.

In 1971, total electric energy sales by the system were 35 billion kilowatt-hours, Lewis said, and sales are expected to rise to 44 billion kilowatt-hours in 1975.

Lewis reported that growth of customers' requirements for electric service had necessitated large investments in new facilities. "Our construction expenditures for 1972 are estimated at $307 million, and for the next four years, including 1972, we are presently projecting construction expenditures of about $1.3 billion," he stated.

The utility system has nine major generating units slated for operation in the 1973-1980 period with combined capability of 7,825,000 kilowatts, some 70 percent of which will be nuclear fueled. The system's first nuclear-fueled unit, located near Russellville, Ark., is scheduled for operation the latter part of 1973.

Gerald L. Andrus, chairman of the board of the utility company, told stockholders that for the twelve- month period ended April 30, 1972, compared with the twelve- month period ended April 30, 1971, sales of electric energy to ultimate customers increased 10.9 per cent, electric operating revenues from ultimate customers increased 13.2 per cent, consolidated net income increased 10.4 percent, and earnings per share on average number of shares outstanding increased 6.9 percent.

The heart, outlined on this drawing from an actual X-ray, is in the center of the chest—under the sternite", as one physician put it.

Heart Attack Early Warning Can Save Time And Lives

CAPE GIRARDEAU — If you experience – and recognize – early warning signs of a heart attack, how long would you hesitate before you seek medical aid?

Seconds; Minutes? An hour? many hours?

Could it be as much as 18 hours?

That's the average delay of decision time, shown by a half-year sampling of 77 heart attack patients at one Missouri hospital.

According to survey figures released by the Missouri Heart Association, you can add an average of 36 minutes to travel the average of 29 miles to reach the hospital.

Frightening significance of the 18- hour average delay is that about a third of heart attack patients do not survive to reach the hospital, according to the Early Warning Signs Physicians' Advisory Committee.

Most of these deaths occur in the first four hours.

Many could have been prevented if victims had reached a hospital, with equipment to control electrically a faulty heart rhythm, medications to correct complications, and personnel trained in a new technique known as external cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

"An 18- hour delay in obtaining help is simply not acceptable," said one physician, "and something must be done about it."

Something was, and is being done about the average 18- hour delay of decision in a rural- urban area of Missouri with a population of about a million.

It's a public education program, teaching citizens the early warning signs of heart attack through illustrated newspaper articles, radio and TV spots.

It's a Show-Me product, born in Missouri four years ago, financed by Heart Fund contributions, and given a high priority by the Missouri Heart Association.

Its cost was $16,000 for first year funding; $5,000 for the second year.

How do you count the cost of a human life saved? You don't, but productivity of someone saved from a fatal or disabling heart attack by the early warning signs project would rather quickly repay society for the modest cost of the program.

The program answers a logical sequel to the opening question in this article:

What ARE the early warning signs of a heart attack?

The Early Warning Signs Physicians' advisory Committee gave these answers —

The heart is in the center of the front of the chest.

This is where the warning pain or discomfort of a heart attack most frequently occurs.

Pain may radiate into one both arms, the next most frequently experienced sign.

Pain may extend also to the neck, jaws, upper abdomen, or areas, or any one.

There may be a sensation of pressure, fullness, squeezing or aching.

Sweating, shortness of breath, nausea, or vomiting may occur.

Persons experiencing such symptoms are urged to call their physicians. If doctors are not available, they should get to a hospital emergency room by the fastest possible means.

As a reassuring recital of symptoms postscript, one physician cited a common discomfort – often experienced by tense persons – which can be mistaken for a heart attack early warning sign.

He described it as a sharp or jabbing pain and soreness in the area of the left breast, which he said is rarely due to the heart, but still should be investigated by a doctor.

How important are heart attack early warning signs, and being taught to recognize and act on them?

One medical authority is quoted as saying that getting heart patients to the hospital in time will rank in life- saving importance with the spelling out of such heart attack risk factors as smoking, obesity, hypertension, and cholesterol.

COSTLY EDUCATION

HOUSTON (AP) — The Tax Research Association of Houston and Harris County says the cost of educating pupils in public schools in Houston has almost doubled in nine years.

At the present rate of increase the THA says school spending will double in the next five years although enrollment will rise only moderately.

The average cost of educating each pupil in county schools was $666.54 last school year, compared to $359.36 in 1961-62, the report said.

Necking Did Not Cause Accident

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Rita was in the middle of a big kiss, sitting on the lap of her boy friend in the back of an automobile when the driver of the vehicle, while making a turn, was suddenly clobbered by another vehicle being operated by Mr. Wimple. Thrown abruptly out of her boy friends lap as the two cars collided, Rita landed in the hospital and sued Mr. Wimple for her injuries.

"I didn't know what happened," she explained to the judge in court. "At first, I thought my boyfriend's kiss had packed one heck of a wallop. Then, I realized we had been smacked by another car."

"A kiss is nothing divided by two," responded Mr. Wimple. And that's exactly what Rita's entitled to collect -- nothing! By sitting on her boy friend's lap and necking with him, she contributed to her own injuries. That bars her recovery."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold that Rita's necking precluded her from collecting for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that since there was no evidence to indicate that Rita had interfered with the operation of the vehicle by necking with her boy friend, there's no basis to find that she contributed to the happening of the accident. Consequently, concluded the judge, she's not barred from collecting for her injuries. (Based upon a 1971 Florida District Court of Appeals Decision) from

The Upper Room

PRAYER: Lord, help me to recognize at least one pink blanket today-- something which prevents me from seeing You as clearly as I need to. When I have found it, give me courage to throw it out. Amen.

Bad Luck Hits Calaveras Co. Frog Hop Race

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — After starting out under the threat of bad weather and fear of violence, the 1972 Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee ended in a relaxed atmosphere under sunny skies.

Instead of an expected crowd of 77,000, the three-day event— which doubles as the county fair—drew about 10,000. Officials blamed primarily the bad weather but said publicity about last year's problems with hippies, motorcycle gangs and traffic also played a part in keeping people away.

A frog named Turlyloes leaped 17 feet 11 3/4 inches in three jumps to win the $300 first prize in Sunday's finals, but it was not good enough to top the world record of 19 feet 3 and 1-6 inches set in 1966 by Ripple. A prize of $1,200 awaits the owner whose frog breaks the record.

Soviet Threat Discussed By Winston II

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — The Soviet Union is the mutual enemy of the free Western World and the Peoples Republic of China, Winston Spencer Churchill II, grandson of Sir Winston Churchill, believes.

"At a time when the U.S. is bent on reducing the burden of alliance and protection the Soviet Union shows itself to take them up by establishing colonial-type treaties with Egypt, India and Iraq," he told graduates of Westminster College Sunday.

"This is in marked contrast to the 'stand-on-your-own-feet' doctrine of President Nixon and Chairman Mao Tse-tung and it inevitably presents a grave threat to the independence of the developing nations of the world.

Churchill said the Peoples Republic of China had developed a new attitude toward the U.S. because of the U.S. withdrawal policy in Southeast Asia and because of the buildup of 44 Soviet divisions on its borders.

He drew parallels to the address his grandfather made in Fulton in which he used the term "Iron Curtain.

"Today a quarter of a century after Fulton, we once again stand at a crossroads. For the first time since the early postwar years, a new balance is evolving in the world with the rise of new centers of power in Europe, China and Japan. . . The prospect before us threatens to be 'a struggle for Asia.'"

'Amarillo Slim' World Series Of Poker King

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Thomas Austin "Amarillo Slim" Preston, whose $10,000 gambling stake had dwindled to $1,700, won the "world series of poker" and $60,000 Friday.

Preston, of Amarillo, Tex., was the survivor in a 22-hour contest that started with eight high-stakes poker players.

Preston cleaned out his remaining opponent, Walter Clyde "Pug" Pearson of Nashville, Tenn., with a full house after eight hours of play between them.

Pearson had been playing a tight "grind" game, whittling Preston's pile down with $60 and $1,000 hands.

"I never have nothing in my hand except when there's real money on the table," drawled Amarillo Slim.

During most of the game the black $100 chips moved back and forth across the table in a void of studied silence.

$10,000, began the series with an agreement to play until one player remained with $80,000 and everyone else was broke.

When play broke up for three hours rest early Thursday one of the three remaining players, Adrian "Texas Dolly" Doyle, dropped out, saying he felt dizzy and nauseous.

The other two could have split his $20,000 holdings under the rules but shrugged it off.

"He's a good old boy," said Slim. "I don't take no stake I didn't win."

The game was "Hold-em," variation of seven-card stud. Two cards are dealt face down to each player, five are dealt face-up in the center and the best five-card hand wins.

WASHINGTON — The 1970 Census of Housing counted 11,468 housing units in Scott County, and 10,326 households had at least one television set, 2,681 UHF-equipped, the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, announced today. The figures are from the first report for Missouri which presents detailed statistics on housing for each county.

The report shows that in the county:

There were 6,057 housing units with air conditioning, 4,419 with room units and 1,638 with a central system, 8,082 units with a clothes washing machine, 3,446 with a clothes dryer, and 995 with a dishwasher.

The 1970 population was 33,250, with an average of 3.1 persons per housing unit.

There were 10,642 housing units with complete kitchen facilities and 10,276 with complete bathrooms, both for the exclusive use of the households. The number of bedrooms in all housing units ranged from none in 119 units and one in 1,407 units to four or more in 1,055 units.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Chemicals can protect our crops from chemicals, says O. Hale Fletchall, agronomist at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

For many years it has been a goal in weed control research to develop chemicals that would kill weeds without injuring the crops, Fletchall points out. However, his has not always worked. For example, a popular weed control known as EPTC not only controlled weeds in the corn field but killed some of the corn plants, too.

When a protective chemical was added to the seed as a treatment before planting, there was no EPTC damage. A similar result was obtained with grain sorghum.

When EPTC in one field injured 32 percent of the corn plants the final yield was 63 bushels per acre. In a nearby field, a protective chemical known as R-25788 was used with the weed killer. The corn showed no injury and the resulting yield was 88 bushels per acre, Fletchall reports.

Air pollution may interfere with your body's ability to fight off disease and infection, says Dr. Airian Zedarkower of Pennsylvania State University. Normal disease- fighting mechanisms failed to work in mice when Dr. Zedarkower exposed them to typical air pollution.

Here we go again on the diet- causes- cancer battle and this time cholesterol is taking the lumps.

Researchers in half a dozen universities and institutions have pointed accusing fingers at high fat diets. Comparisons have been made with rates of cancer and the diets in Japan, Hawaii, Finland, Ireland, England, and various parts of Africa, Asia, and South America.

According to one now-popular theory, overeating of fat leads to cancer by changing the storage of hormones in fatty tissue. Another theory points to the bacteria in the stomach. In both theories the result is an increase in cancer-causing chemicals in the body.

It almost makes one think that the only way to avoid dying of cancer is to stop eating entirely.

Our Missouri farmers are right up with the farmers across the country when it comes to increasing their output. While other industries are making small gains in what each worker produces, U.S. farmers have been making large gains.

For example, in Missouri between 1965 and 1969, there was only a slight increase in labor used on farms (one percent) while the amount of work accomplished increased by 15 percent. This was revealed in research by Dorwin Williams and Carrol Kirtley, ag economists at the University of Missouri- Columbia. They studied records from a cross-section of larger- than- average Missouri farms.

They found that while the total farm size increased an average of 15 per cent during those four years, the value for an acre increased by an average of 24 percent. It is with production and land value gains like these that the nation's farmers hold food prices down while all but a few other prices are climbing.

Air pollution is becoming worse in ways that can be measured. M. E. Miller of the National Weather Service and some of his colleagues have compared the visibility reported at airports near Akron, O., Lexington, Ky., and Memphis, Tenn. The reports cover the period from 1962 to 1969.

He said that at all three locations the number of occasions on which visibility was less than 6 miles was much greater in 1969 than in 1962. Haziness around the cities was shown to have increased abruptly in 1966. It has continued to increase through 1970, Miller reports.

After attempting to evaluate all possible natural causes for the increased haziness, the conclusion that Miller came to is that the changes are a result of manmade pollution.

My Neighbors

"Sure you can quote me. Just don't use my name or anything I said."

? Consumer's Question Box ? By Margaret Dana

Q. Awhile back I bought a pair of blue suede shoes. When I got them I wrote my boy friend's name on them in ink. Last week we broke up and I want to get his name of them. I could not think of anything that would take it off without harming the color. Any suggestions?

A. You are probably right -- anything that removes the ink would probably remove tthe color from the leather. But it depends partly on the kind of ink you used. Some types of ball- point pen ink can be removed by soap and water, used cautiously. But you might try turning the present writing into a decorative scroll -- use pen and ink to draw a little flower and vine in and out of the name so it can no longer be read. And then, before you do it again for some other boy friend, remember that ink lasts longer than some friendships.

Q. Please use this in the Consumer's Question- Box because so many of us want to know the answer. We keep our catsup in the cupboard even when it's been opened. All of our bottles get a darkish tinge on top after awhile. I just shake it and use it. Is this harmful? How long should we keep a catsup bottle, opened, in the cupboard?

A. The acid in the tomato used in such products as catsup tends to preserve the food even when it has been opened and air has gotten inside. The air darkens the surfaces but does not cause spoilage unless left so long that mold develops. Refrigeration is not necessary, but if you plan to keep a bottle of catsup several months refrigeration might be advisable for best storage.

Q. The other day I bought a three- piece suite of furniture from our leading department store. There was no label on it. The clerk said the upholstery was polyester. I asked if I could wash it and she said, "Oh, I'd have it dry- cleaned." Is there any way I can find out what fibers the material is made of so I can tell what to do with it?

A. Most good furniture makers these days supply complete information tags with upholstered furniture with suggestions for methods of care. But knowing the fibers used in the upholstery will not assure you of the best method, since that depends on the finishes given the fabric.

If the dye was meant to withstand water shampoo you're safe in cleaning it with suds. Otherwise have it professionally drycleaned in your home with a solvent. Water must be used cautiously least the fabric shrink. Remember that even though your cushions may have zippers, the manufacturer does not intend you to remove the covers to launder them. The zipper is a method of fitting the upholstery, not intended as an opening.

Q. We are having work done on our house and need a loan for $1,600. We were told to take a Pass Book loan on our own money instead of a personal or home improvement loan. Will we really save by taking a Pass Book loan?

A. According to the savings and loan associations, it is generally cheaper to get a Pass Book loan for an amount up to around $1,600 than to get a second mortgage, personal, or home- improvement loan. The usual custom is to charge interest on such a loan of one per cent above the interest paid the depositor on his savings. This means your loan only really costs about 6 per cent, substantially under most interest rates. But make a note that your savings account will be tied up during the life of the Pass Book loan.

Q. I am quite confused by your answer a few weeks ago saying darker meat comes from older beef. I have been instructed, and my own experience confirms, that one should select darker meat because it is better aged, and has hung longer. but you say where the meat is exposed to air it turns bright red. Will you explain please?

A. The question and answer to which you refer was concerned with ground beef, not large cuts. But it is true that beef from older beef steers is darker than from young animals. Note how much lighter in color veal is compared to regular beef. In ground meat the outside layer is in contact with oxygen which acts on the myoglobin to turn it a brighter red. This is probably because so much of the inner structure is exposed when ground. My answer said only that one should not judge that the darker inner meat of a batch of ground beef is stale, since its color only means it has not been touched by oxygen.

Q. I have a magazine subscription problem and believe at one time you gave the address of a place we could write to ask help in getting magazine subscription problems straightened out. Could you repeat this address for us?

A. If after writing to the magazine publisher, giving complete details of the complaint you have, you receive no satisfaction, I suggest you write to: Mr. Robert Goshorn, Central Registry, Magazine Center, 575 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10022. Reputable magazines work with Central Registry to try to correct subscriber problems.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal replies are impossible due to the large volume of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana Research Center, R. R. 1, Chalfont, Pa. 18914)

Bombing Case To Circuit

KENNETT — Jimmy Davis, a Malden Vietnam war veteran accused of attempted arson in connection with a bombing incident at a tavern earlier this month, waived his right to a preliminary hearing and was bound over to circuit court to stand trial. Magistrate Judge Leon McAnally presided in Friday's court session.

Prosecuting Attorney Charels H. Baker charged Davis with attempted arson after he was chased down and arrested and charged with throwing a bomb into Bob's Tavern in Malden, loaded with .410 shotgun shells. He is being held in custody on a $1,000 bond.

Realtors Services Extended

The complexities of modern day living have increased the need for the Realtor whose services and expertise have expanded beyond those associated with home buying and selling.

Realtor Tom Bennett, president of the Sikeston Board of Realtors, made this comment today in discussing areas of real estate specialization to plan, appraise, manage, lease, and sell property which affects all Americans.

Realtors -- members of the Sikeston Board of Realtors, the Mo. Association of Realtors, and the National Association of Real Estate Boards -- upgrade their service to the public in these fields through participation in educational courses and seminars.

These affiliates provide for many Realtors the framework of specialization under which they work, Bennett added. Most provide professional designations, through which the public can identify the leaders in the fields.

The largest affiliate of NAREB is the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers which offers, through its two divisions, education in the latest techniques of marketing properties and serving the public. For those involved in the commercial phase of real estate, NIREB's Commercial and Investment Division provides guidelines to successful operation. The Residential Division gives guidance to those in the largest single specialization in real estate -- homemarketing.

Electrical Shock Fatal To Man

CARUTHERSVILLE — Michael Wayne McCaig, rural Caruthersville, was electrocuted Sunday while working on a television set.

The Pemiscot County Sheriff's Department was notified by the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital that McCaig was dead on arrival at the hospital at 6:30 p.m.

said the man stopped at a farmhouse near the community of Crump Tuesday, asking for water and directions to the nearest store. The people at the house directed him to a store and called police. The community is near Lutesville.

Chase was arrested at the store by a state patrolman. Police said Chase produced an identification card for a man in Chester, Pa. The card contained a fingerprint, which the FBI said did not match Chase's print.

FBI agents said Chase was recently released from a prison in Wisconsin after serving part of a 10-year sentence for armed robbery.

Cape Girardeau County Sheriff Ivan McLain said the man arrived in Cape Girardeau Monday morning on a bus from St. Louis. He was described as a stranger in the area who could give no reason for being in this part of the country.

McLain said the man refused to give his name when he was taken into custody.

The car reported to have been used in the robbery was stolen from Barbara Lilliher of Chaffee, a student at Southeast Missouri College in Cape Girardeau.

The bank was robbed at 2:10 p.m. Monday by a man matching the arrested man's description.

The robber walked into the bank waving a cocked pistol over his head.

Bank officials said the man was wearing woman's hose over his head and a brimmed hat.

After getting the money from the cash drawers, the robber lowered the hammer on the revolver, tucked it away in his clothing and took off his mask and hat as he left.

The robber entered the stolen car and drove off. He was last seen rounding rounding a curve on highway 51 south of Lutesville.

Hearnes Calls For Holiday Driving Care

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes made a special plea Tuesday for motorists to take care on highways over the coming Memorial Day weekend.

Hearnes also urged Missourians to test their driving skills by taking an exam offered on a special half-hour television program produced by the Division of Highway Safety.

Bank Of Sikeston, IBEW Winners In Junior Babe Ruth Play

Bank of Sikeston's 12-hit barrage in the first game of Junior Babe Ruth baseball play last night led the way for the bankers' 11-1 win over Hart's.

In the nightcap, a late Eagle rally fell short as the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers picked up its first victory of the season, 8-7.

A combination of hitting and pitching paved the way in the opening contest for Bank of Sikeston's sweep into the winners' lane. Bank pitcher, Taylor, checked Harts with only two hits. His teammates responded with the 12-hit, 11-run offense.

Hurley fanned eight batters in the contest, walked six, and gave up the lone run in the opening inning. Harts, Shaner reached first on one of the team's two hits and scored on an error and a stolen base.

Bank of Sikeston jumped into an early 2-1 lead in the first frame. The third, fourth, and fifth innings saw three bank runs come across the plate in each frame.

Banks, Crites, Self, Bohannon, and Bridger paced the winner's hitting attack with two safeties apiece. Crites scored four runs for the winners, as teammates Taylor and Self crossed home twice.

Wissman opened on the mound for IBEW, worked four innings before giving way to Cook, who worked the final frame. Wissman was tagged with the loss.

Shaner and White collected Harts' two hits.

Frantic late inning scoring for both IBEW and Eagles highlighted play in the second game. Both teams waited until the final two innings of play before sending runs across the plate.

IBEW opened the scoring with eight runs in the fourth. The IBEW lineup knocked five hits in the frame and received four walks in the inning. Shaffar collected two hits in the inning and teammate Shain scored two runs before the IBEW squads were retired.

The Eagles rebounded with a four-run attack of their own in the inning. Four hits, two hits, and three errors sent four Eagle runners home to cut the IBEW lead to four runs.

In the last inning, the Eagles sent home three runs to cut the lead to 8-7. With the tying run on second base with only one out, Tompkins retired the side to give the IBEW the one-run victory.

No games are scheduled tonight in the Junior Babe Ruth division.

Duo Vaults Record Height

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Bob Seagren woke up Tuesday with no idea he would become a coworld record holder in a few hours.

After he and Sweden's Kjell Isaksson each set a new world pole vault record of 18 feet, 4 1/4 inches here, Seagren said his mother had read him a newspaper article about the special pole vault meet sponsored by the Border AAU organization.

The article quoted University of Texas-El Paso coach Wayne Vandenberg as saying the competition was organized Sunday.

"I didn't really believe it, but I had to check to make sure," Seagren said.

He called Vandenberg to ask if he could enter, and then caught a plane from Santa Monica, Calif., to El Paso when Vandenberg gave an okay.

Eight other vaulters also entered the meet, but all eight had been eliminated after Seagren and Isaksson cleared the first height they attempted—174.

Seagren made the first significant breakthrough, setting a new American record of 18-1/2. That was his first time above 18 feet after a previous best of 17-9. Isaksson is the only other man to clear the height.

When Isaksson also cleared the 18-1/2 barrier, the two set their sights on Isaksson's world's best of 18-2 set last month.

Both missed their first try at 5.59 meters, 18-4 1/4, but both cleared the height the second time around for a double world record.

The bar was then set at 186 1/4, from a scaffold rather than the usual ladder, and both missed all three times.

After the meet, Seagren returned to his home in Monterrey Park, Calif.

Isaksson, who won the meet because of fewer misses at lower heights, said he will return to Sweden this weekend and will compete every week until the Summer Olympics in Munich, Germany.

Cubs Snap Mets 12-Game Streak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It's a loss—but not the end of the world," Tug McGraw of the New York Mets shrugged. "The law of averages didn't get me. They got me."

They were the Chicago Cubs and they got McGraw for a run in the eighth inning. That snapped a tie, giving the Cubs a 2-1 victory, and snapped the Mets back to reality.

It was their first loss in a dozen games, their second in the last 16 and only the ninth in the 33 games they've played this season.

In other National League action Tuesday, Pittsburgh blitzed St. Louis 6-2, Montreal flipped Philadelphia 6-2, Atlanta edged Cincinnati 2-1, Los Angeles topped San Francisco 8-5, and in a twi-night doubleheader, Houston swept San Diego 7-0 and 2-1.

The Cubs nicked New York starter Gary Gentry for a run in the fourth inning on a walk and singles by Paul Popovich and Ken Rudolph but the Mets, unable to handle Ferguson Jenkins' pitching for six innings, finally tied it in the seventh on a walk and singles by Tommie Agee and Rusty Staub.

Then came the eighth. Carmen Fanzone started the winning rally with a one-out single. And when Popovich slammed a McGraw offering to right center field, Fanzone was off and running.

Club Owners Threaten NBA-ABA All-Stars

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Most National Basketball Association teams have warned their players not to play in the scheduled NBA-ABA all star game under threat of suspension or fines, NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy said late Tuesday night.

The all star game, featuring the best of the NBA and American Basketball Association players, is scheduled Thursday night in Uniondale, N.Y.

Kennedy said most of the NBA club owners had informed him of their promised action to keep the players from participating in the contest, which was played for the first time last year. The commissioner said players were informed by registered mail.

Parts of the registered letter, said Kennedy, said, "Section 17 of your contract with us (the NBA club) denied you the right to participate in any exhibition game of basketball without written consent.

"Such consent has not and will not be granted for your participation in the so-called All-Star basketball game on May 25."

The letter further stated that application "will be made to the commissioner of the NBA that you be fined or suspended pursuant to Section 17" if a player went ahead to play in the game.

The NBA commissioner declined to disclose the number of club owners who threatened such action, saying only that most were involved.

The post-season clash between the rival leagues is being presented by the players associations of both leagues, and the respective teams were chosen by the votes of players in both the NBA and ABA.

Cardinal Mistakes Keep Pirate String Alive

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals shut down the middle of the Pittsburgh Pirate batting order but forgot about defense in a 6-2 loss Tuesday night.

Booting two double play ground balls, the Cards made it easy for the defending world champions to win No. 8 in a row and their 11th in 13 games.

Pittsburgh, gaining ground on National League East leader New York capitalized on the first Cards miscue for a threerun burst in the second inning.

Two frames later, after the Cards had pulled to 3-2, another gift enabled the Bucs to score their other three runs and breeze behind struggling righthander Steve Blass (5-1).

"It's a joy pitching for this ball club," said Blass, who surrendered 11 hits, including Luis Melendez' second home run, but had an effective slow curve.

"You've got to have one pitch that's really working for you," added the 30-year-old Blass, winner of two World Series games last fall.

"I had real good control of the curve, but I'm not completely happy with the way I'm throwing the ball. I want to be able to throw a smooth fast ball and I'm not doing it."

Blass yielded hits in every inning except two and worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth before leaving in favor of Ramon Hernandez, who worked the ninth.

Meanwhile Pittsburgh had inflicted its damage against Cards starter Reggie Cleveland (3-3), whose downfall started with a single by Richie Hebner leading off the second.

Manny Sanguillen followed with a made-to-order double play grounder that shortstop Ed Crosby juggled and finally let trickle away. Gene Alley followed with a run-scoring single.

Blass' sacrifice was followed by run-scoring hits off the bats of Dave Cash and three more runs poured across in the fourth after second baseman Ted Sizemore booted Vic Davalillo's double play grounder.

The oddity of the Cards defense was that sluggers Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell and Al Oliver were held to a combined 2-for-13 in the middle of the batting order.

Clemente had the two hits, both singles, but was induced to ground into double plays on three other occasions.

Blass, in elaborating on his satisfaction with his role, said of the Pirates, "You know they're going to score and they make the plays behind you. You can't ask for more than that.

"You just want the manager to give you the ball as often as possible. It's that easy," he said.

Skins' Allen Fined $5,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Naughty George Allen, who got caught with his draft choices down, has been subjected to what may have been the most embarassing verbal reprimand in Pete Rozelle's 13-year reign as commissioner of the National Football League.

Rozelle revealed Tuesday night that Allen had been called on the carpet and his Washington Redskins had been slapped with a maximum $5,000 fine in two cases involving players acquired with draft choices the Redskins actually did not have.

It was the first time Rozelle ever had subjected a coach to a verbal reprimand before the NFL's executive committee— one executive from each of the league's 26 teams—and left Allen curt when he was asked to comment on the case.

"It's all over," said the Redskins' general manager and head coach. "It's history. That's all I have to say."

Rozelle apparently laid far more words on Allen when he appeared before the executive committee. Rozelle said he stressed "the importance of adhering to league rules and policies.

"While the problem could have been unintentional in nature, such practices are cause for deep concern," Rozelle explained. "We wanted him to know that we can't have violations on rules that could affect the competitive aspect of the game."

In making that statement, Rozelle sidestepped the issue— whether hanky-panky was involved in the transactions in question—but the implication of the heavy fine and severe reprimand seemed to indicate that was at the heart of the issue.

The two cases involved Allen's acquisition of defensive back Rich Petitbon from Los Angeles and Speedy Duncan from San Diego after taking over the Redskins last year and beginning a series of 19 trades in which he acquired veterans for draft choices.

Allen used draft choices he already had traded to the New York Jets and Buffalo Bills for defensive ends Verlon Biggs and Ron McDole, respectively, in acquiring Duncan and Petitbon. Rozelle said full restitution of the draft choices had been made to the Chargers and Rams by the Redskins.

Andrew Jackson was only 13 years old when he fought in the Revolutionary War.

Brewers, Indians Win A.L. Shutouts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Lonborg has a past, a present and ... a future.

The past: "I was really getting that old feeling", the Milwaukee right-hander said after blanking the Detroit Tigers 3-0 on four singles Tuesday night.

The present: "I'm not back to 1967; I'm back to 1972 because what happened in the past doesn't matter."

The future: "Can he pitch tomorrow?" asked manager Dave Bristol.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland's Gaylord Perry tamed the New York Yankees on four singles by an identical 3-0 score, the Chicago White Sox edged Texas 2-1, Boston nipped Baltimore 6-5 in 10 innings and Oakland shaded Califrnia 3-2. Minnesota and Kansas City were rained out.

It's been a long road back for Lonborg, who pitched the Red Sox to the pennant in 1967 with a 22-9 record and then won two more games in the World Series, including a one-hitter. The following winter, he wrecked a knee in a much-publicized skiing accident and then came an aggravating series of arm problems.

Over the next four seasons, which included two trips to the minors, his record with Boston was 27-28 and he was traded to the Brewers in a 10-player swap last winter. His first 1972 triumph came last week—over the Red Sox—and he now has a 2-1 record and sizzling 1.31 earned run average.

Lonborg was locked in a scoreless struggle with Detroit's Joe Coleman until the seventh, when George Scott singled and Johnny Briggs homered. Billy Conigliaro doubled and Ellie Rodriguez singled for the final run in the eighth.

The loss dropped the secondplace Tigers 2 1/2 games behind the surprising Indians in the AL East as Perry, 8-2 shut out the Yankees and joined Detroit's Mickey Lolich as league's only eight-game winners. It was his sixth straight.

The tall right-hander also led off the eighth inning with a double off Mel Stottlemyre, igniting a three-run uprising that snapped a scoreless tie.

The White Sox maintained their half-game lead over Oakland in the AL West, scoring two runs in the first inning on Pat Kelly's bunt single, Carlos May's double and Bill Melton's single to nip Texas. Don Mincher homered for the Rangers' run in the last of the first.

Stan Bahnsen, 6-4, went 7 2-3 innings for Chicago before giving way to Terry Forster and then Steve Kealey. The Rangers had the potential tying run cut down at the plate to end the game when Lenny Randle tried to score from second on Larry Biittner's infield hit behind the second base bag. Mike Andrews' throw to Ed Herrmann rubbed out Randle.

"We've won a lot of games on our speed and hustle," philosophized manager Ted Williams, "and we're going to lose a few like that."

The Orioles overcame a 4-0 deficit against the Red So before blowing a 5-4 lead of their own in the ninth inning. Home runs by Tommy Harper and Reggie Smith helped the Red Sox to their lead and the Orioles caught up on homers by pinch hitter Don Baylor and Terry Crowley.

Baltimore forged in front in the eighth but Ben Oglivie's pinch single tied the score for the Red Sox in the ninth and they won out in the 10th on a walk, sacrifice and Rico Petrocelli's single to break a fivegame losing streak.

Reggie Jackson hit his seventh home run of the season on the first pitch from reliever Eddie Fisher in the ninth inning to propel the A's past the Angels. California scored the tying run in the top of the ninth on Ken McMullen's single and Leroy Stanton's double.

Indy 500 Saturday

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Drivers who will start Saturday's $1 million Indianapolis 500-mile race got their final chance to map battle plans today during a three-hour session of "carburetion" runs.

The 2.5 mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where more than 250,000 will gather for the 56th running of the richest motoring event in the world, opened at 10 a.m. for the first time since time trials ended Sunday.

The carburetion tests have been traditional at Indianapolis for years, but at least one car owner calls them "antiquated."

"We haven't used carburetors on these cars in years," said Lindsey Hopkins, a wealthy Coca-Cola bottler from Atlanta and a veteran of many years at Indy.

"It seems we could come up with a more imaginative term for what we do in this final day of practice."

What the drivers actually do is practice, the same as they have done all month. For their final day on the oval, however, they use their race day chassis setup, the new engines they have installed or reworked, and, incidentally, they check fuel consumption and tire wear.

Thus, it would be unlikely that pole-sitter Bobby Unser would run his Olsonite Eagle at anything like top speed and certainly not at the 195.940 miles per hour he put together for four laps 10 days ago to win the No. 1 starting position.

A broken engine or a wrecked car this late in the game would be disaster.

Hopkins, meanwhile, lost one of his regular drivers when Wally Dallenbach was selected Tuesday to drive Andy Granatelli's STP-Lola. Along with Mel Kenyon and Roger McCluskey, Dallenbach had formed the Indy team that Hopkins co-sponsors with Gilmore Broadcasting Co.

But of Hopkins' three pilots, Dallenbach found himself first on the bump list during the final flurry of qualifying, and actually was ousted from the lineup by ex-stock car driver Cale Yarborough.

Granatelli's Lola had been qualified in the middle of the fourth row by 45-year-old Art Pollard during the first round. He wrecked it two days later, however, and wound up in the hospital with a broken leg.

The car was repaired but was relegated to 33rd position when Pollard couldn't drive it. Dallenbach, who would have moved up from his first alternate status to fill the 33rd spot, had the Lola not shown, thus will make his sixth Indy start anyway.

Dallenbach probably will be the busiest driver at the Speedway today. Race officials directed that the Lola must run at least 100 miles before it is certified for competition.

Qualifying Rounds Continue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Too bad the Danny ThomasMemphis Golf Classic ended Sunday ... Doug Sanders was just beginning to get the hang of the new Colonial Country Club course.

Sanders, the flamboyant golfer whose trademarks are colorful outfits and a compact swing, fired a course-record 66 Monday morning, then came back with a steady 71 in the afternoon for a 137 total to pace local qualifiers at Memphis for the U.S. Open.

Memphis was one of 58 sites where local qualifying is being held Monday and today. Survivors will advance to sectional qualifying rounds at 13 locations June 5-6. In all, 4,252 golfers submitted entries for the U.S. Open, to be played June 15-18 at Pebble Beach, Calif. All but 36 will have to go through some sort of qualifying round to earn a spot in the field of 156 starters.

Sanders, who called his course record "kind of a stroll in the park," finished fifth in the Memphis tourney. That event was won by Lee Trevino, who set the previous course record with a final-round 67 Sunday.

Elsewhere, quarterback John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers shot an even par 72 to share the lead in the first round of local qualifying at San Francisco. The second round will be played today.

Tied with Brodie are three pros, Dale Coodell, Mike DeLozier and tour regular Jim Wiechers.

Senior League Opens Tonight

Two games are on tap tonight in the opening contest of the 1972 Senior Babe Ruth league.

League commissioner Gerald "Bowie" Howard will be on hand to open this year's baseball season at V.F.W. Stadium.

Leible Implement and Hart's Standard square off in the opening battle, scheduled for 6:30. The Optimist Club will face Elks in the 8 nightcap.

Bob Blankenship, Ron Greenlee, Jim Saulters, and Arnold Stewart will manage the teams that hold athletes between 16-19.

Impeachment is the only means of removing a federal judge from office.

McDonnell-Douglas Produces Last DC8

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) For the DC8 jetliner, No. 556 was the end of the line.

The 556th DC8 jet, built at the McDonnell-Douglas plant here, has been sold to Scandinavian Airlines Systems. It is the last DC8 to be built.

Since the first DC8 was built nearly 15 years ago, sales of the aircraft have totaled more than $4.2 billion. There are now 48 DC8 users—airlines, charter companies and private companies—in 28 countries.

The four-engine DC8 introduced jet travel on a major scale. Previous aircraft were the DC6 and DC7, the last of the major piston-propeller airliners built.

Replacing the DC8 are the wide-bodied jets—the McDonnell-Douglas DC10, the Boeing 747 and the Lockheed L1011.

The DC8 has been a moneymaker for the airlines and will continue to be used widely both in the United Sta es and abroad. Manufacture of spare parts for the planes will continue for years.

But the DC8, although financially successful for the airlines, was a sometime bumpy ride for its manufacturer, the Douglas Aircraft Co, Inc., of Santa Monica.

In the early 1960s, Douglas had huge losses because of cost overruns on development of the aircraft.

It may also have contributed, along with the twin-jet DC9, to a cash crisis for Douglas which resulted in its merger with McDonnell Co. of St. Louis.

The company won't say whether the overall DC8 program was profitable.

In the past year, one DC8 a month has come off the Long Beach assembly line, first started in February 1957. However, the end of the line will not mean economic hardship for the 26,000 workers at the plant, company officials said. Most have been phased into production of the DC10 and the DC9.

Senators Invited To Read White House Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration spokesman says the White House is inviting all senators to drop by and read what their constituents have been telling President Nixon about Vietnam.

More often than not, the White House keeps silent about incoming letters and telegrams concerning current issues. But it seems eager to crow a bit about public reaction to Nixon's May 8 speech in which he announced the mining of North Vietnamese ports.

Kenneth W. Clawson, the administration's deputy director of communications, volunteered that Nixon's chief lobbyist, Clark MacGregor, began writing all senators Thursday to offer a pro-con breakdown of the response the White House has received from their constituents.

The first 20 senators to whom MacGregor sent letters included the two widely regarded as principal contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination: George McGovern of South Dakota and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Clawson said a White House mail-room count showed a 1,200-to-250 breakdown in support of Nixon from Minnesota and a 115-to-6 count from South Dakota.

Both McGovern and Humphrey have been critical of Nixon's latest moves.

Clawson said MacGregor invited the senators to inspect the letters and telegrams Nixon has received from voters in their states. MacGregor's letter to the senators, as quoted by Clawson in response to an inquiry, included no such invitation.

Asked about this, Clawson replied, "If they ask to inspect it (the mail), they will be permitted to."

Clawson said MacGregor wrote the senators:

"There has been much interest in the response of the American people to the President's May 8 statement announcing the steps he is taking to bring hostilities to an end in Vietnam. Knowing your own constituent mail has been very heavy on this subject, I thought you would be interested as well in correspondence to the President from people of your state."

Court Rules Noncapital Convictions Do Not Have To Be Unanimous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defendants on trial in state courts for noncapital crimes may be convicted by a less-than-unanimous jury, the Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 Monday.

The decision, in cases from Louisiana and Oregon, said the centuries-old practice of unanimous jury verdicts is not required by the U.S. Constitution. Even a 9 to 3 verdict is permissible, said Justice Byron R. White for the court.

Only four states, Oklahoma and Montana in addition to Louisiana and Oregon, apparently now have laws approving conviction by a less than unanimous vote. The court's ruling could spur others to follow the example.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, a dissenter, said the ruling "cuts the heart out," of an important safeguard of the Bill of Rights.

Protests were entered also by Justices William Douglas, William J. Brennan and Potter Stewart.

The Oregon law approved today allows 9 to 3 convictions.

School Program To Aid Handicapped

CHARLESTON — The Charleston R-1 School District has received written approval on a 1972-73 program for "seriously emotionally disturbed" children. This program will be funded through Public Law 91-230, by federal funds.

The program is available for students enrolled in St. Henry School. The director of the program will be Terry Rowe.

Eligibility of students participating in this or any other program is dependent solely on their particular handicap. The program is made available to all students regardless of their religious background, economic background, intellectual level or any other requirement that hinders many students from participating in many other Federal programs.

According to Rowe, a survey was made early this school year to determine approximately how many students in the Charleston R-1 School District were considered "seriously emotionally disturbed." The results of the survey were that approximately 150 students, or 5% percent of the total school population are considered "seriously emotionally disturbed" according to the following definition:

Seriously Emotionally Disturbed children exhibit one or more of the following characteristics over a long period of time and to a marked degree:

1. An inability to learn that cannot be explained by intellectual, sensory, or other health factors.

2. An inability to build or maintain satisfactory interpersonal relationships with peers and teachers.

3. Inappropriate types of behavior or feelings under normal circumstances.

4. A general pervasive mood of unhappiness or depression.

5. A tendency to develop physical symptoms, pains or fears associated with personal or school problems.

First priority next year will be given to those students (grades K-12) who are considered a danger to themselves or to others because of their specific emotional problems. Second priority will be given to the early identification and diagnosis of students with serious emotional problems at the elementary level. Those students who need individual instruction and guidance will be placed in a class for the "seriously emotionally disturbed."

The objectives of the program will be to:

* Provide evaluation and diagnosis by a competent Clinical Psychologist of students in grades K-12 who are considered Seriously Emotionally Disturbed.

* Provide a class for the Seriously Emotionally disturbed at the elementary level (grades 1-5).

* Provide counseling, therapy, and or medication to the students who are diagnosed as seriously emotionally disturbed.

* Provide educational guidance and counseling to the parents of the seriously emotionally disturbed through both group and individual sessions.

* Provide educational guidance and direction to the teachers in the Charleston R-1 School District through teacher workshops in the area of the seriously emotionally disturbed.

* Reduce or eliminate undesirable behavior or feelings of those students diagnosed as being seriously emotionally disturbed.

Included in the staff next year will be a clinical psychologist who will be employed on a part- time basis to help establish the program. Also included will be a certified teacher of the seriously emotionally disturbed, and a social worker.

The program is set up to start at the beginning of the 1972-73 school year and run through to May 25, 1973.

No Effective Gun Controls In U.S.

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Gov. George C. Wallace is the 10th man seeking or holding the office of President to be an assasin's target, and the fifth to survive the attack. In nine of the 10 cases, including that of Wallace, the weapon used was a handgun. Thus, the assault on the Alabama governor may well give fresh impetus to attempts to strengthen existing gun control laws.

It won't be easy. The assassinations of Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy in 1968 led to passage of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act and the Gun Control Act, which prohibited the mail- order or other interstate purchase of firearms and ammunition by persons who did not live in the dealer's state. But intensive lobbying by the National Rifle Association caused deletion of a provision requiring national registration of every firearm and licensing of every gun owner.

Experience has shown that the 1968 legislation is easily circumvented. For example, the importation of the cheap snub- nosed pistols and revolvers known as "Saturday night specials" is prohibited. But the law failed to prohibit the importation of their parts. As a result, Carl Bakal noted in Saturday Review, "Enterprising former importers have been assembling Saturday night specials here using parts from abroad and cheap local labor ... working in makeshift factories such as converted garages and even a church."

The ban against interstate mail- order sale of firearms has been sidestepped by the shipping of guns between licensed dealers in different states. A person need only place an order locally and wait for the weapon to arrive at the dealer for pickup. It is estimated that eight out of 10 handguns in such cities as Boston and New York came from other areas.

Inadequate gun controls have made the United States a nation under arms. There were an estimated 24 million handguns in private hands in 1968, according to a report prepared by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence. An additional 2.5 million are being manufactured domestically or imported every year. One new handgun is sold in the United States every 13 seconds, and used handguns are being traded at the rate of two a minute.

The National Rifle Association nevertheless feels that existing gun control legislation is unduly restrictive. An editorial in the April issue of the NRA magazine, The American Rifleman, proclaimed that "this is the year" to replace the Gun Control Act of 1968 with a law "aimed at controlling criminals rather than harassing gun owners." It termed the law a "legal failure and a social irdecency."

Maryland, the state where Gov. Wallace was gunned down, recently enacted a firearms control law despite the bitter opposition of the gun clubs. The measure restricts the wearing or transporting of handguns but does not require registration of rifles and handguns kept in the home or place of business. Wallace's alleged assailant bought his .38 caliber revolver in Milwaukee.

It took courage for Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel to propose gun control legislation. Former Sen. Joseph D. Tydings (D Md.) was defeated for re- election in 1970, in part because he was one of the leaders of the fight for federal controls two years earlier. But now the gun control forces may gain some new recruits. Wallace supporters generally oppose any restriction on the right to bear arms. The attack on the governor may cause some of them to have second thoughts.

Court Upholds Immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a 5-2 vote, the Supreme Court today upheld the limited immunity in Organized Crime Control Act of 1970 gives witnesses who are compelled to testify before grand juries.

The ruling, delivered by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., found broader immunity is not required by the Fifth Amendment. Justices William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall dissented.

Prosecutors had been waiting more than two years for the court to settle the constitutional controversy. The federal law has been copied by several states.

Complete immunity from prosecution has been granted to many witnesses over the years to prevent them from invoking the Fifth Amendment and refusing to testify on the grounds of possible self-incrimination. Witnesses who refused to testify under immunity could be jailed for contempt of court.

The 1970 law provides a more limited kind of immunity. A witness can be forced to testify with the protection only that what he says will not be used against him in a future prosecution.

Powell said complete immunity would give the witness considerably broader protection than the Fifth Amendment privilege.

Men's Long Hair Safety Hazard

CHICAGO — One out of every eight companies participating in a National Safety Council survey reported one or more accidents involving long hair on men.

The Safety Council recently sent out questionaires seeking "hard data" on corporate attitudes and policies concerning long hair and beards. The survey results reflect the practices and experiences of 174 responding establishments. Most of the respondents reported for large establishments — 70 percent reported more than 1,000 employees.

Although not a completely representative sample of all industries in the United States, the survey revealed some interesting information.

More than half the reporting establishments, for example, said they have regulations covering the wearing of long hair by men, and a slightly smaller number had similar regulations for women. But in both cases, more than half the regulations cover only certain jobs and departments.

In addition to one in eight companies reporting one or more long hair accidents, only one in 14 reported long hair accidents involving women. Three percent reported accidents involving beards.

The Safety Council survey, which is discussed in the May issue of the Council's National Safety News, revealed that six percent of the reporting companies had long hair accidents even though protection was used.

One establishment out of even said they had rules governing the length of "bushyness" of hair for employees who use respirators, and about a third of the companies indicated they give employees indoctrination training in the hazards of long hair, while almost an equal number said training was optional with the supervisor.

In its article on the long hair questionaires, the National Safety News observes: "While a lot of fuss is being made in the name of safety about men's current hair styles —including shoulder length hair, sideburns, mustaches, and all styles of beards, probably a great deal of the fuss is simply because the styles are new and radically different from what we've come to expect... And it is quite unlikely, as this survey indicates, hair do's and 'hair don'ts will affect any company's safety record very much one way or another.

"Where a danger does exist, a few words regarding the consequences of such an injury can usually make a most recalcitrant individual actively seek means of protecting this symbol of his masculinity."

The Safety Council report points out that a proper job of guarding revolving shafts, gears, pulleys, belts, and similar hazards to fingers, hands and accident will greatly reduce the possibility not only of an accident involving hair, but arms.

Seven-Day Struggle Preceded Airing Of Port Mining Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — It began with presidential advisor Henry Kissinger jetting through the night sky to a secret rendezvous in Paris.

It ended a week later with a solemn President telling the nation he had decided to confront communist superpowers by mining North Vietnamese harbors.

During those seven days in May, Richard Nixon struggled with the most momentous decision of his presidency — a decision that posed the greatest potential for a world power showdown since the Cuban missile crisis a decade ago and threatened for a while to wreck his Moscow summit.

Nixon's seven days in May carried none of the sinister plotting of Fletcher Knebel's presidential novel with that title, but a series of interviews with White House aides and earlier, administration officials since his May 8 announcement that the mining of North Vietnam's harbors had been the presidential decision-making, elevated to a top spot on the

Although presidential list of active options several spokesmen insist a final weeks before the decision was not made until a announcement, and the few hours before the May 8 contingency preparations were television address, the made by the military in April interviews indicated Nixon had But the interviews disclosed settled on his specific course of that it was during those seven action as much as six days days from May 2 to May 8 that the agony of decision-making squarely faced the President.

From official and unofficial sources, this reconstruction can be made:

During the early morning hours of Tuesday, May 2, he foreign policy adviser Kissinger and a few members of his National Security Council staff flew secretly to Paris where Kissinger met in private talks all day with North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho. Nixon and Kissinger had high hopes for the secret session with Tho. It had been arranged at the urging of Soviet leaders with whom Kissinger had conferred at length during four days of secret talks in Moscow—an indication to them that fruitful negotiations might be in the offing.

But Kissinger soon found that no progress would be made. As he recounted later:

"We were confronted by the reading to us of the published Communist statement. It had taken us six months to set up the meeting and innumerable exchanges, and when we got there, what we heard could have been clipped from a newspaper and sent to us in the mail."

Nixon, by several accounts, was furious. As Kissinger flew home from Paris Tuesday and afternoon, Nixon retired to his hideaway suite in the Executive Office Building across the street from the White House, where he began pondering what to do.

By dinnertime, Kissinger was back. Nixon, Kissinger and Kissinger's No. 2 man, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., drove to the Washington Navy Yard where they boarded the squat, 105-foot presidential yacht, the U.S.S. Sequoia.

At dusk they cruised the Potomac River below Washington, with Kissinger delivering a full report on the latest Paris frustrations. The talk turned to options, with Kissinger—in his usual fashion—outlining the pros and cons of various possible steps.

It was at this point, according to most indications, that the President made his tentative decision to mine the harbors through which most Soviet supplies flowed.

But he ordered Kissinger's National Security Council staff to prepared detailed studies on alternatives—and on the impact each choice would have on U.S.-Soviet relations and the scheduled Moscow summit.

Then, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 3-5, Nixon huddled repeatedly in his Executive Office Building suite with his closest advisers—Kissinger and Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally.

While Kissinger and his staff traced the probable diplomatic and military repercussions, the tall Texan assured for Nixon the likely domestic reaction. Connally, who has since disclosed his resignation from the Cabinet, firmly advocated strong steps such as mining.

Nixon began to work on the words he would use to tell the American people of his decision. And, after another round of meetings with his family, Nixon flew back to Washington on the White House Sunday night Friday, the President boarded a and proceeded Monday to the helicopter for the 20-minute 9 a.m. meeting of his National flight to Camp David. Security Council.

On Friday night and Saturday morning, Nixon retired to nearby Birch Cabin where, sitting in a high-backed, blue easy chair and with his feet propped on an ottoman, he dictated a draft of his speech from notes scrawled on yellow legal pads.

To his exasperation, he learned on Saturday that, because of a dictating machine that one of the three tapes he consumed was mostly blank. With appropriate comments about the machine, he dictated that portion of the draft again from his notes.

At this time, only five or six persons in government knew of the President's plan. The list grew by one about noon on Saturday, when a White House aide arrived at the compound to help with the speech.

According to the aide, who would not divulge use of his name, the President was specific about what he wanted. "A very businesslike, very factual, short, hard-hitting speech cut down to the bare essentials." The aide said he was told to call no one for information or advice.

The aide then set to work embellishing the speech, changing words here and there and adding new phrases. But when the draft came back from the Nixon Saturday night, the aide found "where I had done so he reverted back to his chosen words."

The President also eliminated excess material, insisting, the aide said, "on keeping it spare and tight."

For example, references to the political and personal implications of his decision were scratched because "he didn't want to surround the announcement or the decision with a great atmosphere of crisis."

Also cut were phrases which the aide said Nixon considered divisive, including one that focused on "how political advantage might accrue to a president who chose an immediate pullout."

But Nixon scribbled on the margins of the draft some phrases he apparently had decided upon while walking through the woods.

They included his declaration that "There is only one way to stop the killing and that is to keep the weapons of war out of the hands of the international outlaws of North Vietnam."

Early Sunday, Nixon telephoned Secretary of State William P. Rogers and told him and to cut short his visit with European leaders and return to Washington for a National Security Council meeting on Monday.

Kissinger and Nixon went over the draft again, with Kissinger providing some technical changes were woven into paragraphs describing the mining and the promised interdiction of war supplies.

After a Sunday dinner with his family, Nixon flew back to the White House Sunday night and proceeded Monday to the 9 a.m. meeting of his National Security Council.

Zip Coded Mail Not Necessarily Faster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adding that five-digit zip code to first-class or airmail letters doesn't guarantee earlier delivery, a new nationwide test of mail service discloses.

The mailing of nearly 800 test letters by six Associated Press bureaus in as many cities nationwide showed that eight times out of 10 letters without zip codes reached their destinations as fast or faster than zipcoded letters mailed at the same time and place.

A similar survey conducted 15 months earlier produced about the same conclusions.

Officials of the U.S. Postal Service say that zip codes primarily were introduced to aid in processing mail, make possible the hiring of less skilled persons without having to train them intensively and allow a shift to optical sorting machines.

"Not a great many are in oper ation now, but we ar adding them as rapidly as they can be produced and installed," said Joseph F. Jones, director of the Postal Service's Office of Logistics. "The zip code will play an increasingly important role, and allow us to employ more persons with less skills."

The AP survey also indicated:

—Spending the extra three cents for an airmail stamp doesn't necessarily guarantee quicker delivery. In the case of 45 per cent of the letters in the survey, the airmail letters were delivered at the same time as first-class ones.

—Considerable variations exist in delivery time, often not related to distances involved. For example, letters mailed from Los Angeles to Washington reached the capital faster than those mailed from Washington or New York to Los Angeles.

—In three of the test cities, St. Louis, Los Angeles and Houston, the Postal Service handled local letters in an average of one day. The average time in St. Louis was 20 1/2 hours, compared to 33 in Washington.

—Since the Postal Service does not generally operate on Saturday afternoon and Sunday, Friday is the poorest day to mail letters. In most cases they are not delivered until Monday morning; i n a least a dozen cases delivery was delayed until Tuesday.

"We are trying to improve the weekend problem which has been acute," Jones said.

The AP survey was designed to test long-distance as well as local service, involving Chicago in addition to the cities already named. Here's how it was conducted:

At 10 a.m. on Monday, each of the six bureaus mailed a total of 22 letters, two to itself and four to each of the other five bureaus. Both letters addressed to the bureau of origin bore first-class postage; one carried the zip code and the other didn't.

Of the letters sent to the other bureaus, one first-class letter had a zip code, one firstclass was without the zip, one airmail letter had a zip code and one airmail letter was without it.

A like assortment of 22 letters was mailed by each bureau again at 5 p.m. Monday, then at the same two times on Wednesday and Friday—yielding a 72-letter test of local service and a 720-letter test of longdistance service.

Receiving bureaus logged the hour and day each letter arrived. Like most businesses in urban areas, the bureaus get their mail two or more times a day.

Jones agreed that problem areas exist, and said the service has just initiated a program to analyze them one by one and correct the deficiencies.

The AP survey indicated that local service has been speeded up within the past 15 months. The survey in early 1971 produced only one city, Houston, which handled local letters in an average of one day. This year Houston, Los Angeles and St. Louis matched or surpassed that.

But there were lapses: one letter in Houston and one in Washington took 63 hours to deliver, and one in Los Angeles 67 hours—more than 2 1/2 days in each case.

In the survey, half the letters had zip codes and half didn't. A comparison of arrival times of each pair of letters showed:

—19 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived first.

—64 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived at the same time as those without zip codes.

—17 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived later than letters without zip codes.

These percentages varied only slightly from those produced in the survey 15 months earlier.

The survey also compared arrival times of pairs of airmail and first-class letters mailed at the same time. It found:

—46 per cent of the airmail letters got to their destinations ahead of the companion firstclass letters.

Missouri Expands In Industry

JEFFERSON CITY — Considerable industrial activity took place in Missouri during 1971 even though the nation as a whole was undergoing an economic slump, according to Missouri's New and Expanding Industries Report, 1971.

The report, prepared by the Research Section of the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, shows that, during 1971, more than 300 firms announced plans to build new plants or expand existing facilities. These industries will provide 10,207 new jobs for Missourians and represent a capital expenditure of over $110 million.

New industries comprised almost 57 percent of the total announced, over 61 percent of the new jobs and 47 percent of the capital invested.

Covered in the report are manufacturing, warehousing, mining, and research and development facilities of private companies. Of these, manufacturing industries took the greatest share. In fact, more new manufacturing plants were announced in 1971 than any other year since 1953, the first year that kind of information was recorded. Of all the new manufacturing plants announced, 51 percent occurred in rural areas and nearly 65 percent of all manufacturing expansions for the year took place in rural Missouri.

Violence In The Media

By HELEN B. SHAFFER
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Once more millions of Americans have witnessed on home television the gunning down of a celebrated public figure. The attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace flooded the viewer's mind with other tragic events of the recent past. There was Jack Ruby's shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, President Kennedy's assassin, "live" from the Dallas police station. There was the scene of bedlam in a Los Angeles hotel ballroom when bullets felled Robert F. Kennedy, and there was the on- camera rioting after the murder of Martin Luther King.

To a public inured to violence in the popular media of entertainment, the shock of these televised events is that they are not "crime shows." They are for real. Even the scenes from a distant war flashed on the home screen do not carry the impact of the bloody interruptions of the pursuit of politics on home grounds.

What then is the effect of reporting such events in this day of advanced communications systems that bring the sight and sound of violent reality into the consciousness of every American? And to what extent is the response to real violence affected by the constant diet of fictional violence purveyed in the media of entertainment -- especially in films and on television?

These questions have been taken up by many social- science researchers and several government- sponsored study groups in recent years. The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, appointed by President Johnson after the 1968 assassinations of King and Robert F. Kennedy, said in its report: "Though an assassin is mentally deranged, the violent rhetoric of our politics and our constant flirtation with actual violence may be factors that bring him at least half- way to his distorted perception of what actions are right and legitimate." Part of that "constant flirtation with acutal violence" is reflected in the frequency of violent episodes in the most favored television shows and in recent movies, as well as in the news media.

The commission was persuaded by the evidence of social studies that the violence seen on television has a harmful effect, particularly on young watchers. TV- viewing begins early, typically at age two or three. There is at least one television set in 96 per cent of all American homes and 99 per cent of the homes with children or adolescents. the set is turned on an average of six hours and 18 minutes a day and children watch the tube at least two hours a day.

The media- violence question was taken up again by the Surgeon General's Scientific Committee on Television and Social Behavior, which reported its findings last January. The Committee took a less positive stand than the Violence Commission, but agreed that certain vulnerable children could be influenced toward aggressive behavior by what they watched on television.

Although television network officials have promised to reduce the violence content of children's programs in the fall, there is little likelihood of an overall reduction of violence in the media as a whole. Real- life violence, especially when it touches prominent persons, is bound to get the most extensive news coverage possible. As for entertainment, popular taste seems to demand a high level of action. The tolerance level of moviegoers for blood and brutality appears to be rising.

The harsh content of some current movies suggests that the first generation reared on daily doses of violence on television may neeed a bit more gore and brutality to react to the meaning of violence. The vividness of the film medium gives it a much higher per- dosage impact. A number of film critics have complained at what strikes them as celebrations of violence in such highly successful movies as Straw Dogs and A Clockwork Orange.

Nevertheless, A Clockwork Orange won the New York Film Critics award for the best picture of 1971 and was nominated for the Oscar, the annual best- picture award of the Motion Picture Academy of America. As it turned out, that prize was won by The French Connection, a somewhat more conventional crime- and- cops show, but bloody and brutal enough to meet the newly risen norm.

Historians point out that popular arts and literature have always been violent. Some social scientists say the key factor to be changed is the uses to which violence is put in modern comedy and drama. The Surgeon General's Committee suggested that by creating sympathy for the victims of society's violence, the media could move people to be "more human."

Before You Buy

by Margaret Dana

Whenever you buy something -- whether a new dishwasher or a pair of shoes, or any other product -- you literally make a CHOICE between competing products. You may not see all the different types at the store where you shop, but advertising tells you about other brands, friends report their experiences with their brands and consumer reporters acquaint you with all the various "qualities" available. So you really do choose when you buy.

But much of the rising discontent consumers feel today comes, I think, from the fact that they do not feel sure they can make a really good and informed choice when they do choose. After all, that is what "free choice" is -- informed.

Unless we as a country are to go back to ancient baronial days and let a "superior person" tell us what to buy, we shall have to develop the means of making free choice both possible and easy.

We need to establish nationally a good mechanism for getting those necessary facts across to consumer buyers without increasing our tax burden or faising prices significantly.

There are many debates these days as to the best way to find out what kinds of facts consumers want and need, how best to develop those facts and how to get them to consumers. Nearly everyone agrees that the best "bridge of communication" is the use of nationally accepted standards to express accurately and scientifically the different products. You wouldn't demand, for example, the same level of durability in a wedding dress to be worn once, and a party dress you hope to wear a dozen times. You wouldn't ask for the same level of color-fastness for a blue denim work shirt and a fancy printed sport shirt.

This is perhaps the first basic fact on which we should build our bridge of communication. Recognize that in today's complex products, uses, purposes and prices dictate the levels of performance the manufacturer will include. To get a maximum level in one thing he may have to cut down to lower levels, some other ingredients. This is O.K. -- IF the consumer buyer knows it BEFORE she or he buys.

Secondly, can we set up ways to find out what products will do and put that information on a label at the point of sale? And do consumers want some kind of assurance those promises of the label will be kept? What we are talking about is the much-discussed plan for "certification."

You have seen "seals of certification" on products often. Some are of the highest integrity. Some aren't worth much more than noble words. But if we are to use national standards and test methods as our machinery for getting facts, it is probable that some form of certification should tell you "WHO says so?"

This is where the Federal Trade Commission gets into the act. Seeing these trends developing rapidly across the country, and indeed the world, the FTC has started a study of standards -- voluntary and compulsory; the integrity of text methods -- again voluntary or compulsory; and the question of certification as a benefit to consumers.

Consumers should have a voice in deciding these important questions And the FTC invites consumers to express their opinions on thi whole problem, in writing, tc the Commission.

Address your letter to: Mr John R. Ferguson, Chairman, Task Force on Industry Self-Regulation, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C. 20580.

These are the questions you are invited to answer: Would it help your buying significantly to know the levels of performance you are choosing? What kinds of facts would you like to have on labels of different products? If we use standards as "measuring-sticks" to get the facts from producers to consumers, shall those standards be set by government and be compuslory, or be set by a joint organization of consumers, producers, retailers and government experts -- and be volunatay?

Finally, do you like the idea of certification of these "promises" of performance? Do you consider that self-certification or government certification of "third-party" certification, again in the form of a joint organization of consumers, producers, retailers and government experts, should provide this assurance? Take time to think about these points and write a letter.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal answers are impossible due to large volume of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana Research Center, R. R. 1, Chalfont, Pa. 18914)

Reasons Why Missourians Will Not Sign Petitions To Raise Road Funds

1. Signing for the proposed constitutional amendment would be "signing away" our highway improvement program.

2. $224 million of road taxes would be diverted to big city rapid transit, airports and urban bus transit lines if enough voters sign the initiative petitions, and later, support the amendment, if it should get on the ballot.

3. It is unfair to tax one mode of transportation (highways) for the benefit of competing modes.

4. It would be like taxing restaurants to subsidize cafeterias, or taxing motels to keep hotels in business.

5. It is unfair to tax only one element of the population (highway users) for general purpose facilities (air terminals and transit lines).

6. Where mass transit and airports are needed in the larger cities they are usually financed from general taxes. Also, there are new Federal-aid funds for both mass transit and aviation.

7. It is unfair to tax rural and small-town Missourians to assist St. Louis and Kansas City, Agriculture, the resort and tourist business and all the county seat towns will receive little benefit.

8. City transit should be financed by its beneficiaries, like highways are financed by the users, or by general revenues from the metropolitan areas.

9. This proposition is based on an unfair principle of taxation. The number of miles a man must drive, or the assessed valuation of his car, should not be measures of his responsibility for urban rapid transit or airports.

10. The proposed road fund raid amendment contains several other issues which should be dealt with separately. The proposed $730 million transportation bond issue will not be needed for highways because the Legislature recently passed a 2 cents per gallon gasoline tax increase. Interest and debt service on the bonds will total $1,204,500,000 through the year 2007 -- more than the original issue.

11. The State Department of Transportation proposed in the referendum proposition is now obsolete, as the Legislature has enacted a governmental reorganization, including a D. O.T.

12. Motor fuel taxes and motor vehicle fees are special use taxes imposed for the sole purpose of providing funds for building and administering highways. They are "tolls" for the use of the highways. Their use for transit and airports would be a violation of their basic purpose.

13. Deficiencies in the Missouri highway and street program exist in virtually every area in the State. Any diversion of road taxes for non-highway purposes, such as transit and airports, will seriously endanger present and future highway improvement plans..

14. Missourians have voted four times for constitutional protection of highway funds -- in 1928, 1945, 1962, and 1970. Road funds are safeguarded from diversion in 28 states.

15. Motor vehicle owners are now very heavily taxed. They provide the entire cost of the State highway and freeway systems without subsidy. Also they pay the total cost of the Missouri Highway Patrol, the Motor Vehicle and Driver License Divisions, and substantial allocations to several other state government departments. There is no ethical reason why they should now be asked to support additional, local, non-highway functions.

Home Owner Should Take Care In Buying

KANSAS CITY — This month's column should only be read by people who do not have a great deal of money to lose. If by chance you are among this large class of people read on.

Spring is now with us and home owners' thoughts turn to such things as painting the family abode. Spring also brings out the home improvement salesman. Somewhere near you, on this very day, a consumer is being given the "model home" pitch.

Basically, this involves a home owner being told that a new product is being introduced into the area and his home is in a good location to display the new product. The consumer is further told that he will receive a big discount off the regular price if the company can put on the siding, awnings, etc., in order that others might see it.

The home owner is told that because this is part of an advertising campaign, the company will put the product on at cost if the company can put a sign in the yard stating the name of the company installing the product. Any attempt by the home owner to delay the decision is met with an answer something like this: "We can only come to this town one time, and if you do not want this fabulous deal, we have five or six other prospects who want to deal right now." All too often this results in the customer signing a contract with an unknown company without checking the company's reputation.

Remember, in most cases, after the contract is signed, it is too late to check a company's reputation with Better Business Bureaus and other institutions. Also, it is too late to compare the price quoted with quotes by reliable local contractors. Many times, instead of getting a real discount on home improvements, a home owner pays twice as much as he would have been charged by a local contractor.

Some basic rules to remember:

1. Never sign a contract with an unknown home improvement company without checking the company's reputation first.

2. Never sign a contract with an out-of-town or unknown company without getting quotes from local known contractors, to compare.

3. Under the Truth in Lending law, you are entitled to a three-day period in which the contract can be rescinded by you. If the sale is on credit, the company must give you a preprinted form with which you can cancel the contract.

4. Be dubious of savings claims and statements that your home will be used as a "model home."

Remember the great majority of American businessmen are hard working and honest, but don't you be the one to be victimized by the 1% or so which are unscrupulous.

The American Indian population of the United States increased more than 50 per cent since 1960, according to the preliminary count for the 1970 Census. The 1970 Census count of American Indians reached 791,839. The World Almanac notes, with 53 per cent of this number living in five states.

FACT AND FANCY
by Isaac Asimov
208 pp.)

FACT AND FANCY is Isaac Asimov's speculative work extending pure scientific facts to their logical, but hypothetical conclusions. For example, something must exist beyond the planets, but what? Possibly just a lot of ice! Gravity is all around us, even on the distant planets, but can you ever escape it? No. Never!

These are many other carefully reasoned suppositions offer a treasury of startling ideas that are very much within the realm of scientific possibilities. They could very well all be true, but so far unproven. Dr. Asimov explains how he arrives at his ideas in an easily understandable manner accompanied by many illustrations.

Isaac Asimov is undoubtedly America's foremost writer of science for the layman. His science fiction titles (among them THE FOUNDATION TRIOLOGY published by Avon) have established him as an important writer of the intriguing marriage between science and imagination, between FACT AND FANCY.

"There is no doubt that it is a most fascinating piece of writing, due in large part to the tremendous enthusiasm Asimov obviously has for the subject." -- Library Journal

bake in 375° oven until brown. (Careful trimming of skin and fat allows rich hardwood smoke to penetrate deeper into KREY Gourmet Hams.)

KREY

GOURMET SPECIALTY EGGS:

On toasted halves of English Muffins place slices of turkey or chicken and top with slices of KREY Gourmet Ham. Top each with a poached egg. Serve two per person with a topping of Hollandaise Sauce. (Anything that's better is worth more, but remember also there's no bone and no excess fat in KREY Gourmet Hams.)

KREY

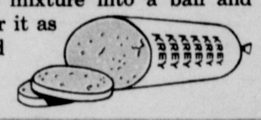
BAKED HAM BALLS:

Mix ¾ pound ground KREY Gourmet Ham, ½ pound sausage, ½ cup milk and ½ cup cracker crumbs. Form into 2-inch balls and bake for two hours in 325° oven in a sauce made of ¾ cup brown sugar, ½ cup vinegar, ½ cup water, 6 cloves and 1 tablespoon dry mustard. (Only 1 in 4 hams is good enough to earn the distinguished name KREY Gourmet Ham.)

KREY

BRAUNSCHWEIGER SNOWBALL SPREAD:

Mash 8 ounce package cream cheese at room temperature and mix in enough mayonnaise to spread easily. Blend together thoroughly 1 pound KREY Braunschweiger, ½ cup chili sauce and 2 teaspoons horseradish. Mold meat mixture into a ball and spread cream cheese over it as icing. Garnish with sliced olives and pimiento.



KREY

VEAL AND HAM TREATS:

Top thin slices of serving-size veal cutlet with slices of KREY Gourmet Ham. Dip in a mixture of Parmesan cheese and bread crumbs. Then in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs and cheese again. Then saute in butter about 10-minutes at low heat on each side. Serve with tomato sauce. (KREY Gourmet Ham makes any recipe you use superior because of its superior slow smoking.)

KREY

DEVILED HAM NOODLES:

Cook and drain 8 ounce package of noodles, then stir in ½ pound chopped KREY Gourmet Ham and about 2 cups Cream Sauce. Place in casserole, top with 6 halves of deviled eggs, and heat in 350° oven before serving. (Long slow smoking lets robust flavor seep into the very center of every tender KREY Gourmet Ham.)

KREY

HONEY-ORANGE HAM:

Spread 1 inch thick slice of KREY Gourmet Ham with honey. Sprinkle with grated orange rind. Moisten brown sugar with orange juice and spread over all. Broil 5 to 6 minutes. Take out of broiler, spread other side in the same way, and broil again for 5 to 6 minutes. Garnish with sections of orange. (KREY Gourmet Hams are smoked longer and they're all solid meat.)

KREY

GOURMET BACON NESTS:

Line cups of muffin tin with strips of lean KREY Gourmet Bacon and heat in 400° oven until bacon is well done but not crisp. Add one egg to each muffin cup and bake until set. Be careful not to let the yolk get hard. Empty each nest on crisp toast and top with barbecue sauce.

KREY

HAM POCKETS INDIA:

Roll out 10 refrigerated biscuits to ⅛ inch and top each with 1 tablespoon of the following mixture:

Hayti Council Talks Waste System

HAYTI — Power failure cut short the meeting of the Hayti city council Monday night where discussion of a solid waste system for Pemiscot County was the main order of business.

jay Waggoner, sanitation engineer of the Bootheel Regional Planning commission, Malden, presented to the council the proposed Pemiscot county Soiid Waste Management System as prepared by the Bootheel Commission. Waggoner had previously presented this plan to the Caruthersville and Steele city officials.

The purpose of the system, Waggoner explained, is to provide an economical, efficient, and flexible solid waste management system for the county which would provide for solid waste disposal facilities for the entire county and would provide for solid waste collection where it is financially possible.

He told the council that the method to achieve the system would be that revenues from participating cities and the county would be turned over to the authority in accordance with contractural agreements. The authority would have the option of providing the service or contracting with individuals to provide the service.

The total initial cost will be the cost of equipment for residential and commercial - institutional collection and the proposed site improvements. This amount is $171,000.

Waggoner said the Farmers Home Administration would loan that entire amount to Hayti as well as Steele and the county. He noted, however, that the authority will have to secure $41,000 in the form of a loan for Caruthersville's share because since that city's population is over 5,000, the administration cannot make a loan for this purpose.

Revenues would be broken down to a charge of $2 per household per month in Hayti as well as Steele and Caruthersville. Revenue bonds would finance the system and major decisions would be made by the board of directors composed of the presiding judge of Pemiscot County, and the mayors of Hayti, Caruthersville, and Steele.

In other business:

The council voted unanimously to approve the Bank of Hayti and the Missouri Delta Bank as the official city depositories.

Considerable discussion was held on the record keeping of the city cemeteries and it was noted that past records were poorly kept, particularly concerning sales of lots and burials. City Clerk E. H. Webb was instructed to check into the matter.

Frankly Speaking
Thomas Eagleton

Once again a man seeking the Presidency of the United States has been struck down by violence. Once again a shocked and saddened nation asks itself how such a thing could happen.

This time, thank God, the gunman was not totally successful. As of this writing the doctors say that Governor George Wallace will live. Whether or not he will remain partly paralyzed is not yet known, but his mind is sound, and that is the most important thing.

Apparently the shooting was, once again, the irrational act of a disturbed man who acted alone. I am not a believer in the conspiratorial view of life, but in a way a conspiracy in such a case almost would be more comforting. Men conspire because of specific circumstances not likely to be repeated exactly ever again. Conspiracies are possible to detect and stop.

But there is no defense against a determined fanatic willing to sacrifice himself. There is no way to predict when such behavior might occur in this nation of more than 200 million persons. All we know is that it has happened with terrifying frequency in the last few years.

A Sick Society?

Are we, as some commentators inevitably decide after each political tragedy, a sick society?

Emphatically no. One or a few madmen cannot be taken to mean the whole society is sick. We are a little lost, perhaps. We are certainly divided. Most of us feel some alienation, some feeling of being cut off or of being used.

Perhaps our voices, as we argue out our differences, have become too strident. Perhaps our tolerance for the other person's point of view has lessened. Unquestionably we are tending too much to release our frustrations through the easy road of violence, fed by huge daily doses of make-believe violence in our entertainment media.

But we are not a sick society, nor are we close to being one. The best proof is our resiliency to pick ourselves up and continue forward each time mindless violence is committed against a political leader.

We Are All Demeaned

We are, however, each of us, demeaned by the assault on Governor Wallace, as we were by the assaults on Dr. Martin Luther King and on John and Robert Kennedy. They were not only senseless, brutal assaults on human beings. In a larger sense they also were assaults on the Democratic process in America, and we all share the wounds.

America is governed by ballots, not bullets. Maybe we all need to moderate our views somewhat, and certainly we could find more moderate ways to express them. But America is a free society, based on the free exchange of ideas and the free expression of views, and always will be. No matter what happens America will never accept the whims of a deranged gunman.

What an experience!! We've just returned home from a four day trip to Lake of the Ozarks, where we attended a press meeting held at Tan-Tar-A, and we took four children with us (one to brighten and enliven each day). Really, we had a wonderful time, but what a riot. My two fellas, a friend of theirs, my niece and her parents drove (packed like sardines), in one car to meet Charles (the rat fink, he had a whole car to himself), who was already there and waiting for us. Having gone those curvy roads before with my crew, I greeted brother-in-law loaded down with sacks, kleenex, wet rags and Dramamine and he about died at all that mess in his clean car, but I insisted and away we went. Ha, my three traveled beautifully, but his poor wee one ended up in dire need of all my medical needs, in fact, the only thing my fellas did was consume fourteen dollars worth of junk which I had also brought along to snack on in the cabin, and then they did do a little dentist work on the friend. Brete pulled his tooth and became very excited upon examining that object because the nerves (that's what they called them), appeared to be green and they assured me this was very unusual, however, this turned out to only be a piece of pistachio nut lodged in the dislodged tooth so peace fell once again and only the sound of munching filled the air. We finally arrived, went first off to the grocery store for more goodies - where else - and from then on the time consisted of late horror movies, early (very early, Lee & I watched the sun rise our first morning out), fishing jaunts, swimming, pin ball and pool shooting, bowling, and I guess I should have put eating in between each of those activities. Little boys are born empty and brother, they stay that way!!

I wish to make an apology to Mrs. Deema Atteberry for not having given credit to her for her delicious cranberry salad in my cookbook. I thought this was one my mother had worked out but she says no - that that recipe belongs to Deema and another has never been made to equal its goodness, so my apologies and remember send in your coupon —

JACKSONVILLE, Ark. -- U. S. Air Force Master Sergeant Howard R. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cox of 429 Allie St., Bloomfield, Mo., has arrived for duty at Little Rock AFB, Ark.

Sergeant Cox is first sergeant of the 308th Support Squadron. The 308th, is a unit of the Strategic Air Command, America's nuclear deterrent force of long range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles. He previously served at Johnston Island Air Force Base in the Southwest Pacific.

The sergeant, who has completed 12 months duty in Vietnam, is a 1955 graduate of Lilbourn (Mo.) High School.

His wife, Sharon, is the daughter of Mrs. Louise Dubay of Oldtown, Maine.

Phone Rate Hike Called Monopolistic

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)—An officer of a St. Louis area electronics firm said Monday that the proposed $63.5 million annual rate increase by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. could destroy competition in telephone equipment in the St. Louis area.

"We are convinced that Bell's rates and proposed tariff changes are not only to destroy competition but are excessive to the public," said Stan Fine, vice president of Tech Electronics, Inc., in testimony prepared for a hearing before the Missouri Public Service Commission.

The commission opened two days of hearings in Clayton today on the proposed rate increase. It completed two weeks of testimony in Jefferson City last week.

Fine said in his prepared statement that he felt the commission had not fully explored the competitive effect of Bell's request.

He also questioned whether the commission had information on how many tax-free dollars Southwestern Bell was receiving because of depreciation. Fine said that hearings in Iowa for Northwestern Bell indicated the figure increased $4 million in one year.

Fine asked the commission to determine "what will create a healthy competitive market and what will dampen all hopes of competition existing against the Bell monopoly."

Panel Okays Anti-Hijack Device Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concerned about the airplane hijacking problem, the House Appropriations Committee has approved funds to buy 800 more magnetometers to screen passengers and baggage.

The magnetometers are highly sensitive to metal such as guns or bombs.

In a $2.9-billion appropriation bill sent to the House for consideration later this week, the committee added $2 million to purchase 800 of the devices to supplement 350 already in use. The Federal Aviation Administration will give or loan them to airlines.

The FAA funds were included in a bill financing the Department of Transportation for the fiscal year starting July 1.

COOKING-UP

with judy gazette

Today brings fulfillment of a request for the Freezer Strawberry Jam recipe printed last year and another request for ideas on cold soups.

Oddly enough the soup rules were easily found, but the recipe for barely-cooked strawberry preserves has eluded me for several weeks.

While on the subject of cold soups, I must pass on a humerous thought. Headlining a recent article on the "lo-cal" benefits of many cold soups were the words "Having Bikini Woes?" I'm inclined to answer that kind of question in a near out-loud manner ... "as a matter of fact, I am ... and all of the cold soups in the world can't cure it!" At any rate, have included a rule for a Spanish summer soup made chunky instead of traditionally smooth -- Gazpacho. It really amounts to a liquid salad, but whatever the texture, it is good served ICY cold and with a couple of rye crackers.

The other cold soups are rich and yummy and should not be confused with the above attempt at slimming down. The fruit versions can be used almost any time, as can the tomato rule, which was, incidentally, a favorite dish of the Kennedy's during their years in the White House. Serve it as a preview to your outdoor feast over the coming Memorial Day.

Happy Holiday ...

FREEZER STRAWBERRY JAM

1 -3/4 cups ripe strawberries (about 1 quart)
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
4 cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 bottle liquid fruit pectin (6 oz. size)

Mix pureed strawberries, grated rind and sugar in bowl. Mix lemon juice and liquid pectin; stir into strawberry mixture. Continue to stir for 3 minutes. (There will still be some undissolved sugar crystals). Spoon or ladle into jars or freezer containers. Cover with tight lids and let stand at room temperature until set, as long as 24 hours. Store in freezer. The jam will keep in the refrigerator for 3 weeks.

Makes about 5 medium jars.

ICED TOMATO SOUP

6 large ripe tomatoes, coarsely chopped
1 onion, chopped
¼ cup water
½ tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
2 T. tomato paste
2 T. flour
2 chicken bouillon cubes, dissolved in 2 cups boiling water
1 cup heavy cream

Combine tomatoes, onion, water, salt and pepper in a saucepan. Cook over moderate heat five minutes. Combine tomato paste with flour and add to tomatoes with bouillon. Simmer gently three minutes. Rub mixture through a fine sieve. Chill several hours. Before serving, add cream. Season to taste with more salt, if necessary. Garnish each serving with a thin tomato slice if desired.

SOUR CREAM STRAWBERRY SOUP

In a large saucepan combine 3 cups sliced strawberries with 1 cup sugar and ½ cup water. Bring mixture to boil and simmer it for 5 minutes. Stir in 2 tsp. arrowroot mixed with a little water and 1 cup each red wine and orange juice. Slowly bring the mixture to boil and cook it, stirring constantly, until it is slightly thickened. Let it cool. Pour into blender, cover container and blend at high speed 'til pureed. Gradually stir in 1½ cups sour cream. Chill soup and garnish with sliced strawberries.

The road runner's claim to fame lies in its prowess in killing rattlesnakes, which the bird swallows, starting with the head.

STRAWBERRY SOUP

Combine 2 cups strawberries, 1 cup water and ½ cup sugar in blender container. Puree'. Stir in thoroughly 1 cup white wine, 1-2 T. lemon juice, and 1 tsp. grated lemon peel. Chill soup and garnish with sliced strawberries.

GAZPACHO

1 clove garlic
1 package Italian salad dressing seasoning mix
1 cup tomato vegetable juice
3 medium tomatoes, peeled and chopped
1 medium cucumber, peeled and chopped
¼ cup minced green pepper
¼ cup minced onion
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon wine vinegar seasoned pepper

Rub a large bowl with the clove of garlic, cut in half.

Place Italian seasoning mix in bowl. Add tomato- vegetable juice and stir thoroughly. Then add tomatoes, cucumbers, green pepper, onion, olive oil, and vinegar. Mix thoroughly.

Coats Are Last Word In Fashion

NEW YORK (AP) — Big sleeves, big coats, big shoes — some fall fashions have ballooned in size.

"I concentrated on big sleeves," said designer Isaey Miyake, following his fall show for Paris Collections Monday.

His clothes are a great blend of familiar and strange looks. He showed big-sleeved lamb wool jackets—very short—over thigh-high wrapped platform boots and pants in an unusual cotton, woven to look quilted.

"It took me a year to develop the fabric," said Miyake, who used it for reversible jackets, in bright blocks of color, as well as peddle pushers and even shorts.

His sleeves got even bigger and rounder for evening—in snow and rain print blouses and pants.

Miyake likes man-made suede combinations, sometimes in monotones, ending in peculiar shoes and boots which he designs. They are large platform styles, some with turned up toes and ankle lacings.

The thick soles are made of cork so they're very light, says Miyake. However, it's not easy to develop an undulating walk in them. A clip-clop step is more like it.

His midi pants showed off the shoes to their best or worst advantage depending on how you feel about them. And you're bound to feel strongly one way or the other. Actually, they grow on you.

For his generous, blousy evening dresses, he used a mathematical print, designed by Makio Minakawa—instead of the popular plaids.

"Everyone was going checked and stripes. Pop prints were finished. What could we do?" said Miyake, who previously worked for Givency in Paris, then Geoffrey Beene in New York, and finally went to Tokyo to do his own designs in 1970.

The collection is priced $40 for blouses, up to $300.

Designer Scott Barrie has his own version of the larger, easier coat.

He does an extended shoulder. It looks like the coat is too big for the model, but it holds the attention because you keep trying to figure out what is going on. It's very casual-looking.

Scott keeps the loose look with lots of soft dolman sleeved sweaters, and dresses with tucked shoulders and flaring skirts.

His version of the short evening dress defies that stiffed look. He does dresses with tiers of pleated chiffon which show more leg than the mini ever did.

His clothes are priced up to $250.

Fumed oak is oak given a weathered appearance by exposure to fumes of ammonia from uncorked cans, being first given a coat of filler.

Tykes' Trip Togs That Can Take It

NEW YORK — (NEA) — When you take the kids on a vacation, their clothes get as much of a workout as the youngsters do. They must be chosen with an eye to comfort for the children and easycare for mom. And they should be wrinkle-resistant for travel, too.

Anyone who has ever toted suitcases on and off airplanes or in and out of car trunks knows too that packability in minimal space can't be overlooked in choosing vacation clothes.

For putting the ideal vacation wardrobe to the test, where could be more ideal than Walt Disney World at Orlando, Fla.?

A fast ride on the ultra-modern Monorail will get you to the Magic Kingdom in no time. They can greet Mickey Mouse wearing an A-B-C jumper set in a crisp blend of polyester and cotton, and then walk into the past as they enter the magical Cinderella Castle.

Ride the Riverboat in rugged jeans and sweatshirt tops of Acrilan acrylic embla zoned with an emblem. Then they can paddle their own canoe on the glistening Rivers of America or climb way up into The Swiss Family Robinson Island Tree House.

Stretch terry cloth in a blend of Acrilan, nylon and cotton is a cool, comfortable, giveable fabric for such strenuous activity.

World War II Novel

THE GRAND DEFIANCE By Bernard Frizell. Morrow. $6.95.

Escape and pursuit are the tension-building elements of this novel, which is based on an actual occurrence.

The time is June, 1940, and the German war machine has overrun France. The most skillful military strategist in France, Gen. Alain deForge, has been captured. He is sent to a fortress atop a mountain peak in East Germany, where according to his rank he is a privileged prisoner.

But there seems no hope o escape, and even if the genera were to get out of the fortress he would have to be passed along a slender undergroun network, clear across th German countryside.

Gen. deForge is one of thos indomitable, charismatic Frenc actors who never give up.

Dreams for sale.

Everybody's got a dream lurking around in the back of his mind. A dream vacation. A dream cottage. A dream car.

Dreams can be a lot more fun if you know you're doing something to make them come true.

And that's what the Payroll Savings Plan is all about. When you sign up an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

Now Bonds mature in less than six years. That's the shortest maturity period ever, and makes Bonds a practical way to save for dreams...so want to come true while you're still young enough to enjoy them.

See the folks in the payroll office where you work. They've got dreams for sale.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds mature in less than six years.

Our termite inspection is on the house.

When you've been fighting termites for 40 years, you know something about fighting termites. And finding them.

Unfortunately, you may have termites now. If you call us, we'll let you know. Without any guesswork. Our termite inspection is thorough, dependable and, best of all, it's free.

And if we find you do have termites, we'll get rid of them for you in our way that's both professional and inexpensive. We also have a termite damage protection contract. In that way, we not only free your house from termites, we also free your mind from worrying about them coming back.

The fastest way to get us is to call this number. 471-2455. We'll make sure your world doesn't come crashing in on you.
